which conveyed the Odd Fellow's on "Idyl Wild," Mr Calcutt's summer resort, was by far the most extensive and most liberally patronized excursion of the whole, there being in the neighborhood of four hundred persons on board. On the arrival of the 46 Battalion Band by the morning train from Port Hope, the steamer left her moorings, the band playing some beautiful selections. They arrived at Idyl Wild about one o'clock, and after dinner promenaded the grounds. A game of Base-Ball and an Indian Regatta occupied the time till nearly five o'clock when the party embarked, returning home about 10.30 o'clock, after spending one of the most enjoyable excursions of the season. The management having done all in their power to make it so. The Band of the 46th Batallion deserve praise for the numerous and beautiful selections they gave, all the members doing their utmost to make the excursion enjoyable. They were the admiration of all the excursionists.

THE ISAAC BUTTS

was permitted to leave the wharf about 9 o'clock with the Firemen's Excursion party, which left for Campbelltown. They passed a very pleasant time, returning about midnight. We are glad to say that notwithstanding the fears of disappointment in the morning, they were enabled to leave in time to have a pleasant day and enjoy themselves to their hearts content.

There were other excursions which we believe passed off enjoyable, nothing occuring during the whole day to mar the peace or pleasure of any person. The town was unusually quiet.

LEVELS.—The following levels of different points about town have been given us by Messrs. Raune & Wilkins. They have been taken carefully and therefore are absolutely correct. The centre of George and Hunter crossing is the base, and all heights are with reference to that point.

MR. EDITOR,—Will you favor your readers of No. Two Ward with the whereabouts of Councillor Smith. He does not appear during the Water Works meetings, after introducing it to the attention of the Ratepayers. Why does he leave its advocacy to others, and thus studiously avoid uttering a word for it, or even favoring it by his presence? Is he away at the sea side, or does he consult his own ease to such an extent as to remain at home in the arms of his family while his bantling is being so roughly handled, or is he courting popularity? And in view of his coming popularity for the Mayoralty of 1878, would not this be an excellent opportunity to show what he is made of. Those who voted for him are desirous of hearing from him on this important question of an expenditure of Fifty Thousand Dollars. My object in bringing him from his hiding place is that he may defend the outlay by giving his reasons therefore. Why is he neglecting our interests or are we to take up the Dutchman's motto and say—

Who O where is our Councillor gone,
Where, O where is he?

Yours, &c.,
NO. TWO WARD.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—You may have noticed a letter from me in the Lakefield News, of the 13th July, referring to the amputation of the tip of a man's little finger, and to certain statements, which I called "gross misrepresentations," concerning the operation. In this letter I wish to correct a wrong impression that one line; namely, that Mr. G. Preston, over whose signature a letter appears in the News of the 26th July, is my authority for naming Dr. Kincaid as the author of those statements. I also wish to show more clearly how utterly unfounded those slanders were and the manner in which they are contradicted; and to pass certain facts before the public in connection with the matter. The proprietors of the Lakefield News have most unexpectedly refused to publish my communication, though promised the privilege; but the Editor gave me the promise had reference to an article in that literary production in the News of July 26th. As to the composition of the writer of Editor, in last week's News, that the Canadian Literary Journal is the proper place to discuss questions; it seems almost superfluous to say that neither he nor the public were of the Journal care four cents about the matter, as in his column for no honorable person can take exception to the point the humour towards which opposites was exceedingly rare, with the exception of Mr. Preston himself. Trusting you will insert this, I am, Sir, Yours truly,

WM. CALDWELL.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, AUG. 9, 1877..

Cool nights.

The Berry season is almost over.

Pic-Nic follows pic-nic in rapid succession.

Port Hope will civilize on Monday next.

The Town was very quiet on the civic holiday.

Lakefield's civic holiday is fixed for the 17th of August.

The late railways strikes has been termed the "swipe of Kars."

Mowe's Circus is advertised to be in Peterborough on the 23rd inst.

The Town Council will meet on Monday evening next, at the usual hour.

In Rose Hall, base hits are sometimes made. It seems to be a base game all round.

To the Races.—Quite a number of our sports left here to witness the races at Rochester this week.

There are more excursions to the square inch in Peterborough than any other town in the country.

There was very nearly being a strike on the street on Saturday evening, but the police arrived in time to prevent it.

There was a very large market on Saturday. Apples and vegetables in general, were well represented, and sold at good prices.

Little do the girls think, as they gulp down the delicious ice-cream, that they may be eating their lovers' next winter's overcoat.

Some people say that before we have water works we must build more sewers—that is in fact, say other courses would be sewercidal.

We have received several communications from different parties, pro and con, on the water works question, which for want of space had to be left over.

The Fourteenth Provincial Sabbath School convention will be held in the town of Guelph, Ont., on Tuesday and the three following days, the 9th, 10th and 11th October next.

The Streets are being watered better this year than any previous year. Mr. McDonnell deserves much praise for the way he is fulfilling his contract, and he who bought the cart deserves praise also.

Piano Tuning.—Mons. A. Marault, Piano tuner, is in town, and will be prepared during the next few days to attend to any orders left at Davidson and Rubidge's book stores, or at the rooms of Mr. Errett.

The Museum of Eastern Ontario have arranged another grand excursion to Niagara Falls. The last one was very successful, numbering nearly twelve hundred. The tickets are $2.00 and good for ten days.

Mr. T. Lenihan would like the Times man the next time he sends a reporter on an excursion, to send one that knows a Waltz from an "Irish Jig." But perhaps Mr. Lenihan was never up "Among the Rocks of Burleigh."

Cricket.—The Cricket Match between the Port Hope and Montreal clubs resulted in a victory for Port Hope. In the first innings the Montrealers scored 35, and in the second 97, total 132, leaving the Port Hope men 137 ahead in a single innings.

The Review says that the cause of the fire at the old Methodist Church "is attributed to spontaneous combustion of lime." Now, who ever heard tell of such a thing before, will he rise and explain. This is a question for some of our scientists in the school. Then this same man objects to the Porte being called she. "If ignorance is bliss, &c."

Montreal Telegraph Company.—This company has opened an office at Sturgeon Point Hotel and is now prepared to receive and transmit messages to and from that point. The tariff from Lindsay and all offices within twelve miles will be fifteen cents for ten words. Much credit is due to Mr. F. C. Taylor, agent of the company, in having the line built in such short notice.

New Dominion Monthly.—Of all the publications of Messrs. John Dougall & Son, the "New Dominion Monthly" counts most favor among the literary classes. It is to it the most delicate attention is paid, and, as a result, we are favored with a magazine whose merits are so generally acknowledged. The August number has a wood engraving of Dr. Schliemann, who has revealed the sight of the most mythical cities of ancient Troy and Mycenæ.

A Fact.—One of the most correct and sensible paragraphs that we have seen in a long time is the following: "Did you ever notice that whenever a policeman is called upon in the pursuit of his duty to arrest a man, a noisy drunken one, for instance, there is always a sympathy in some people for the man arrested, and he is in a measure exhausted into a hero if he can in some way make trouble for the officer before he is landed in the lock-up."

Large Glass.—Mr. R. A. Morrow has, through Mr. George Stethem, purchased and placed in the store lately occupied by Mr. P. D. Doran, two large lights of plated glass. These are now among the largest window glasses in town. The glass was purchased in England by Mr. Stethem, and it was hardly one month from the date of ordering till it was landed in Montreal. The shop is being refitted nicely for Miss E. Delaney, who will remove there as soon as it is completed.

The Quarterly installation of officers of Friendship Temple, I. O. G. T., No. 168, took place in their new hall, in Mr. Cox's building, George street, on Tuesday evening, 7th instant, when the following officers were installed, viz:

P. W. C. T.	Brother	H. Nesbitt.
W. C. T.	"	F. B. Burnham.
W. V. T.	Sister	M. Heather.
W. S.	Brother	A. H. Delaney.
W. F. S.	"	Wm. Gilbert.
W. T.	"	Jas. Hope.
W. M.	"	Jas. M. Carrie.
W. Chas.	"	Joseph Buller.
W. H. H. S.	Sister	McNeil.
W. I. H. S.	"	Nesbitt.
W. A. S.	"	Nesbitt.
W. D. M.	"	McWilliams.
W. I. G.	"	McIlwain.
W. O. G.	Brother	Appleyard.

School Board.—At the school Board meeting on Tuesday evening, Miss Sanderson's resignation was accepted, and Miss Bagnaley was appointed to her place, at the same salary, and Miss Topsy Hall was appointed to Miss Bagnaley's position. Applications were received from Miss E. Wright and Miss M. McDonald for a position in the school as soon as a vacancy occurred. The Auditors' report of the school accounts was received, and the Treasurer ordered to pay them $180 therefore. Mr. Shaw verbally reported in reference to the model school and said that the committee would meet again on the 20th inst., after which he thought the chairman would be requested to call a special meeting of the Board, as the committee did not wish to take the responsibility of so important a matter.

Clawson Wheat.—The Stratford Beacon says:—"It will be extremely interesting to the farming portion of the community, says the Guelph Mercury, to know that last spring a committee was appointed to examine the experimental results of the Clawson wheat, on behalf of the township of Harwich Branch Agricultural society, and to report thereon. The committee have visited a number of farms, and, after viewing many fields and varieties, have come to the unanimous conclusion that the Clawson wheat has by far the best appearance of all the kinds sown, but it requires about one week per acre more for other varieties. The committee will, in due course, be required to make at the next meeting of the Board, recommend the society to purchase of him, and to find the amount for distribution among members that may apply for the fall sowing.

Melancholy Accident.—Without the most remote intention of doing so, we have to record another of those fearful accidents that are now becoming so common. While Mr. Henry Kells, of Port Hope, was camping out on our back waters with some of his friends, he met with his death by the discharging of the contents of his gun in the vicinity of his right lung. It appears that the party had left camp and paddled to Jullen's Landing to meet the Tiger, which was to have conveyed them to Lakefield, where they intended remaining that night, so as to be prepared to join the Oddfellows' excursion to Idyl Wild the following morning; at Jullen's, while they were removing their luggage from the canoes to the Tiger, and Mr. Kells was lifting his gun from his canoe into the Tiger it caught on the side of the canoe, discharging the two shots of a double barrelled gun, which entered his breast, under the right rib, and passing through the lung, lodged in the neighborhood of the right shoulderblade. The wound was so large that it was found impossible to stop the flow of blood. He arose after being shot and walked a few steps, but soon fell and fainted away. His friends done everything in their power to sustain life until they might reach medical aid, and proceeded at once towards Lakefield with that intent. It was soon evident that the result would be fatal, as he gradually became weaker and weaker till he expired about half an hour after receiving the fatal shot. During the short period he spoke frequently, always in reference to his poor mother, and what her feelings would be. His remains were removed from Lakefield to Port Hope by the noon train. The Oddfellows of Port Hope, of which society he was a prominent member, met the remains at Millbrook. The funeral was one of the largest that has ever been witnessed by the citizens of Port Hope. The Oddfellows of Lindsay, Peterboro', Cobourg, Oshawa, Bowmanville, and other towns joining in the procession. We understand that the deceased was highly respected by all who knew him, and the greatest sympathy was generally expressed for his afflicted mother, whose only son he was.

Assault.—George Pappin was charged by John Donoghue with assaulting him on the morning of the 2nd. Fined $6.00 and $2.75 costs.

Assault.—Joseph Griffin was charged by John Mowry with assaulting him on the morning of the 2nd. Fined $2.00 and $3.50 cost.

Larceny.—John Steen, who, it will be remembered, was charged by Mr. Stethem with stealing cutlery, &c., from his shop, and who was arrested by constable McGee in Gederich during the past week, was tried before the P. M. and sent up for trial at the assizes. He admitted the charge to the Police Magistrate.

Selling Liquor After Hours.—The License Inspector charged Mr. R. N. Roddy with selling liquor after hours. The case was enlarged until Monday morning.

Assault.—James McNamarra was charged by George Pappin on Wednesday with using grossly insulting language on the day previous. The defendant not having all his witnesses present, the case was enlarged until Thursday morning.

Sheehan has been committed for trial for the murder of Hackett.

Father Stafford, of Lindsay, condemns the article in the True Witness on the Montreal riots.

The extension of the Victoria Railway from Kinmount to Haliburton is to be proceeded with at once.

The Ontario Government offers a reward of $500 for the arrest of John Cope Mallory, charged with being a party to the murder of Alberta Wade, near Colborne, last month.

Conservative Pic-Nic.—A pic-nic, under the auspices of the Conservatives of Durham, Victoria, Peterborough and Northumberland, is to be held at the village of Millbrook (East Durham) about the 12th of September.

When a newspaper abandons legitimate argument on a public question, to waste a half-column in editorially abusing a citizen by imputing base motives to him there must be something fishy in connection with its advocacy. The remarks of the Review on Mr. T. G. Haslitt certainly springs from something else than the sentiment of "Measures, not Men."

Not long ago, it will be remembered, we were referred by the Port Hope Times to an alleged arrangement made by Cobourg with the Government in respect to the municipal loan fund debt. It was used as an argument in favour of similar treatment for Port Hope. Strange as it appears, we, not having any means of ascertaining the fact, could not deny the statement of better terms to Cobourg. The Lindsay Post last week published an article in relation to the matter which sheds an intirely new light upon it. It will be found in another column.

The advocates of the water works bylaw in this town have been rather unfortunate in their reference to the Sarnia water-works. It is shown by details of the works in that town, that though there is less pipe, less digging, and more favorable soil, they cost more than the sum proposed to be spent in Peterborough for works with a reservoir, which good authority declares the people of Sarnia would not have at any price. The fact is we have as yet had no fair estimate for water works in Peterborough, and no full and reliable data on which to base such an estimate.

The newspaper that pursues the petty and undignified course of cavilling at typographical errors of trifling import, errors of no moment, last week assumed a little higher level in the field of journalism. It attempts to correct our statement that there is an Irish Catholic in the Cabinet in the person of Hon. R. W. Scott. It denies that the honorable gentleman is an Irish Catholic, and accuses us of either ignorance or an attempt to deceive. We must plead ignorance, having been under the impression that Irish Catholic included Canadians of Irish descent, who belong to the Catholic Church, and knowing that Hon. Mr. Scott's projenitors occupied a good position in the County of Clare. If that isn't in Ireland, we must plead further ignorance. A caviller should be careful he doesn't get his foot in his own tangles.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

In our last issue we noticed the fact that an inquest was being held by Dr. Kincaid, Coroner, on the body or rather skeleton of an infant that was found in Ryan's tannery yard, and we have since ascertained the following as the result of the enquiry:—

The following Jurors were duly sworn:

James Hogan, Foreman, and Robert Davidson, R. Smith, R. Thompson, John Haggart, John Brown, F. Lane, Erasmus Greene, Samuel Cleary, J. Lannin, G. L. Mitchell and A. McNeil.

Dr. Kincaid, on opening the inquest, made the following address to the Jury:—

Gentlemen,—I have summoned you to investigate the cause of death of an unknown infant found in Ryan's tannery yard. The finding of the infant having been brought to the notice of a prominent citizen he immediately demanded an investigation, and waited upon Mr. Hatton to that effect. The latter, however, sent information to me, and in company with all the circumstances I have opened this inquest with the object of inquiring into the circumstances of the case. I propose to hold the inquiries with closed doors as there are several young girls to be examined as witnesses, and I could not examine them on such a subject effectually if the public were admitted. I desire this inquest to be thorough, so that the guilty party may be brought to justice if possible, and no blame may be laid on any person not interested in the matter, and it is my earnest wish that every thing may be done to ferrit out the guilty party. Indeed, gentlemen, it is a debt you owe to the public as true and honorable men, and as lawful subjects of Her Majesty to render a verdict in accordance with all the facts, and this I have no doubt you will do.

A number of witnesses were then examined, but their evidence was of no importance as bearing upon the case.

The Jury here adjourned the inquest until Friday to allow of scientific evidence to clear up two points, viz: the sex of the child discovered, and the length of time it had been exposed.

The inquest having been resumed on Friday evening, Dr. W. H. Borritt gave the following evidence upon the above points:—

I have examined the skeleton of an infant shown me to day by Constable McGee, and found that some of the small bones had been lost. I found it impossible to tell whether it had been a male or female child as all the flesh had been destroyed or decayed. The child appeared to be dead longer than five weeks, but I could not say positively. The cloth that was around the infant appeared as if it had been longer exposed.

By a Juror:

"How long do you think the child had been dead when you saw it"?

"I think it had certainly been dead two months."

By the Foreman:

"Do you think it possible for the body to have been in such an advanced state of decomposition had it not been exposed for more than five weeks?"

"I do not think it could have been as much decomposed in five weeks, but I don't think, taking the whole appearance of the body into consideration, that it could have had this appearance which it has if it had only been dead for five weeks."

This being all the evidence the coroner addressed the Jury directing attention to to the fact that in his opinion the body of the child must have been exposed since the spring to be in such a state of decomposition.

The Coroner then directed the Jury to consider the verdict which they did as follows:—

"We the undersigned Jurors empanelled to investigate the matter of the finding of the body of an unknown infant in a yard known as Ryan's Tannery Yard, in the town of Peterboro', on the 1st day of August inst., and the evidence in the matter not pointing particularly to the guilty party, have to return a verdict of "found dead" cause unknown.

ENNISMORE.

Council Meeting.—Council met in the Town Hall on Friday, 27th ult., all members of the Council present. After the minutes of the last meeting being read and confirmed Phillip Crough appealed to the Council in order to have his name taken from the Treasurer's bond, and Patrick Crough's name was inserted in its place, which, on motion of John Donohue, seconded by Richard Cosgriff, was agreed to. By-law No. 158 for the appointing of Phillip Crough Collector for the present year at 2 per cent received its several readings, passed, and the Corporate Seal attached thereto. By-Law No. 159 for the levying and collecting the sum of $2,390 for the current year and for S. S. No. 4 received its several readings, passed, and the corporate Seal attached to the same. County rate and Township current expenses is about the same, but, owing to a small amount being appropriated for the different roads, we will have a slight increase in our rate over last year. Moved by William Crough, seconded by Maurice Galevan, that on the Clerk applying for the certified copy of the Voters List for the present year to the County Judge, that he request him to take the name of C. M. Smith from the second part of said Voters List, and annex it to the first part of the same.—Carried. By-Law No. 160 received its several readings, passed, and the corporate Seal attached to the same for the purpose of investing Daniel Costello and William Crough as Church Wardens, with power to lease a part of the Mud Lake Cemetry, the rent of the same to apply in fencing the lot. It will be remembered a free deed was given the Township of 16 acres of land on Mud Lake shore after its settling by Mr. Cairns for a priests parsonage and burial ground, enough has been set apart for burial purposes for generations yet to come, the remainder the Church Wardens now intend, and we think are doing wisely, renting for the purpose of fencing and any improvement they think necessary. Patrick Galevan applied to the council for assistance in building a scow for the purpose of getting into Fatheringal Island.—Application refused. They also refused the application of Samuel Young, to plank over the ditch in front of his residence, he, cleaning it as necessary for the convenience of the Post Office. The council then adjoined till the call of the Reeve.

Accident.—On Tuesday last while raising a bent at John Hennessey's house now in the course of erection on lot 1 con. 5, it fell knocking down Alexander Clark falling across his back and lower part of his body thereby injuring him severely. Medical aid was at once procured from Peterborough, he is now under the care of Dr. Kincaid although no bones is broke only two ribs, still it will be some time before he can attend to his work again.—Com.

THE COBOURG DEBT.

From the Lindsay Post.

Some time ago we questioned the correctness of a Port Hope contemporary respecting the terms claimed to have been granted to Cobourg by the Government—terms which, if they were as stated by the Times, would have amounted to a virtual alteration, without the authority of the Legislature, of the Act settling up the Municipal Loan Fund indebtedness. We did not then, and do not now believe that the Government or any member of it was obtuse enough to enter into an arrangement which could be manifestly illegal, and which could have no other effect than to re-open the whole question. Enquiring into the affair has only served to confirm our previously expressed conviction that our Cobourg and Port Hope confreres have overstated the case in their own favour. It may be admitted as a fact that part of the Cobourg debentures were not sold in London and that they are still in the hands of the Government. Whether the debentures of any other municipality are in the same position we cannot positively say, but it is perfectly certain that the number of debentures now held by the Government must be exceedingly small. It is well known that the object in view in selling them was to relieve the Government of the invidueous task of prosecuting defaulting municipalities for the recovery of arrears of interest. To have thrown such an unpleasant duty on the Government would have made it possible to attempt to bring political influence to bear in order to procure better terms—a danger so much to be dreaded, that the debentures are much better in the hands of the British capitalists who can collect their interest without raising any question of favouritism. It is not at all likely, therefore, that whatever the concession granted to Cobourg may be it is of such a kind that other municipalities unless they have debentures in the hands of the Government, can obtain a similar favour. In the case of debentures that have passed beyond the Provincial Treasurer's control no one is likely to interfere, or to be asked to interfere on behalf of a defaulting municipality. The creditor's remedy is to put the Sheriff into the municipal treasurer's office for a brief space.

We have a shrewd suspicion that the Cobourg concession will amount when the truth comes out next session to a shin plaster, backed with a large superstructure. As we have already intimated it can only affect those debentures still in the hands of the Government and it cannot even in their case affect the principal debt. No promise of any Provincial Treasurer or of the public collectively could alter the face of the promise to pay. The arrangement, whatever it is, can have reference to the payment of the interest. It is only to a very limited extent under Government control. That is may the Government might agree under certain circumstances not to press a municipality overburdened with taxation in order to allow it a short time to raise the money without going beyond the two cent limit of taxation. Whether Cobourg in such a condition financially we are not prepared to say, but it must have felt pressure to some extent before applying for relief. What the World and the Times say would seem to imply more than a temporary respite from the payment of interest at a certain date but if they mean that either the principal or interest has been reduced in amount we have no hesitation in reasserting our conviction that they have been too sanguine in their interpretation of the terms in which the concession was conveyed. Let us by all means have the ipsissima verba of the document if it is in writing; if the grant was only made orally we do not wonder at its being misconstrued.

GOLDEN-EYE v. ISAAC BUTTS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

In the last issue of the Review there was an article purporting to be a conversation between a Reporter and Fireman, as to my interfering in the Fireman's excursion. This article is one tissue of falsehood. I never interfered in having the Band stopped, nor wrote to the inspector requesting him to do so, I had no grudge against Mr. Barber, or the Fireman. The timber of Mr. Foulds spoken of I had contracted to take it from Hastings to Harwood, when I received a telegram from Mr. Barber, saying that he wished to draw the timber with the Isaac Butts, and that he considered it was his legitimate trade. On the receipt of the said telegram we not only withdrew our contract, but towed down Mr. Barber's scows in the night to Hastings, that they might be loaded early for the "Butts" as soon as she was fitted up, up to the time she had not run. Had she been running Mr. Foulds would not have asked me to draw the timber, but as he was in a hurry to ship it, and it was likely to take some time to fit the Butt's up, he contracted with me.

As to the Firemen, I offered the Golden-Eye to them on the same terms that I received from the Oddfellows, for some excuse better known to themselves they did not make final arrangements with me. I suppose they thought they could do better on some other route. I have always received the greatest courtesy from the managers of the Peterborough Fire Company long before I owned a boat, and ever since. As to my abusing the Oddfellows to the Firemen, and the Firemen to the Oddfellows, I repudiate that as an unmitigated falsehood, I had no reason for doing so, I had my boat engaged for the day, and she had all she could carry, and the "Butts" must have had the same, so why abuse the Fire Bigade! The truth is my boat will take up too much room on the river. There was an article published in the Review after the Dominion Day excursion saying this trip was played out, the river was only fit for canoes etc. The proprietor of the Review newspaper not satisfied with monopolizing the bank of the river and blocking up the channel with his scows, he has now undertaken to write my boats off the river by turning the public against me, but he may write as much as he likes, I will continue to run my steamers ever on a fair and square basis, and trust to the public for a continuation of the liberal patronage they have given me ever since I embarked in boating on the Otonabee River and Rice Lake.

THE WATER WORKS FIZZLE IN THE SOUTH WARD.

The Advocates Routed and Demoralized

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Feeling interested in the project now agitating the community, I resolved to attend the meeting in order to learn all I could respecting this matter, I got down to Englishtown before 8 o'clock, and met Mr. Barney, and requested him to point out the house where the meeting was to be held, he said he could not as he did not know where it was to be held, why, I asked, that it was advertised to be held in your house, he said yes I believe it was, but they can't have it because they never asked for it. I asked if he had notified anyone to this effect, yes, he said he had sent word to the Mayor on Saturday, stating that they could not have any meeting for water works in my house as we don't want anything of the kind down here and that they had better go some where else. We felt a little flat at this announcement, and at once took possession of corporation property—the sidewalk. Our meeting increased by degrees, and the subject was discussed by all present. However it soon became tame, there all one-sided, and all agreed that they would do without water works for some time to come. Those present waited patiently for the advocates to put in an appearance, it having been rumored that councillors Haggart & Cahill would address the meeting. But we were told Haggart was at the end of the street endeavoring to convert two ratepayers to his views regarding water works. Mr. Cahill was non est. Mr. McBain was present, and his views were in harmony with the meeting. Councillor Rountree was also there and in accord with those present, denounced the scheme put forward. Councillor Smith put in an appearance but was too late to do any good, and although called on was speechless. He is trying very hard to court popularity for the mayoralty for the next year, but the ratepayers know too much of Smith, or anything of the kind. Those present have resolved to go home and to vote against the by-law on the 21st, but when our return home met a few from other wards who felt disappointed in having their walk for nothing.

MR. TROUT AND WATER WORKS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—"In the history of every town or city in the Dominion," and in fact throughout the world, there is always to be found a host of speculators, with their accompanying "camp followers" whose business and interest it is to promulgate schemes to induce the communities on which they live to spend money. These men are always ready to take the position of "leading citizens"—"The real men of the place"—the great inventors and propagators of benevolent enterprises—their only aim being "the public good," and "the advancement of the interests of the community" to which they attach themselves, and when any one has the temerity to oppose their schemes, no matter how pure the motive, the cry immediately resounds throughout the length and breadth of the community, of private interest, "local jealousies"—personal antipathies" and many other charges too numerous, and too deplorable to mention. Why do men like Mr. W. C. Trout denounce those who hold opinions different from theirs as being actuated by the most unworthy motives, such as "local jealousies," "personal antipathies"? Four correspondents more or less do not doubt pure, at least he would have us believe so, for in his inaugural speech at the meeting of "the leading citizens," "the representative men of the town" of whom he was one, he did not omit to inform them that "he had taken an interest in the subject" on "it was not which affected the welfare of the town. His motives are therefore evident, but the motives of his supporters are only selfish and unworthy.

Well, I don't desire to impute motives to the gentleman, and will forbear suggesting as are usually the strongest with men who have every thing to gain by his expenditure.

He points us to Lindsay, Port Hope, Brantford, St. Thomas and Sarnia, as examples to be followed—every town of which has adopted the system of Water Works advocated by me; and yet when the opponents of the scheme advocated by Mr. Trout refer to these places in support of their views, "the dream is changed," and the system of water works created and now in use in each of these towns—and with which the utmost satisfaction is expressed—is denounced as wholly unfit for Peterborough, and the "grand reservoir" scheme, calculated only to deliver water "to the cellars" of a large portion of the town is the "sine qua non," that Messrs. Trout & Co. can negotiate.

The sub-Committee referred to by Mr. Trout was only authorised "to make estimates of the proposed scheme of water works, 1st. from the Dickson property; 2nd. from the Hilliard property, and 3rd. from Lakefield." See Report of sub-com. Review July 26. Instead of this the report submitted to the Joint Committee was such that only pertained to the scheme, or men who had but little self-respect could tamely permit to have foisted upon them. After a lengthy and laboured apology—or rather attempt to hoodwink the Committee—prompted no doubt by a self consciousness of having usurped an undue authority, they very coolly, and with but "scant courtesy" ignore or set aside two of the sites, impudently suggesting, or rather dictating that their favorite site should be adopted, "believing this to be, all things considered, the best site for the proposed works," adding,—"your committee have had a plan of them prepared, and have gone carefully over the calculations as to their probable costs from the best data available." And this is the report furnished, under the powers relegated to the sub-committee that I am taken to task by Mr. Trout for rejecting, and am held up to the odium of the public as "the only objector." It is not the first time I have stood alone, and raised my feeble objections to extravagance and profligancy in the management of our public affairs, and I only regret that when Mr. Trout propounded his patent scheme for filtering I was not present, as I would most assuredly have entered my protest against such silly trash.

But to lend authority to his oracular announcements—he tells us "his attention had been directed to the question" "He designed the Port Hope water works"—or rather the pumping machinery as afterwards explained—then proceeds most exhaustively with the discussion of the various details, exhausting not only the subject, but the patience of any one that reads his foolish platitudes. But as he sustains his position by the same stale and exploded arguments, or rather assertions of all the other advocates of the scheme, and which have been so often and effectually dealt with before. I will not now trespass on your space or patience by any lengthy considerations, merely suggesting to Mr. Trout, and the friends of his "proposal to sink down into the rock" that they are treading on dangerous ground when they undertake to do so, for the time is not very remote when the atmosphere in that locality was redolent with the fumes, not of raw petrolium, but of well refined coal oil, while the propagators of that scheme were as loud in their assertions as to the certainty of rich coal oil deposits being found, as Mr. Trout and his followers are now respecting the purity of the water. I would advise the gentlemen therefore to be careful, lest they "strike ile" in their search for pure water

Mr. Trout's assertion that the water below Mr. Hilliard's is poisoned and rendered unfit for use, and the causes assigned as will, I have no doubt be duly appreciated by the gentlemen owning the Auburn property.

If it be true that "tons of deleterious and poisonous material from Auburn" pass into the river, then I think it is a subject for the Inspector of fisheries to deal with, but if the charge be false, which I assume—for the gentlemen from their relation to the laws of the Province are in all sincerity bound to respect and observe them—I must therefore denounce Mr. Trout's statement as false, and slanderous, and most injurious to the proprietors of the Auburn Mills.

Next comes the site! That Mr. Trout or any other gentleman either of the Council or Committee should undertake to pronounce upon it, it is quite beyond my comprehension, for none of the gentlemen have ever called upon me or asked me a question on the subject. When therefore Mr. Trout so authoritatively pronounces upon, and depreciates the water power referred to, he does so ignorantly and maliciously, and evidently with the design of injuring the property beyond the question of Water Works. His ignorance is unpardonable, because he had the means of knowing the truth and did not make use of them.

The question of anchor ice is one that affects every mill site on the river, and none is less affected by it than the one referred to, the opinion of Mr. W. C. Trout, to the contrary notwithstanding.

I would only say further, if the ratepayers accept the present scheme for Water Works, it will not be long before another benevolent project involving a small expenditure of fifteen or twenty thousand dollars, to "erect a public park" will be submitted for their approval as foreshowed by Mr. W. C. Trout, in his last deliverance on Water Works.

Yours, &c.,
T. G. H.

WATER WORKS.

The "Review" and his Satellites.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—If personal abuse and reckless assertion would build water works, or induce the people of Peterboro' to do so, then the promoters of the scheme now soliciting so much discussion cannot be far from the end they desire. The Review and his correspondents, disturbed in their plans, war desperate, and as they find the ground being cut from under their feet, their petty little trick being exposed, in their impotent rage they lose all self control, plunging and floundering in their helplessness, and as a last resort betake themselves to what is most congenial to their nature—vulgar and personal abuse. They hope by this to draw away the attention of the ratepayers from the enormity of their whole conduct, which having been unearthed and brought to light is "a monster of such frightful mien"

"That to be hated needs but to be seen." "

I will not follow the unique style of the Review, well sustained as it is by his satellite "progress"—nor ask you to defile your columns by the use of such chaste language as they adopt, save when necessary to quote from their effusions, the full force of their meaning being only conveyed in their own choice phraseology, but will confine myself to a review of their assertions and charges, made in the the light of knowing who the honorable, "honest" and "manly" men are who make them.

If the scheme be what is claimed for it, why don't the gentlemen discuss the question on its merits? The question to be considered by the ratepayers is not the motives governing one or another of the advocates of either scheme. But what are the merits of the plans proposed? What the effectiveness of each? What the relative cost? and what value the town is to receive for the money proposed to be expended? I have endeavoured to keep these points fairly before the public in every instance where I have taken part in the discussion of the question, and do not now nor at any future time intend to allow the abusive attacks of the Review or his satellites to cover up their tracks by a tirade of "Billingsgate" such as we only find in the columns of that disreputable sheet.

The purity of the water, the first argument in favor of their scheme is a myth, which has again and again been exposed, and requires nothing further to convince the ratepayers of its stupidity. But when we find the Review urging Ashburnham by all means to go in for water works, and expatiating on the many advantages of a good supply of water, it is hard to conceive that the water so strongly urged upon the people of Ashburnham is the same which has only passed from Dickson's pond, the source of all the foul water in the Otonabee river, and which is denounced as totally unfit for use by Mr Haslitt and his friends, but considered by them quite good enough for Ashburnham, we are forced to exclaim "consistency! thou art a jewel." I have no doubt the people of Ashburnham will appreciate the compliment and accept with grace the argument of their benefactor. "A constant supply would undoubtedly improve the health and comfort of the inhabitants," but more when the water having passed through the town and received all the impurities, which the sewerage system of Peterboro' is before getting into the Little Lake, it has become so pure that we find it eagerly sought after as a luxury, and, I have no doubt, reaches the tables of most of our fastidious townsmen—the Review and "Progress" not excepted. How is this? Perhaps under the recent discovery for filtering, known as "the Trout process," by some mysterious agency the water in flowing past a body of clay may undergo a purifying process, and as we know there is a large deposit of clay on the west bank of the river at the Review's brick works, the water in passing may be subjected to such an influence as to remove everything deleterious. This is a simple method and the only way that I can account for this strange phenomenon.

But my offer to withdraw my opposition to the extravagant scheme, provided the "Dickson property were to be exempt from water rates,' and which was made to show the fallacy of the charge that "my course was influenced only by the choice of site," was predicated upon the assumption that no water service nor fire protection should be extended to that property, and not as the Review falsely and "disgracefully" represents, with the full knowledge of his charge being wholly untrue. To my objection to the unnecessary and extravagant cost of the "Review's" scheme The same unanswerable argument (?) that "Water will run down hill" is persistently plied with the same air of superiority as if some new principle were propounded for the first time, but I will not waste time in seriously considering such silly trash.

The assertion that my facts and figures are untrue and unsupported to those of the most celebrated engineers, I can afford to leave to the discrimination of an intelligent community. If untrue why does the "Review" neglect to expose the untruth. If supported to the most celebrated engineers let him quote his panchaat for water works with all their "sequences," especially in the shape of tile piping being too well known by the ratepayers.

And here I would call attention to the wilful misstatements of the "Review." I say wilful because he deliberately and knowingly, with my article to the "Times" of the 26th ult., before him, in which I submitt an extract from a report of the president of the Water Works Co of Syracuse N. Y., stating the "city had two reservoirs, one at the height of 120 ft and another at 160 ft." feet by the flow of natural streams. And yet we find that they were abandoned as "not only unnecessary but entirely superfluous," and in reply the "Review" asserts that the instances quoted to the contrary are "where no facilities offer for the construction of a reservoir without enormous cost. Can anything more "disgraceful" be imagined. But enough of the "Review," "the centre of the system," and now for his satellites. And of "Progress," a star of the first magnitude, I would say, that his paper at the abilities of the opponents of his scheme sits lightly, and when the public see the gentleman unmasked they will be the judges of his pretensions to honesty and public spiritedness.

"Progress," like all others who advocate the scheme, tries to divert attention from the question by charges of "reckless assertion." "It is not honest to say 'unmanly statements?' But if my assertions are reckless let them be exposed. If dishonest let them be disproved, and if my charge of men grasping, under a false pretence, the people's money be unmanly I will leave the ratepayers to judge when I announce that Mr. David William Dumble is the reputed author of the article signed "Progress." No wonder the gentleman waxes wroth and denounces me for exposing his tricks. The fact of his being the leader of almost every act of extravagance the present Council has perpetrated, makes him feel more ti an any other Councillor the odium of their recklessness and goads him to revenge, hence the "able, honest, and manly" article signed "Progress." "Progress" is excessively honest. I speak of him in his public capacity as Councillor. He shows it by skulking behind an anonymous signature to make his misstatements and reckless assertions in defence of acts, his connection with which he is not "manly" enough to acknowledge over D. W. D. No, he sneaks behind his mask and prefers to stab in the dark in hopes that some of his poisoned shafts may stick. The Auburn bonus, the Railroad Station and the school question I can afford to pass. I am prepared to stand by my action in those matters at any time and place required. But the "unkindest cut" of all is the $2000 to the Directors of the Huron and Quebec R. R. scheme. Here we see him in his two-fold office as Councillor holding on with one hand to the public purse—protecting it with all his might—but with the other, and "that the right hand too," looking after the interests of our public spirited men,—of whom he is one—who having paid out "thousands of dollars" to promote the scheme, now very honestly desire to recoup themselves at the expense of the ratepayers. His assertion in reference to the site and the construction of the works, "that the matter is wholly open" is unworthy even of "Progress" The By-law now submitted was framed in reference to certain plans and estimates—and if cavied must necessarily imply the carrying out of the same, and on the good faith of which the ratepayers are requested to say by their votes whether they will have the work done as proposed. Is it therefore consistent with the "honest" role "Progress" assumes to cajole and mislead the ratepayers by so dishonest a statement? If the advocates of the present scheme had "honestly adduced" their arguments and had confined themselves to facts and figures rather than abuse and misrepresentation, we might now have had an effective scheme for water works for fire purposes well nigh matured, and therefore I charge upon the promoters of the present scheme that they are the men fairly chargeable as obstructionists, and who have hitherto prevented the Town's progress in this respect. Regretting exceedingly the personal character that my communication has necessarily assumed, being driven in self-defence to adopt the course I have done, and thanking you for your continued courtesy,

I am, &c.,

Peruvian Syrup vs. Alcoholic Tonics.

It has been a desideratum with the medical profession to prepare a preparation of iron less objectionable than any of those now in use, which often procure unfavorable effects upon the system, especially when prepared with alcoholic fluids.

In many cases of debility and convalescence from disease; where a tonic is indicated, wine, brandy, porter, &c., have been recommended; but these are of very doubtful efficacy, to say the least. Alcohol is never digested, is ranked among the diffusable stimuli, and is incapable of affording nutrition. It creates generally an unnatural excitement and derangement of the circulation, irritating the whole system by preventing the blood from losing its carbon Again, how difficult it is to obtain an article approaching to purity, almost all the wines, brandies, porters, &c., being more or less adulterated.

Such being the case with regard to the spirituous preparations of iron, and the alcoholic drinks, of which any one can satisfy himself by investigating the subject, an opportunity is now presented in the Peruvian Syrup, for the trial of an article in general practice, which has the very strongest recommendations from medical and scientific men of the highest character—a preparation which so happily combines the protoxide of iron with the other constituent parts that the effect incident to the use of iron salts are entirely obviated.

For all cases in which iron or any tonic is needed, this preparation is confidently believed to be far superior to any other. It seems to purify the very fountain of health.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, G. W. Gregory, Fred Paget and L. D. H. Poore, Centennial Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W. the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Huston, B. Fernan, Mrs. Dr. Herald, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Doncon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "it is a perfect Ruby Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from ⅛ of an inch thick down to gauze, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W. will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

A LECTURE

TO YOUNG MEN!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM,

—FOR—

Coughs, Colds, Bronchial and all Throat Affections.

The Gum which exudes from the Red Spruce tree is, without doubt, the most valuable native Gum for Medicinal purposes.

Its remarkable power in relieving certain severe forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large. In this Syrup (carefully prepared at low temperature), containing a large quantity of the finest picked Gum in complete solution, all the Tonic Expectorant, Balsamac and Anti-Spasmodic effects of the Red Spruce Gum are fully preserved. For sale at all Drug Stores. Price, 25 cents per bottle.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT? A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man."—A. Maybee Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'one of the best medicines they have ever used;' it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rusar, Township Percy writes, "I persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers Price, 25 cents.

ELECTRICITY.

Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold—Pain cannot stay where it is used.

—It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents' worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures catarrh, asthma, and croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years' standing. It cures swelled neck, tumors, rheumatism, neuralgia, contraction of the muscles, stiff joints, spinal difficulties, and pain and soreness in any part, no matter where it may be, nor from what cause it may arise, it always does you good. Twenty-five cents worth has cured bad cases of chronic and bloody dysentery. One tea-spoonful cures colic in 15 minutes. It will cure any case of piles that it is possible to cure. Six or eight applications is warranted to cure any case of excoriated nipples or inflamed breast. For bruises, if applied, often and bound up, there is never the slightest discoloration to the skin. It stops the pain of a burn as soon as applied. Cures frosted feet, boils, warts, and corns, and wounds of every description on man or beast.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. See that the signature of S. N. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price, 25 cts, NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion.

NOTE.—Eclectric—Selected and Electrised.

The Most Valuable Gift—Restoration of the Health.

During the past ten years the proprietor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy has faithfully redeemed every promise and guarantee made to the public over his signature. Alarming and apparently hopeless cases of Lung Diseases, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Afflictions of the Kidney and Chronic Complaints of every description, including Scrofula and Skin Diseases of life-long duration, have been permanently removed and eradicated. Those who volunteered their testimony to the efficacy of the Remedy are not bogus people in unheard-of localities of foreign states, but respectable citizens of this Dominion, easy of access and open to question, upon whose verbal recommendations we are willing to test the reputation of the Great Shoshonees Remedy. If you are afflicted do not delay until medicine may be powerless to aid you. No injurious effects can possibly follow the use of these Indian Remedies, as they contain no minerals, by which the fate of the invalid is so often sealed under the form of some temporary sedative or stimulant. These Indian Remedies are widely known and still possess the public confidence after the lapse of sufficient time to test their efficacy.

The Shoshonees Vegetable Sugar Coated Pills have won for themselves the most fervent reputation of any pill before the public. Their efficacy has been fully proved as a remedy for Biliousness, Sick Headache, and Constipation of the stomach. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills 25 cts. a box.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 16, 1877

NO LONGER A QUESTION.

The water works scheme as set down in the by-law prepared for the popular vote on the 31st instant has fallen to pieces. Its advocates on coming before the public were only able to display the weakness of their position, chosen, let us charitably hope, by zeal for the town's defence from fire, and combined with immaturity of judgment on the matter they attempted to take action in thus rashly. The meetings last week gave the public the first opportunity they have yet had of hearing this water works scheme discussed in all its bearings; and the result is just what we expected—a complete condemnation of the project. Indeed we are rather inclined to pity the warm promoters of the scheme for the uncomfortable position in which they found themselves. The warmest advocates of the by-law, aside from glittering generalities or danger from fire, could say nothing at all in favour of their hitherto pet scheme, and surrendered before being asked. In his opening speech at the Third Ward Meeting Mr. Dumble hinted that he was willing to yield the site at Hilliard's in favor of one at Armour's Hill, and later he stated that "it was not necessary to carry out the whole plan now. The Holly system might be adopted now and the reservoir added hereafter." Mr. Trout too, who had been publicly thanked by the advocates of the scheme for his valuable assistance to them, stated that "even the reservoir could be dispensed with." Here we find complete acquiescence by those gentlemen to the views expressed by The Examiner during the past fortnight in regard to this water works scheme; and the meeting, taking this confession of the faulty character of the by-law as an evidence of its utter worthlessness,—not to say danger—as a whole formally expressed the opinion "that inasmuch as there has been no fully developed scheme laid down wherein is an efficient system of water works for fire and domestic purposes to warrant us in voting for the same, and whereas we deem it inexpedient to incur such an expenditure, we therefore pledge ourselves to vote down the said water works By-law."

At the meeting in the Second Ward too the advocates of the by-law capitulated without striking a blow in defence of their former project. Mr. H. H. Smith at the beginning of the proceedings begging the case by remarking that "the Commissioners might be instructed to choose another site if it were preferred." Here again, Mr. Dumble, the chief hope and main stay of the by-law advocates, declared that "if they did not wish to have a reservoir at present they could postpone its construction;" also that a choice between Hilliard's or Armour's Hill was "a question for engineers."

To again this tacit acknowledgement of coupling was promptly met by a condemnation of the by-law similar to that pronounced at the Third Ward meeting. It may be true, as some uncharitable people allege, that this giving up of both site and reservoir was an attempt to induce the people to vote for the by-law with the understanding that all details were as an open question, a suspicion that is strengthened by the assertion of other by-law speakers that the only question was, "water works or none." But it must be remarked that neither Mr. Dumble nor Mr. Trout advocated any such absurd fallacy; and only on proof of their having an understanding with others who did, can they be accused of the trick hinted at. We think no one will try so far-fetched an argument to accuse them of any dishonesty of purpose. In their defence be it said of Mr. Trout that he distinctly remarked on their being "a definite plan and estimates;" and of Mr. Dumble that he plainly stated he "only wished to secure and benefit the town." The gentlemen meet at least be considerate in regard of any such charge as that hinted at till they are found guilty, and proofs of guilt there are none.

We hardly know what cause to assign for the moving of the absurd amendments put forward at these ward meetings; and we can only account for them on the theory that there are some who are found of framing resolutions, no matter what they express. It would be sheer folly to ask the Council to submit a by-law in certain terms as regards the cost, class and manner of construction and supervision, knowing so well that the defects of the present by-law are owing to its arbitrary provisions, and the haste at which certain conclusions were jumped. That other trouble all along has been want of examination fully details, of cost, etc., but of various sites, systems, estimates, &c., and our folly should be a warning against perpetrating another. The committee for a committee to prepare a new plan and estimates within a week was equally absurd, not only on account of the time proposed to be short for so important a matter, but also because this resolution proposed no means of disposing of the scheme already on the carpet. In an earnest case for water-works it will be well to hasten slowly, and to say and all of the extra-zealous ones we would say,

"Be sure you are off with the old love
Before you are on with the new."

But the most laughable feature of all was the cool request of Mr. Hilliard that the opponents of the scheme that meets his favour should bring down some plan of their own, or hold their peace. The townspeople are afflicted sufficiently already with a contest over one scheme laid down in a by-law and the estimate that, according to the terms of the Act, accompanies it. A pretty time then they would have did a fight arise over two rival plans! The present proposition is sure to be rejected on its merits—or rather its lack of merit; but were it opposed by another definite plan, even if it were better, not backed by its by-law, there would be some hope of its acceptance. Thus Mr. Hilliard's anxiety for a rival plan is easily accounted for. Mr. Hilliard proposed another plan in his own speech, though perhaps unwittingly, when he quoted "one of the best authorities" as saying "everything is done by nature, except the laying of pipes." Simply lay the pipes then avoid the expense of further works, reject the Hilliard reservoir as useless and tell a certain person there is no need that he should offer to give water to run a wheel at night. Nature has done all except laying the pipe, you know!

Another ludicrous complaint of a prominent promoter of the by-law was that the opponents would not speak first at the Second Ward meeting. The meeting had been called to discuss the proposed scheme, and till that was placed before those present there could be nothing to discuss. Mr. Smith's reading of the sub-committee's report and his declaration that they had chosen a site for the reasons given in that report, amounted to simply nothing; for the chief trouble is in the incompleteness, not to say plain favouritism, of the report mentioned. As we have shown before the report ignores all sites but one, and instead of reasons it rather gives apologies for the choice of that one. Therefore, with no question before it, the meeting could not very well enter upon an intelligent discussion. Besides, the meeting was called at the request of the promoters of the by-law; and they therefore had the right to explain the reasons of their requisition to the Mayor. Had their opponents taken the floor before them they would have had a reason for complaint that their meeting was taken out of their hands and arbitrarily controlled by the opponents of the scheme. Perhaps this is what they wanted, in order that they might raise a cry of a "packed meeting" the "choking off of discussion" and other howls of a like nature, to be used as electioneering watchwords. If so, they were immensely disappointed; as the opponents of the scheme profess to know something of the properties at meetings. At least they are not likely to fall into so transparent a trap as that set for them in the Second Ward. Taking it all in all the by-law and the scheme has met with general condemnation; and their promoters have only succeeded in making themselves supremely ridiculous.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH PLEA.

We had thought that the "wholesome supply" phrase was entirely abandoned by the advocates of the hydraulic-hydrostatic water-works scheme; but we notice in last weeks Review a letter in which Dr. W. H. Burritt attempts to bolster it up,—by words, however, for his sentences contain no sound argument. Indeed, like others who try to defend a weak cause, he asserts too much for the stability of his own position. His declaration, that Peterborough has a very defective, or almost no system of drainage," is in itself an argument against the construction of water-works without considering a drainage system in connection. If the drainage be ineffective now when but little water is thrown on the surface compared with the quantity the use and waste from water-works would scatter, the town surely would suffer more from damp exhalations in the suppositions than it does in the real case. But with filteration through twenty-six feet of gravel, (as Dr. Burritt describes the soil,) there can be little or no impurity enter the wells from the surface. Dr. Burritt's knowledge of the diseases which prevail in this town, and the preponderance of typhoid symptoms, does credit to his observation; but his opinion, that the water drunk is the cause is no compliment to his penetration. Will Dr. Barrit state fairly that the typhoid symptoms of which he speaks are more prevalent in the lower portions of the town, and along the very stream from which it is proposed to draw a water supply for domestic use? Or will he attempt to deny that such is the case?

We do not propose to defend the drainage system of Peterborough from Dr. Burritt's aspersions. We agree with him that it is bad; but we see plainly that the construction of water-works independent of drainage works would make matters in a sanitary sense worse instead of better. For this reason we are ready to condemn any hastily conceived and rashly precipitated scheme of water-works, particularly one which offers for domestic use only the unfiltered water of a shallow river, accessible for 9 miles to the drainage accumulations and the deposit of vegetable and animal matter of the most disgusting character. Whatever be the defects of the well-water of Peterborough we are inclined to use it in preference to that taken directly from the Otonabee; for with all due deference to Dr. Burritt's opinion, we fail to see why water filtering through twenty-six feet of gravel should not be better than that taken from a river which in a course of 9 miles must receive many barn yard and other impurities together with the impurities of the large and growing village of Lakefield and the vegetable decomposition in its course. On this point we are quite willing to set against the opinion of Dr. Burrit that of Dr. Kinosid, who at the public meeting last Wednesday evening warned his hearers to "be careful in constructing water-works to secure pure water, so that the town, which he considered one of the most healthy in the Dominion, might not suffer from a defective system of water-works as proposed by the advocates of the present scheme." He also very plainly stated that the Otonabee could not be fit for domestic use. It is plain that from the public health point of view the proposed scheme of water works meets only with condemnation; therefore, for this, if from other reasons, the by-law should be defeated.

In all the ratepayers will do the same [illegible] Smith and Romaine [illegible] By-Law would certainly [illegible] But they are not.

"MORE INACCURACIES."

Under this caption the Review takes up its self task in its usual style of dogmatic abuse over this water works controversy. The proprietor who is also chief prompter of an extravagant outlay for unnecessary water works, has grown old in this, his usual course, and to hope for a change now, or until his decease would be hoping against hope indeed. He accuses us of incorrect statement when we said:—"claims would be made for compensation to those whose property would be entered." His reasons for so affirming are childish. Were we not told again and again as the meetings by Mr. Romaine and others that the present By-law contemplated no particular scheme, place of construction, or plans, that these were matters of detail to be settled by engineers, commissioners, or the Town Council? With these public assertions ringing in our ears, and having the assurance that the whole was to be placed under the supervision of a "ring," what might be expected to follow for compensation and other items for friends and advocates? and this the more especially when there was no proper plan or scheme devised. Then too, our reference to "jobs" indicate ignorance. But this, coming from the Review, can be tolerated, as the proprietor is under the influence of a water works mania, which largely robs him of his usual quantum of intelligence, for which he must substitute abuse. We have read the Act, and come to the conclusion that it must be removed from our Statute books. There is not a lawyer in town who can understand it. Even Mr. Romaine, who claims its paternity, cannot explain it, and our wisest heads say that a Philadelphia lawyer would be as helpless in coming to a clear understanding of its meaning. It is so nicely (?) got up, that it means anything or nothing, just as it may suit the ends of its promoters. To refer us to the Act and accuse us of ignorance because we cannot understand it places us side by side with Mr. Dumble, Mr. Dennistoun, Mr. Edmison, and even Mr. Romaine, who admitted at the meeting at Mr. Hamilton's foundry that he had not very clear views of the meaning thereof. We have sometimes to admit our inability to understand the Review's reasoning, but we can assure our contemporary that we were never more driven to our wits ends than in trying to decipher this Water Works Act. And we certainly do advise the proprietor never to attempt legislating again, lest as in this particular case, he may not only prove the ignorance of his friends and opponents but also his own, that is if brought to the standard of being able to decipher his literary productions. We will not be so cruel as to hint that there may have been motives for giving us a statute that no one can understand; or, to use the words of a Q. C., "an ambiguous statute," one that can be read more ways than one. It might become convenient for commissioners hereafter.

WATER WORKS.

This matter has been so fully discussed before and by the ratepayers that little more requires to be said just now. The people everywhere are opposed to the outlay at present. The heavy taxes caused by present and past expenditures causes the taxpayers to be careful and cautious in beginning new schemes, lest the burdens become insupportable. There are a few citizens anxious to see Water Works on an economical plan for fire purposes only. These gentlemen believe that when water for other purposes is required, those interested will be more willing to put their hands in their pockets to meet the necessary outlay. The cry that there is "no pure water in the Town," is without a shadow of reason or truth. As perhaps no town in Canada is so well supplied, on the whole, with pure water, excepting the small portion lying along George between Brock and Charlotte Streets, and in this section wells and water closets are too often in close proximity, but in this portion of the Town there are only two or three families. As is well known the place is occupied by stores and storehouses. But it is useless to refer to the matter. If permitted to go to vote it will be defeated by a large majority. We therefore approve of the withdrawal of it, lest a vote condemnatory of the whole water works scheme be so demonstrative that it may be impossible to introduce the question for a very indefinite time a sin.

SHOULD THE PEOPLE HAVE A CHOICE?

The Review charges us with inaccuracies in our reference to its pet water works scheme. We are not infallible. We may make mistakes unwittingly; but in this water-works discussion we have no interest in wishing to deliberately deceive the public. We referred to the probability—and almost certainty—of arbitrations on claims for compensation in connection with the construction of works. This we are told is grossly incorrect because Mr. Hilliard would give the site and the pipes would be laid under the public streets, hence there would be no "claims for compensation." We did not know that Mr. Hilliard's kindness was wholly unconditional. In fact we don't think he would make the statement in a way that he might be bound by it. As there seems to be already a misunderstanding on this point, there is early proof of the probability of an arbitration case did the proposed project go into effect.

As regards the Review's denial that the Act provides for a decision of the ratepayers on the mode of construction and superintendence of water works we ask him simply to read the act again and see who is ignorant and who impudent in deception.

Strange.—Mr. Ellis, Civil Engineer of Toronto, is in town, we believe for the purpose of making another estimate for the water works advocates. Who pays his expenses for this, or is he just doing it for fun? We ask the ratepayers to give this water works by-law their attention and not be gulled by any system of water works until the Act is amended and a by-law with proper estimates put before them. Does he say that Mr. Hilliard's Hill is high enough for gravitation purposes? Can he build a reservoir sufficient to accomodate a town the size of Peterborough for the sum of $4,000. Perhaps Mr. Ellis could explain for the benefit of Mr. Romaine and his friends what is the real meaning of the Water Works Act, or does it mean anything at all?

A TESTIMONIAL.

To the credit of Peterborough we clip the following from the Mail of Saturday last in reference to the abilities of Dr. Kinosid as a physician a perusal of which speaks for itself:—

Sir,—Allow me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to thank Dr. R. Kinosid, of Peterboro, Ont., for the very skilful manner he has cured my wife and son; the first of a very bad attack of sciatica, of two years' standing, and the second of an affection of the throat, which baffled the skill of medical men for upwards of twelve years. My wife's case was pronounced incurable by New York and Ontario Physicians. Hearing of Dr. Kinosid's success in some very difficult cases, I determined to consult him, as a last resource, when on a careful examination of each case, he pronounced, without hesitation, his belief that both were curable. I am now thankful to say that, under Providence, he has made a complete cure in both instances.

Wishing the Doctor every success in his noble profession.

I remain, yours truly,
W. M. NICHOLLS.
Wilby Cottage, Lakefield.

The Review last week complained that "freeholders do not take a great interest in informing themselves more accurately with reference to the present Water Works By-law now before them;" and it comments on "the amount of ignorance to be met with in reference to the details of the scheme." We have before commented on the nefariousness with which the public was treated both by the Committee which drew up the report, and those who formed the By-law on the basis of that report. The advocates of this scheme first perpetrated a fraud on the people of the town, and now their journalistic mouthpiece insults the freeholders by a reference to their ignorance as regards the proposition. How could people be other than ignorant of that which was not explained to them in any way? It is not to be supposed that the freeholders were expected to search out measurements, elevations, estimates &c., for themselves. Yet this is pretty much what they had to do; for no data whatever was given them in the committee's report; and the estimates published with the By-law are utterly worthless, unless one goes behind them for facts, calculations, and comparisons. The public meetings in the second, third and fourth wards exactly right when they declared by formal resolution that "there has been no fully developed scheme laid down."

Making allusion to those property owners of Peterborough who refuse to sanction the present absurd proposition for water works (and they are very many who so refuse) the Review declares they "court the destruction of their property by fire." That sounds very much like the threat of an incendiary, doesn't it? Couldn't a few fires be arranged before the vote, to frighten property holders into voting "yea?"

Perhaps the greatest joke of the water works discussion is the Review caviller's reference to "purer" water. Does he acknowlege thereby that the water now used in town for domestic purposes is pure; but that he would have that impossible quality he describes as "purer?" or has the critic merely been writing slip-shod English? If he wants water "more than pure" he can certainly get it from the Otonabee; but if he simply wants to murder the Queen's English, he can do that just as well by writing on any other subject than water works. The "genius" seems to have struck an important principle in physical science, too. He talks of water being "poisoned by noxious infilterations," and of its being "rendered 'purer' by the complete aeration caused by nine miles of almost continued rapids over rock and gravel beds." Preposterous! Filteration has always been considered a method of purifying water, and indeed the "genius" himself proposes, not six lines lower down, to filter his "purer" water, to obtain what he calls "a still more luxurious state of purity." There now! Pure water, according to this savant, is "poisoned by noxious infilterations," while "purer" water attains a "still more luxurious state of purity" by "complete aeration" caused by a nine miles' flow "over rock and gravel beds." D'ye see? No? Well, we don't either. "Complete aeration" bothers us, too. We know that effervescing summer drinks are aerated. Happy thought! Perhaps the combination propose to supply a sort of soda water from Hilliard's Hill. True it would be rather warm after nine miles "over rock and gravel beds;" but we are told of its "complete aeration," and ice could be added, and other "fixin's" to suit the taste. Why, with different kinds of syrups and flavors you could make "pop" of any kind you wanted! Think that's not what he means? Then the next public meeting had better appoint a deputation to ask the profound pundit what he does mean.

The Water Works Meetings.—That inasmuch as a full and unbiased expression of the Ratepayers have been given on the Water Works By-law at the Ward Meetings, it is quite unnecessary for the Ratepayers to annoy themselves paying any attention to the public meeting called to discuss the matter in Mr. Bradburn's Hall on Friday evening. No doubt but the By-law before the people at present will receive the reward that it deserves at the poll on Tuesday. Let those who want water works, and are such great friends of the poor man, bring forward a by-law with proper estimates, and we will discuss the matter with them pro and con, before putting "these poor men" who can't get a clear drop of water to drink, to the expense of submitting a by-law to be rejected.

"HOME AGAIN."

So Councillor Smith is "home again." Ready as ever to make his mark, he heralds his return on Monday evening in the Council by another original motion; this time a public meeting of the ratepayers of the whole town must be called—Councillor Smith disdains doing things by halves. The last series of meetings were paltry,—only ward meetings—called by no one known who, although it was surmised that the Councillor had a finger in the "pie." But when Councillor Smith speaks or acts in propria personæ he always says or does something worthy of Councillor Smith; and now that he has got new light on municipal matters, and discovered that the ratepayers can understand a plain question plainly put, I trust he will not have any unexpected call to keep him away from his own meeting on Friday evening, and that he will be there to explain his position on his own popular measures for water works.

But curiously, why did not Councillor Smith attend the Ward Meetings called by himself and his friends, and enlighten the understanding of the ignorant ratepayers? and not make it necessary for them to be called together on a public meeting, at which, unfortunately given that any other question affecting the pecuniary interests of the Peterboro water works would be discussed? Councillor Smith in such a cap as he makes it unnecessary to prosecute the question any further. But Councillor Smith is well read, and has no doubt learned the history of "The Impertinate Widow" and the lesson is inculcated thereby, and thinks by "courting "ally" plying the public meetings and protracting them till an unreasonable hour, he may be able to snatch a verdict for his pet scheme at the last moment.

Ratepayers, look out for "the Councillor, and don't let him catch you napping," for while he eschews public meetings he is big in discussing questions in the council, the committee rooms, and the street corners, and has undoubted ability in "button holing" and spinning, and all for "the interest of the public" and the "benefit of the ratepayers," for he has no private motive to serve.

The ratepayers are now pretty well in possession of the merits of the scheme, and would not wisely set to trouble themselves about the councillors meeting on Friday night. Let him disport himself among the friends of his scheme to his hearts content; he can then indulge in some of his choice rhetorical flights,—especially if there should be no opposition. But be careful on Tuesday, the 21st instant, to go early to the poll and disabuse the minds of Councillor Smith and his clique of the idea that the people of Peterboro are in their hands,—ready to be moulded and fashioned according to their will. Show them by the majority against the by-law for water works that you can understand what you consider your own interest apart from the dictation of the few gifted men who now control the destinies of our town, and who have done so much to deter outsiders from turning to Peterboro as a desirable place to settle in, by the false cry of impure water, epidemic, disease, great, mortality, and all the other evils that follow in its train. These are our "Patriots," Plague upon such "Patriots," I say.

OBSERVER.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I had intended to give a more detailed statement of the probable cost of water works as proposed by its advocates, but as there is no probability of its acceptance by the ratepayers, it is unnecessary to trouble you further. The kind manner in which the Review refers to my last communication indicates a moderation unusual, and is so simple and void of argument, that a reference thereto is not needed. It is to be hoped that if ever another discussion on this or any other question affecting the ratepayers arises, that personalities will be excluded from the meetings. By accepting this advice and a prudence towards opponents, progress may more certainly be secured. I sincerely hope that every unkind word uttered during the discussion will be forgotten, and that when the question shall be again introduced, several persons now on opposite sides will be enabled to agree to work together. This can be attained by moderation in speech and economy in outlay.

I am, yours,
J. STRATTON.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, AUG. 16, 1877.

Are you going to the circus.

More Circus Coming.—It will have a good house.

"C. F. H." your communication will appear next week.

Our Californian letter will appear next week. Crowded out of this issue.

The Rate for the Village of Ashburnham is to be 10 mills on the dollar.

The Moon will be totally eclipsed on the 26th inst. No assisted glass is required to see it.

Lakefield will excurt to Mt. Julien to-morrow. Hope the divers from St. Catharines won't strike—ignition.

On Dit.—That Messrs. Edmison, Rutherford, Wyte and Lynch are the coming men for Ward No. 2. A few days will settle the question.

That Water Works By-law has one chance to pass. People look on it with such contempt that they may not take the trouble to vote against it.

A Meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Council Chamber, on Thursday evening, the 30th inst., at 7.30 p.m. A full attendance is requested.

We understand the Rev. E. F. Torrance intends, D. V. to preach in his own pulpit, St. Paul's church here on Sabbath first, 19th inst., both morning and evening.

If you want to see at the local news in a larger head in a memorandum of any occurrence that comes under your observation. Reporters cannot be expected to know anything about anything they don't know anything about.

Raising Extraordinary.—Last week Mr. Robert Byers, of Ballyhobero', with the assistance of his four sons, cut with a Boyce Reaper, 10 acres of wheat and bound it between 5.30 and 11.30 a.m. Who can beat this?

There will be a meeting of the members of the St. Andrew's Society on Thursday evening next, the 31st inst., in the Council Chamber, at 8 o'clock p.m., to take into consideration the advisability of having a picnic. A full attendance is requested.

Not a Candidate.—As the rumor is prevalent that Mr. J. McClelland is a candidate as Councillor for No. 3 Ward, in the place of Mr. John Elder, resigned, he wishes us to state that he is not, and will not be a candidate for that vacancy this year.

Another Fire.—On Saturday morning about 12.30 a.m., a fire broke out in a house belonging to Mr. H. Strathburn, in the north of the Town. The house was vacant at the time and the fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The building was insured.

The Presbyterians of Norwood have purchased from Mr. Wm. C. Scott that very desirable lot on the corner of Queen and Colborne streets, for the purpose of erecting their new church thereon. A more eligible site for the object intended could not be obtained anywhere.

Fire.—A fire broke out on Thursday morning last in the back kitchen of the residence of Mr. Webb, in Englishtown. The morning was very wet and was all that could be desired for quenching the flames, but notwithstanding this the house was totally consumed. Insured in Canada Fire and Marine for $400.

Removal.—In a few days Miss E. Delaney will remove her Millinery and Mantle Rooms to the shop lately occupied by Mr. P. D. Dorar, which has been completely refitted for her millinery business, which has increased so much of late that she has been compelled to remove to more commodious premises. Read advertisement in our next issue.

Too Late.—We have received the following late for this issue, a communication from Mr. W. H. Trout in reply to Mr. Hewitt. If it would have thrown any new light on the meaning of the Water Works Act, or have discussed the question in point we would have inserted it instead of other matter, but his article is a personal attack on Mr. H. and would be of no interest to our readers.

Personal.—Mr. D. K. Townsend, excursion agent for the great London show was in Town yesterday making arrangements with the railway company and the steamboats to run cheap excursions to Peterborough on the day of the show. The steamers Cobourg, Whitby, and Ontario will carry passengers from different points to Peterborough on the above date, arriving in time to witness the grand street pageant. The Midland Railway will issue excursion tickets good for two days.

A Hint.—As will be seen by posters the Council have called a public meeting for Friday evening to discuss the question of Water Works. The people are tired of these meetings and want no more of their annoyance, they will serve no good purpose in this case. Already the people have heard both sides of the question and are determined to vote the matter down, hence the folly of calling people together to hear a personal encounter, where recrimination and abuse take the place of argument.

An Error.—In the following answer to a question put to Dr. Burritt by the Coroner at the late inquest, the word "not" appeared in the first line, which Dr. Burritt says is an error, and which changes the evidence materially.—"I do not think it could have been as much decomposed in five weeks, but I don't think taking the whole appearance of the body into consideration, that it could have had this appearance which it has if it had only been dead for five weeks." It should have read, "I do think it could, &c."

Retention.—Mr. Geo. A. Cox, in a few days will extend another branch wire of the Montreal Telegraph Company to the Foundry of Mr. Peter Hamilton, for the use of the citizens of the first ward, but more particularly for the benefit of Mr. Hamilton, and Messrs. Dunne & Sperry, who have now in running order their grist mill south of the market, a notice of which will appear in our next issue. This will be a great convenience to parties residing in this ward, and is another mark of the enterprise of this gentleman.

Masonic.—The Grand Priory of Masons met in London yesterday; the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons met to-day and the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters also met in the same city. According to Bro. Drummond, of Maine, there are 68 Grand Lodges in Canada and the United States. The total membership is 628,619. During the past year 38,715 were raised, 17,228 restored, 12,522 withdrawn, 1,629 expelled, 1,512 suspended for unmasonic conduct, 17,381 for non-payment of dues; rejected, 3,193; died, 7,169. The net increase was 3,380 Exchange.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the greatest living medical advertiser, is flatteringly mentioned as a candidate for the office of Mayor of Buffalo, the Queen City of the Lakes. Let other advertisers and other medical men imitate his example, and we shall hope in time to record the fact of similar distinctions conferred upon them a". They cannot all be Mayor of Buffalo, but each may become great in his own locality, or, what is better, great in the consciousness of a great deal of money judiciously spent. We tender him be mayor!—New York Sun, June 8th, 1877.

Young Canadians' Pic-Nic.—The annual Pic-nic and Excursion of Young Canadians L. O. L. No. 1876, will be held this year at Rice Wood, Rice Lake, per steamer Golden-eye, on Tuesday, 28th of August next. The character and general management of former pic-nics by the members of this Lodge have always been of the very best standing, and from the names of the committee under whose management the present one takes place, there is no doubt but that it will exceed any previous one. The Omeni's Band and strawberry band will accompany the excursion. A good time generally is expected.

Musical Society Entertain and Concert.—We beg to remind our readers of the excursion under the auspices of the Society to Campbellstown on Tuesday afternoon next. We are sure a more pleasant afternoon could not be spent than by accompanying the Society upon this excursion. The distance is not great and a grand open air concert will be given at the pic-nic grounds. No one can complain of the price of tickets which are only 50 cents including both excursion and concert. For sale at Rutledge's book store. Parties are particularly requested to procure tickets before going on board. Steamer leaves at 1.30 p.m. We trust there will be a good turn out.

The Rotoscopean Independent puts its foot firmly down on the Organ Question that has for some time been discussed in its columns by correspondents, having found out that it no longer interests the public. In a preface to the last letter admitted, the Independent says:—"Before quoting the subject it is due to Mr. Duncan McLeod, of Peterborough, the gentleman in the agricultural machine interest, to say that he is not the writer of a former letter in the Independent, signed with that name. Mr. McLeod has written to us, and called upon us, and explained with perhaps more energy than was needed, that it has been a great annoyance to him to be connected in the public mind with the authorship of that letter."

We have received the following query, and in reply state that if the party who penned the production will send us his real name, not for publication, but as a guarantee that he needs the information, we will give him what "otio experience we have had in the matter, but if any of our lady readers wish to answer it under an anonymous signature, we will give them a portion of our columns for that purpose.

To the Editor.

DEAR SIR,—Would you be so kind as to inform me through the columns of your paper the proper manner of offering your arm to a lady when walking with her on the street.

YOUR, &c.,

GREENHORN.

Promenade Concert.—There will be a promenade concert in the drill shed on Thursday evening the 30th inst., under the auspices of the Peterborough Firemen's Band, assisted by the splendid band of the Orange Young Britons of Port Hope. The concert is got up we believe, by the band for the purpose of assisting them to purchase a few instruments so that they might be enabled to play for the regimental Exhibitions to be held in Lindsay next month. We hope that the citizens of the Town will turn out in large numbers and assist them, as we have now only the one band in the Town to support, and that the Town Council will look favorably at the request of the Band on Monday evening to grant them a sum towards buying the instruments.

More Truth than Poetry.—There is more truth than poetry in this skit clipped from the Hawkeye:—"Now the town man and his wife suddenly feel their hearts swell with tender affection for a dear, dear cousin who "was out in the country in a big farmhouse and keeps one hundred cows, fifty horses, two thousand chickens, crying size, and an orchard as big as a law suit, and who is just dying to see the town man and his wife and their children and three days and is giving heaven of their neglect, so that in pity for him they go out and live on him six weeks. And next Christmas when that dear cousin comes lumbering into the city to see the Christmas sights, why will not him and his old-fashioned wife so dead that won't recover from it unit" it is time for the hens not to rush to the farm.

The scheme of Mr. Smith to get a releasing for his new flooring in a row to catch the unwary and should not be allowed to mislead the ratepayers. No by-law for the expenditure of money under the provisions of the present arbitrary Act should get a moments consideration. Nothing less than the repeal of this Act will satisfy the people, and hence the necessity to watch Councillor Smith's movements. This fifty thousand dollar scheme must be withdrawn or voted down if the people won't feel themselves at liberty to breathe without paying taxes for even the free air of heaven. If schemes such as is now before the people can be made to a success any shape or dimensions designing men may desire. Already would-be commissioners are devising plans to make this a great thing. Since the Council has persists in losing it go to vote, every man who has an interest in his own prosperity and safety, and in the prosperity of the Town, and in the economical management of town taxes aren't not fail to record his vote against it.

The Great London Show.—The Boston press has been most lavish in its praise of this great show, which will exhibit here on Thursday, August 23rd, when two performances will occur. The Daily Post of June 6th of that city, says: The popularity of this perfect organization only increases with each succeeding exhibition, and the enthusiasm of the audience is unbounded as their demonstrations of delight prove. Notwithstanding the heavy showers the great tents were tried to their utmost capacity and last evening fully one thousand people were forced to stand. This only manifests beyond the shadow of a doubt that the public will cheerfully patronize an amusement of a worthy and meritorious character. And such an exhibition certainly is the stupendous London. The series of complacent satisfaction wreathing every countenance as the circus goers emerge from the pavilions is complete and indisputable evidence of the perfection of the entertainment, and is a compliment to the efficient management which they will doubtless treasure with pride. And this is as it should be. In fact, there is not a single weak point in the entire programme. However, they can well afford to challenge the world in $10,000 that Mme. Elise Dockril has no equal as an equestrienne. Her principal horseback act is one of the finest examples of daring equestrianism ever witnessed by any one, and it is fully equaled by her startling four-horse feat. She is all confidence all grace, and spurns danger. This seems the more remarkable since she is a mere slip of a girl, fair-faced lady, not at all masculine in development, as one would suppose. She rides alone, perfect and unapproachable. The Livingston Brothers, assisted by Mr. Murtz, are acrobats whose feats are marvelous and challenge criticism. The leap of the California favorite, Fred. Gibbon, who turns a double somersault over five elephants, causes every spectator to hold his breath while the thrilling spectacle is being accomplished. The Lawrence Sisters' aerial sports on a trapeze suspended thirty feet above the arena cannot be surpassed. But where is use to particularize? Every performer is an artist, and the London's galaxy is truly a constellation of brilliant arcadic stars. The menagerie is all the announcements purport it to be, and abounds with a choice variety of much that is rare and instructive. The zoological collection will certainly well repay careful inspection, and presents a fund of instruction to those interested seldom met with.

Has Mr. Ross to become the Town Council? On Monday he assumed the role of General Adviser and Director of Ceremonies. Have our Councillors come to this that they cannot walk alone? It is far from honorable on his part, and derogatory to the character of Councillors to require mentors even at the Council Board. Has he not the columns of the Review in which to discuss public and private matters, or are Councillors to be dictated to in the presence of their constituents?

The Review very coolly proposes that in the event of its pet scheme being carried into effect, the citizens "could obtain for a slight expense filters" to remove the impurities from the river water, that would be supplied to them. Well, the very slight impurities left in the well-water of the town after percolating through twenty six feet of gravel (according to Dr. Burritt,) can very easily be removed by filters, which people who want them "can obtain for a slight expense;" and that to without going to the extravagance of building costly and useless water works.

The Water Works By-law was unanimously condemned in No. 2 and 3 Wards, but at the meeting in No. 4 Ward there was only one vote given against the following resolution condemning it:

Moved by J. B. McWilliams, seconded by John Cook, That this meeting desires to express their disapprobation of the present scheme for the construction of water works for the Town of Peterborough as submitted in a By-law to be voted upon on the 21st instant, and we hereby pledge ourselves to vote down the said by-law in order to show our disapproval of the same.

What became of the advocates of the "pet scheme" that not one of them put in an appearance to advocate the merits of the by-law, in public, so strongly favored in committee meetings. Mr. G. Hilliard being the only person present who was at all favorable to the scheme.

Exasperated at the utter collapse of the water works scheme at the public meetings last week, the Review finds a victim for accumulated anger in the person of Mr. John McClelland, whom it calls the "mouth piece" of the opposers of water works. Mr. McClelland, so far as we could see, spoke his own mind, and that freely and forcibly; and beyond his personal squabble with Mr. Dumble, (which has nothing at all to do with the main points of the matter) his utterances would stand criticism much better than those who supported the scheme. The best proof of his reasoning, if not of his oratory, is to be found in the adoption of the resolutions moved by him; and which, we venture to say, express the opinion of the townspeople generally. The complaint that Mr. McClelland spoke too frequently to be in good taste is a frivolous one at best; but it is disproved by the Review's own reports, which show that Mr. McClelland spoke but once at the Third Ward, and twice at the Second Ward meeting. We merely mention it to show the absurdity of accusing Mr. McClelland of oft-speaking, for no one complains that at the Third Ward meeting Mr. Romaine spoke twice and Mr. Dumble thrice. Why did not the Review include them in its reference to a departure from good taste by speaking twice? We leave the reader to answer.

The Peterborough correspondent of the Bobcaygeon Independent says:—

The town is in debt to an amount of more than seven years of its total income, and the taxation is so heavy that the town has ceased to be a desirable residence. This year we turned out the old Council because they were extravagant, elected a new one which we thought would be economical, but alas! we have been deceived, and no sooner did they get into office than they began voting away the people's money. Four thousand dollars for a station, two thousand dollars as a gift to promote bonuses to the blacksmiths' shops railway, a big gift to the St. John fire, in fact money has been given in large to everything and everybody. I do not say that the objects were bad, all I say is that we have had our money given away when we could not afford it, and now we are to have another hundred thousand added to our debt for water works. Two members of our Council, disgusted at the way in which money was being distributed broadcast, resigned their seats, and we have serious thoughts of calling an indignation meeting and asking the entire body to resign. You see it is the small freeholder who rules this town. The man with a little bit of garden plot, worth perhaps $75, contrives to get properly assessed and has a vote, and thus is placed on an equality with a man who has a large capital invested in various enterprises in the town. For this reason I favour the union of Peterborough and Ashburnham and making the two into a city, for by so doing the qualification for a municipal vote is made greater, and the hundred dollar voter would be wiped off the list. The franchise is altogether too low throughout the country, and I am true to the Conservative principles that the voting power should be retained in the hands of those who have some considerable stake in the country.

We give the above for its correct estimate of the financial condition of the town. Though we cannot agree with the views of the writer in respect to the franchise, we see in accord with the desirability of a union of the Town and Ashburnham, for other reasons.

PRESENTATION.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Permit me through your valuable columns to record the presentation of an address accompanied by a beautiful Family Bible to Mr. John Barbridge, by the Orangemen of Keene, as expressive of the high esteem in which he is held by them. The presentation took place on Saturday evening last, a number of the brethern having waited on Mr. Barbridge at his own residence. The following is a copy of the address:—

To Mr. JOHN BARBRIDGE,

Respected Sir,—We the members of Argyle Loyal Orange Lodge No. 494 having admired your loyalty at all times to the Orange cause and feeling grateful to you for your services as standard bearer for our Lodge on the 12th of July 1877, would now request your acceptance of this Bible as a slight token of these sentiments and an expression of the high respect in which you are held by us. We hope that you long may be spared to join with your Orange friends in celebrating the anniversary of the ever memorable Battle of the Boyne, and when finally you are called from this life may you be admitted to that Grand Lodge above where we all hope to meet to part no more.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge

LUCIAN A. MCFARLANE. W. M.
JAMES MCINTYRE. Secy.

Mr. Barbridge replied in a very appropriate manner thanking the Orangemen for the address and the accompanying gift.

I am yours respectfully,

AN ORANGEMAN.

Peruvian Syrup vs. Alcoholic Tonics.

It has been a desideratum with the medical profession to prepare a preparation of iron less objectionable than any of those now in use, which often procure unfavorable effects upon the system, especially when prepared with alcoholic fluids.

In many cases of debility and convalescence from disease; where a tonic is indicated, wine, brandy, porter, &c., have been recommended; but these are of very doubtful efficacy, to say the least. Alcohol is never digested, is ranked among the diffusible stimuli, and is incapable of affording nutrition. It creates generally an unnatural excitement and derangement of the circulation, irritating the whole system by preventing the blood from losing its carbon. Again, how difficult it is to obtain an article approaching to purity, almost all the wines, brandies, porters, &c., being more or less adulterated.

Such being the case with regard to the spirituous preparations of iron, and the alcoholic drinks, of which any one can satisfy himself by investigating the subject, an opportunity is now presented in the PERUVIAN SYRUP, for the trial of an article in general practice, which has the very strongest recommendations from medical and scientific men of the highest character—a preparation which so happily combines the protoxide of iron with the other constituent parts that the effect incident to the use of iron salts are entirely obviated.

For all cases in which iron or any tonic is needed, this preparation is confidently believed to be far superior to any other. It seems to purify the very fountain of health.

Sold by dealers generally.

The Toronto Telegram says:—A pleasing incident worthy of note occurred during the progress of the Orange (Derry) procession in Toronto. As a country fife and drum band was passing along Queen street two Roman Catholic priests were crossing into Simcoe street. The marshal's instead of proceeding, immediately halted their men so that the reverend gentlemen might not be detained or inconvenienced. The act of courtesy was duly acknowledged by the priests, who lifted their hats and bowed politely to the marshals. Their salute was duly returned.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS!"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, G. W. Gregory, Fred Paget and L. D. F. Foore, Centennial Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best Sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W, the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Huston R. Ternan, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "it is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from ½ of an inch thick down to gauze, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W, will be benefited by calling on A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM,

—FOR—

Coughs, Colds, Bronchial and all Throat Affections.

The Gum which exudes from the Red Spruce tree is, without doubt, the most valuable native Gum for Medicinal purposes.

Its remarkable power in relieving certain severe forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large. In this Syrup (carefully prepared at low temperature), containing a large quantity of the finest picked Gum in complete solution, all the Tonic Expectorant, Balsamic and Anti-Spasmodic effects of the Red Spruce Gum are fully preserved. For sale at all Drug Stores. Price, 25 cents per bottle.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT? A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man."—A. Maybee Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'one of the best medicines they have ever used;' it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Ruzan, Township Percy writes, "I persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers Price, 25 cents.

ELECTRICITY.

Thomas' Eclelcior Electric Oil.

Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold—Pain cannot stay where it is used.

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures catarrh, asthma, and croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years' standing. It cures swelled neck, tumors, rheumatism, neuralgia, contraction of the muscles, stiff joints, spinal difficulties, and pain and soreness in any part, no matter where it may be, nor from what cause it may arise, it always does you good. Twenty-five cents worth has cured bad cases of chronic and bloody dysentery. One tea-spoonful cures colic in 15 minutes. It will cure any case of piles that it is possible to cure. Six or eight applications is warranted to cure any case of excoriated nipples or inflamed breast. For bruises, if applied, often and bound up, there is never the slightest discoloration to the skin. It stops the pain of a burn as soon as applied. Cures frosted feet, boils, warts, and corns, and wounds of every description on man or beast.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. See that the signature of S. N. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price, 25 cts, NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion.

NOTE—Eclectric—Selected and Electrised.

The Most Valuable Gift—Restoration of the Health.

During the past ten years the proprietor of the Great Shoshonean Remedy has faithfully redeemed every promise and guarantee made to the public over his signature. Alarming and apparently hopeless cases of Lung Diseases, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Affections of the Kidney and Chronic Complaints of every description, including Scrofula and Skin Diseases of life-long duration, have been permanently removed and eradicated. Those who volunteered their testimony to the efficacy of the Remedy are not bogus people in whom of localities of foreign states, but respectable citizens of this Dominion, many of names and open to question, upon whose verbal recommendations we are willing to test the reputation of the Great Shoshonean Remedy. If you are afflicted do not delay until medicine may be powerless to aid you. No injurious effects can possibly follow the use of these Indian Remedies, as they contain no minerals, by which the fate of the invalid is so often sealed under the form of some temporary sedative or stimulant. These Indian Remedies are widely known and still possess the public confidence after the lapse of sufficient time to test their efficacy.

The Shoshonean Vegetable Sugar Coated Pills have won for themselves the most favorable reputation of any pill before the public. Their efficacy has been fully proved as a remedy for Biliousness, Sick Headache, and constipation of the stomach. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills 25 cts. a box.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

ANAHEIM, California, July 15, 1877.

DEAR EXAMINER,—When I last wrote you we were much afraid of a very dry year. Well, our fears have been fully realised. I think about four inches of rain fell in the winter and spring, which goes only a little way in the making of a crop. We had a very peculiar winter and spring, no frost after New Years. The sheep were the first to suffer, there being no grass they drove to other places and many were lost on the barren deserts towards Arizona. It has been a hard blow to sheep men, the country is suffering much yet. This county will not be so bad from the number of artizan wells on the low ground, which will supply moisture, yet the crops will be light. Little barley will be made owing to a heavy wind storm, carrying sand along, which destroyed much grain. Hay is plentiful and low in price, considering the season. Corn will be a fair crop; after sowing much was destroyed by insects, which had to be planted again; it now looks pretty well. Railroads are progressing; the Southern Pacific will soon have crossed the Great Desert and reached St. Yumma on the Colorado River Arizona. As far as your humble servant is concerned, self and some of the family have not been very well for some time. Our crops, hay pretty good, corn middling, potatoes not very good, the early rose has done pretty well, cups all grown to tops. Sometimes here the tops look beautiful and not a sign of a potatoe at the root. Grapes look well. Peaches—the grafted never budded until June; seedlings will produce some fruit, the grafted none. Apples never budded till June, and the same occurred with all other trees. Scientists have not accounted for this occurrance yet. Altogether this is a peculiar season. We got water from the St. Anna River and irrigated the land heresabouts, only for that our places would have dried up, trees and all. We irrigated everything, those who did not will raise nothing, such is water here. We may suffer yet, the water is now scarce in the river, in fact none is to be had. I sowed 3 acres of clover; I cut three crops from it, but unless we got water soon the roots will die altogether. This is a very deep rooted plant, yet the first year it is tender. When water is plenty and the weather warm it can be cut every month and yields well. When allowed to go to seed the stalks become very rank and cattle do not then care to eat it, but when cut in season it makes excellent feed. This year I sowed 4 acres of wheat, but it commenced to rust and I had to cut it for hay. Population is not settling here this year as usual and land has decreased in value, only where water for irrigation is to be had. There are many houses to rent in town now, and business seems dull. Work of all kinds is very scarce and many of those who can leave are going to other places, chiefly north ward towards Washington Territory, and some to British Columbia or wherever they think they can find more rain. I saw a letter from Bridgewater, Ont., published in the newspaper here. The party writing was asking about the flax culture, and says at last that Canada is cursed with the worst Government under the sun, and that he is heart sick of the country. If the party has lived long in Canada he will certainly find a great difference here, but am afraid his hopes of good government will not be realized. For myself in comparing notes on government, on the whole I believe the fairest shewing is in favour of Ontario.
I remain, Sir, yours,
J. HUNTER.

WHY DO THEY FAIL?

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Yes, sir, why do so very many teachers fail at those annual examinations? This is a question that ought to engage the serious attention of teachers themselves and that of all interested in the well-being of schools and the spread of popular or elementary education itself. That the causes of those failures is entirely local no one will deny; that the proper remedies lie in the same local direction, no sensible man will gainsay, or strive to controvert. First and foremost, few young, an inexperienced teachers ever study anything beyond the limits of the mere minimum course of the particular grade to which they immediately aspire, and that too often in a random, rule-of-thumb, rote fashion, without system, connection, or the logical sequence that arise, step by step, in mastering any scientific subject thoroughly. In truth, the great majority of such teachers only endeavor to "cram" themselves hurriedly, mechanically, and in a manner that supposes motive force a prime element in the acquisition of knowledge. There is no elucidation of the subject, no education, no development of the faculties in such a process. Hence it is that knowledge so acquired, never becomes rooted in the memory, and is evident or never of much real, abiding service to its possessor. It may be compared to a thin, filmy covering that soon vanishes in virtue of its tenuity. To use a rather blunt expression, there is as little coherency in the cloth as there is substance in the coating. The least contact rubs it away, and the merest

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 23, 1877

THE DUNKIN ACT IN TORONTO.

The fate of the Dunkin Act appears virtually decided in Toronto, at least for the time being. Its defeat is scarcely to be wondered at, considering the circumstances. It was submitted in answer to a direct challenge from the opponents of the measure; and whatever may be said of the bravery of its advocates in promptly taking up the the gage of battle, their discretion is open to strong criticism. The contest was brought on with scarce any preparation on their part, while the very first day's voting demonstrated that the liquor interest was thoroughly organised for the fight, and ready too to wage it without scruple to the legal enactments which now appertain to voting at political elections. The Dunkin party were absolutely without plans whereby votes might be indirectly influenced in their favour, trusting entirely to the acceptance of their cause in and for itself by the electors. The work done by their canvassers was of the loosest kind; for whatever may be said of the good-will and even energy of the ladies, it must be acknowledged that they have not the experience necessary for the good conduct of such an undertaking. It can readily be imagined that they could be put off with a pleasant answer, and without tying down the elector as one on whom dependence would be placed when the time came. On this theory (always barring that of bribery) can be explained the votes of those who went against the by-law, though marked for it in the canvas, if canvas it can be called. There appears to have been no organisation whereby those considered doubtful might be secured, and by which even likely opponents might be brought into neutrality by personal influences. All this was left undone on the one side, while it was performed to perfection on the other,—even those who expected money being known and seen after the contest opened. In this way the advocates of the Bill were like an undisciplined levy attacking a thoroughly organised enemy in their entrenchments.

Apart altogether from the known difficulties of carrying any reform against the firm front of established custom and old practice, however evil the old practice and established custom may be, the Anti-Dunkinites in Toronto have a big advantage, as they have in all cities and larger towns. Even leaving out of consideration the desperation with which the liquor dealers will naturally fight for their financial investments, and what they consider the back bone of their business—the bar—they possess in cities—and to a less degree in Towns, resources for such a contest the busy toilers with head or hands cannot attain. Diversity of occupation is apparent on the one hand, a common mode of life and common interests on the other. So much more than ordinary in common leads to a natural union of feeling and action, even to the extent of Israelitism. Here then is a ready-made association, or central committe, strong not only numerically, but also a community of sentiment and material interests. Then, again, the very lack of occupation of the tavern and saloon keeper tends to make him a ward politician. Even when he is busiest he has time to talk of what goes on in the country and in the city and town; he soon learns the position and peculiarities of all his neighbours; and finds out how to play upon the weaknesses of this or flatter the pride of that one among them. As his residence increases in any neighborhood he learns these things like a book; nor is he long, in most cases in putting his knowledge to practical use. He finds congenial mental relief, as well as business profit, in the excitement of parliamentary elections; and when instead of singly he appears in scores and hundreds in town or city, there appears a power that may well be looked on with fear by the candidate for public honors, and as an element of danger by and to the more truly representative portion of the community. It is a startling satire upon the power of the popular vote in matters of reform, to have observed the majorities rolled up in Toronto by the Licensed Victuallers against the Dunkin Act, as one of themselves put it, "in spite of churches, ministers and women." It may well startle the country to a realization of the immense power the liquor interest has attained to in our midst, and to a consideration of the question whether it is safe to allow it to accumulate such an influence morally, socially and politically.

It is possible that the present defeat of the Dunkin Act in Toronto will only arouse the "churches, ministers and women," and those who believe in them to renewed exertions towards its re-submission with better prepositioning and a fuller knowledge of the hand fight they have to make against an organised and powerful traffic. It certainly should prove a warning to the advocates of the measure in those towns wherein it is shortly to be put to vote, that they should thoroughly organize their forces, and put forth all their influence, collectively and individually, if they would carry their point against the desperate and determined opposition and the devious devices of the Licensed Victuallers.

IMMIGRATION.

We learn from the report of the Select Standing Committee of the House of Commons, on Immigration and Colonization, that there was last year a considerable falling off in the Immigration to Canada, as compared with previous years. In fact the decline has been steady since 1873, which appears to have been the year of the largest immigration to this continent known since the Irish exodus. This continuous decline has not been special to Canada, but has extended over the whole continent, and the percentage decline, has been on the whole considerably, and last year very much, larger in the United States than in the new Dominion. There has been during the same years a steady decrease in the immigration from Britain to all parts. Through great exertion made by the Australian colonies immigration thitherward increased; and it is somewhat satisfactory to observe that Canada is not the worst sufferers from this strong competition.

It is very questionable whether extraordinary inducements to immigrants are advisable. Certainly an indiscriminate trade in immigrants at so much per head is an evil, in raking into the country a class wholly unfitted to its requirements, and who eventually become burdensome "beats" or dangerous criminals preying on society. Better no immigration whatever, than the introduction of a positively bad element into our population. We do not desire to be understood as condemning all endeavours to induce immigration to our shores. The spread of full information regarding the resources and capabilities of Canada is a legitimate means of attracting a healthy stream of immigration; and such information is undoubtedly very much needed in great Britain, and the other older countries of Europe. The description of our country going abroad should be eminently truthful, whatever may be the temptation to the agent to apply rose color to his pictures. Doubtless there is a proneness to judge of the labors of immigration agents by the numbers they send to settle here in Canada; hence it is somewhat natural that each agent should try to display his work by a numerical calculation, and to swell the crowd by means not the most scrupulous in the world. However the faithful agent, who considers Canada before a possible popular judgement of himself will overcome temptations, and remember that the permanency of his work depends on the quality rather than the quantity of the persons he sends as additions to our population. We are glad to note that last year, there appears to have been a wise discrimination in this respect, whereby the immigration was chiefly confined to agricultural labourers and female domestic servants, mechanics, and artizans not having any inducements held out to them to come to Canada. Special efforts have also been made to obtain a very desirable class of immigrants—tenant farmers. This important branch of the subject is brightened by the greater knowledge of Canada given to Britain through the growth of the transatlantic meat trade, combined with the deprivation of many tenant farmers in the United Kingdom of their holdings from one cause and another.

The advantage of obtaining immigrants who possess a little money wherewith to establish themselves is amply demonstrated by the success of the Mennonite colonies of Manitoba. The Icelanders too have prospered apace, despite the terrible visitation of small-pox, which carried off 189 out of a population of 1441; the deaths under 12 years being 136; those over twelve years 53. Though the special costs of obtaining these immigrants was far above the average per capita rate, they have proved the most valuable among the immigrants brought into Canada, thus showing that the immigration policy of this or any government is not to be estimated by the first cost of obtaining the immigrants, but by the success of the permanent settlement as a producer.

The evil effects of the Mail's violent opposition to the Dunkin Act, and of the rehash of its expressions by the copying Conservative papers throughout the country, have led the more reflecting Conservatives to try to devise means whereby a remedy can be applied by which the popular disgust may be in some measure at least alleviated. Far be it from us to accuse the Conservatives as a body with holding opinions similar to the Mail on this question. Many members of the political party for which the Mail professes to speak are very deeply grieved at the position it has taken in this matter. Neither they nor their party, in which are some of the strongest and staunchest prohibitionists, are to blame; for it cannot be said that the Mail's course in this matter reflects even a modicum of Conservative opinion, inasmuch as it is said to be a purchased advocacy, like that of E. King Dodds on the platform. The hints that the Grit party are trying to make political capital out of the Dunkin Bill were doubtless started by some zealous Anti-Dunkinite, that he might gain the votes of strong Conservatives. It is not likely that it will make the question a party one, say more than the Globe's outspoken advocacy on the one side or the Mail's purchased pleadings on the other can bind either Grit or Tory, as such, to the support or opposition of the Dunkin Bill. Certainly the Grits have no desire to bind the Tories by the utterances of the Mail on the Dunkin Act; therefore it is a work of supererogation on the part of any outlying Tory priest to try and anticipate such a possibility by allusions to Dr. Shultz's bonsome motion in the House of Commons last session; or by the lying accusation that the Reform Government of Ontario has favored its political friends by the Crooks Act. It can be very easily proved that Dr. Shultz, who is not a prohibitionist, neither a temperance man, or even a slight abstainer, did not introduce what the Review is pleased to call "prohibitory measure" last session; and also that so far from the Crooks Act being used to favor Reformers, the minority of Hyde Reformers granted have been by Conservatives.

The majority against the Dunkin by-law is increasing in Toronto.

It will gratify Canadian stock raisers to learn the recent order prohibiting the importation of cattle to England does not apply to Canadian cattle.

An Extensive Silk Robbery.—The Messrs. T. J. Claxton & Co., Montreal, have suffered the loss of $20,000 to $50,000 in silk robberies extending over a period of several weeks. Two of the employees in the establishment have been under the influence of a Yankee sharper named Vosburg. He received the goods and disposed of them. The dupes of Vosburg are in custody while he is still at large. Since the alarm the loss has dwindled down to $400.

There is one commendation for the half-political, half-temperance article in last weeks Review. It was the only portion of the editorial that did not in some way refer to a matter in which the proprietor is more or less interested personally. For instance there were reference to the water works scheme, to Dr. Kincaid, and to ex-Councillor McWilliams, Mr. Calcutt, too, came in for a share of attention in another part of the sheet, yet the motto of the Review is "Measures not men." Pshaw!

It was in this highly intelligent way that the Hon. W. Macdougall made up his mind how to vote on the Dunkin Act question in Toronto: Approaching the poll, on Saturday, he called out to the Mayor, who officiates as Returning Officer—"Mr. Mayor, which way did the Hon. Oliver Mowat vote?" "For the Bill," replied his Worship. "Then," said the Hon. William, "I vote against it." This reminds us of the story told of the newly arrived Irish emigrant, who was asked what his politics were. "Have yees a guver-'mint?" says Pat. "We have," replied his questioner. "Thin I'm agin the guver-'mint." There was precisely the same train of reasoning on the part of the Hon. William. He was "agin the guvermint," right or wrong.

The Bobcaygeon Independent begs for a penny; or, to be non-explicit, it cries out for the introduction with the currency of the country of a coin worth two cents, to be called a penny. The Independent is evidently of the opinion that the introduction of a coin such as it calls for, would lead to the purchase for a penny of articles that now cost five cents. We cannot see it in this way; for we already have a cent coinage which with the old "one penny pee" facilitates all transactions of the two-cent order. However we have no objection, but rather favour on other grounds, the proposition to introduce coin, or even two of them, intermediate between the one and the first-cent pieces, as well as a more plentiful issue of cents.

WATER WORKS.

The vote on the By-law to raise $60,000 for Water Works, was taken on Tuesday. From the first it was evident that the scheme had but few supporters and hence the voting was quiet, but steady, but the result is such as to warn some of our aspiring counsellors that there is a day of reckoning, yearly, and that when it comes about again some of them will have to return to their corner unwept, unhonored and unsung. The following is the vote and it tells its own tale.

	FOR.	AGAINST
Ward No. 1	13	85
" 2	15	66
" 3	8	113
" 4	7	55
	43	319

Majority against the By-law 276.

With a majority of 276 we have confidence that the people can unite to vote down extravagance, and to vote out reckless men.

There was not much interest taken in the school By-law although we were astonished to find the large vote that was given against it. The following is the vote:—

	FOR.	AGAINST.
Ward No. 1	45	19
" 2	49	22
" 3	76	26
" 4	36	14
	206	81

A PRESSING NECESSITY.

So long as the present Act in reference to Water Works in this town remains on the Statute Books, there will be periodical efforts to secure a vote of the people to get a commencement made. But commence once, and who can predict the end? The ratepayers should therefore Memorialize the Council to pray for its repeal at the approaching session of the Local Legislature; and in case the Council neglect to do so, it will be the duty of the ratepayers to petition Parliament for its appeal. Every lawyer in town admits the ambiguous and arbitrary nature of the Act, and in many cases they have admitted the necessity that exists to have it amended. But the whole Act is so ill digested and crude, and many clauses of it are so unjust that amendment is next to impossible. What is wanted is a new Act, prepared with care, submitted to the people through the press,—where defects can be discussed and pointed out,—and then presented for the sanction of our Legislators. This patched up affair, containing the most absurd and arbitrary clauses of the Toronto Act, bears the fullest impress of its parentage, and calls for immediate repeal as the people are not safe while it remains in force. The report of the doings of the Toronto Water Works Commissioners fully justifies us in this urgent appeal in our case. In Toronto while Commissioners have a revenue of $170,000, they fail to provide for the interest of their own debentures. And giving only a few days' notice, they demand of the Council to provide at once for $60,000 of interest, and they tell the Council it must do so or ruin the credit of the city. With an income of $170,000 the Commissioners ought to have been able to pay the interest falling due, and then use the balance to extend their work. But Commissioners who are above the Council and the people, neglect to take the simplest precaution to sustain their own honor, and that of the city. And the city must now pay this $60,000 in addition to the $2,380,000 already spent. Peterboro' has just escaped perhaps a similar state of things. And if the people wish to prevent its recurrence at any future time they must demand that this unjust, we may say, iniquitous act be repealed. Nothing less will secure the town against the recurrence of the folly and madness of weak-minded Councillors, impelled by designing scheming office seekers. Their only object being the aggrandisement of a few at the expense of the ratepayers.

A FRIENDLY VISIT.

The Fire Brigade of our sister town of Cobourg paid a friendly visit to their brother firemen of this town yesterday. This had been brought about through the liberal offer of Mr. Calcutt, proprietor of the steamer "Golden-Eye," to convey the fire brigade here and back to Harwood. The party landed here about one o'clock p.m.. They were met at the wharf by the members of the Protection fire company, after the usual salutations, the companies formed into line led by the Cobourg Brass Bands and Firemen, drawing two magnificently finished hose reels. The Peterboro Brigade led by their band brought up the rear. After marching along the principal streets, they were escorted to the Smith House, where they partook of lunch, provided for them and prepared by Mine "Host" Croft, in excellent style. After which they separated to enjoy themselves for a while. About four o'clock they again left by the steamer, homeward bound. The visit was a short one, but let us hope, pleasant.

RELIEVED.

At the public meeting called by the Mayor on Friday evening a committee was appointed to take up a system of water works for fire purposes for the town, and the same public meeting instructed the Council to withdraw the $50,000 by-law. The Council repudiated the advice and resolutions of the citizens and refused to withdraw the by-law. The Committee now consider that the action of the Council relieves them from having anything to do with the matter, and they inform us that they will not act as a committee, believing that if they did meet and report, this same Council would only insult them by ignoring their report and advice, as they have ignored the whole body of citizens who attended their own public meeting. Consequently we feel justified in stating that no action will be taken by the committee until the citizens request them to take the matter up; the request to proceed from a meeting called by themselves and controlled themselves, and at which two or three shrewd (!) Councillors cannot dictate terms. But a word about public meetings hereafter.

Information for Immigrants to Peterborough County.—In answer to a series of questions prepared uncirculated by the Standard Committee on Immigration of the House of Commons, Mr. William Harth, of Minden, furnished the following information relative to this county:—The season usually opens about the 1st of May, so that ploughing and seeding can be carried on. The crops grown most extensively, and their yield per acre, are:—Wheat, 15 bushels; oats, 30; and peas, 20; barley also grown. This district is well adopted for the raising of stock. For six months in the year it is necessary to feed and keep stock under shelter. This is a well timbered district, one-half hardwood and one-half pine; considerable lumbering. The soil, climate and other natural advantages are conductive to successful farming. Partially improved farms can be obtained on reasonable terms, and many settlers who have purchased improvements have succeeded. An Immigrant ought to have from $200 to $500 for settlement in this district. The fish caught in the rivers and lakes are principally trout and bass; but they are not very plentiful.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

From the Ottawa Free Press.

There appears to be every prospect of a successful consummation of this important project. The western municipalities interested have, almost without exception, endorsed the scheme by granting liberal bonuses in aid of construction, and, no doubt, equal success will attend the progress of the canvas. The Peterborough Examiner in its last issue announces that an engineering party has started the work of locating the line towards Ottawa, which indicates that the directors intend pursuing a vigorous policy and pushing the line to completion, as early as practicable. There can hardly be a question as to the success of the line when it is once placed in operation. The traffic is waiting for it; while by opening up markets through the heart of the Province, in a fine agricultural district, it will promote settlement, and give an impetus to the development of the country, and the utilisation of its resources, which will not only ensure the position of the railway as a commercial undertaking, but will increase the wealth and population of an extensive tract which is now retarded by the absence of railway communication and market advantages, and so act as an important factor in advancing the prosperity of the Province. In Ottawa, we are perhaps more interested in this project than any other community on the line, and it is to be hoped, therefore, that some of our more public spirited citizens will see to it that the interests of the capital in connection with this line are properly kept in view. It is most important to the future of Ottawa that a connection should be made at this point with the Quebec railway system, by the western roads, and steps ought to be taken in time to effect an understanding on this subject between the different railways, and also, if possible, to secure the location here of an important depot, machine shops, etc. It is an old adage that Providence helps those who help themselves, and as we expect to be benefitted by the construction of this railway, it is not too much to expect that our people should evince some interest in its affairs. We hope to see some of our more enterprising and energetic people put their shoulder to the wheel to contribute to the success of the undertaking, and to see that, as far as practicable, Ottawa receives its full share of the advantages which it will confer upon the whole section of Ontario between the Dominion and Provincial capitals.

With the prospect of an unsurpassed crop before them, Canadian farmers have reason to rejoice over the fact that the grain supply of Europe will be chiefly drawn from this continent. A dispatch from the United States Minister to Greece to the State Department asserts that the United States can now and henceforth control to a large extent the grain markets of Europe. He says:—"Russia has been our only competitor in this trade. Under the most favorable circumstances for Russia (as has been so clearly demonstrated in the report sent by the Odessa Committee on Trade and Manufactures at St. Petersburg) the United States has had the advantage of that great cereal-producing country. Our machinery, railroad system, elevators and simple customs regulations combined, have enabled us to place our grain on shipboard 15 per cent. less than could be done in the ports of Russia. The gigantic war in which that nation is now engaged cannot certainly lessen those advantages. With such an outlook it is not too much to assert that with reasonable efforts on our part we can control the English French and Italian markets. Anticipating the future course of this trade, British capitalists are now building six of the largest size iron vessels for the transportation of bread stuffs from our shores on English account."

Millbrook will civilize on Monday. They are having an Excursion to Lloyd Wyld.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Is the Review a local paper? If so why does it not give local news. There was a Teachers' examination in Peterborough a short time ago, and yet the Review seems not to have heard of it. There are a great many copies of your paper come here, and when they do come they are borrowed and re-borrowed until the paper is worn out. I am a subscriber to the Review, but when my time expires I shall stop it and take the Examiner, and get local news, and when I want to hear of what John A., Tupper & Co., are doing, I will take the Mail. The Norwood Register called the list from the Examiner, and gave those who secured in obtaining certificates at, and near Norwood, and of some that failed from Hastings and vicinity. Now, is this fair, or does the Register think that Norwood can support it? If so we will see. There was as many successful candidates from Hastings and vicinity as from Norwood, and there is not one of them in the culled list. This is like the doings of the Register. On another occasion it purported to write the minutes of the Asphodel council, and the first meeting of that august body for 1877, never appeared in it. Now what is the reason of this? was it because the owner of a Hotel and a liquor store invited the members of the council on the morning of the meeting to an oyster supper in the evening, and the council at that meeting passed a by-law, fixing the amount to be paid for a license at the very lowest sum that the law allows, viz: $60. Now these are facts that defy contradiction and this surely must be very unsatisfactory to subscribers.

Yours truly,
JUSTICE.

Asphodel, August 22, 1877.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—Sir, as I have noticed several times in your paper mention made of a new kind of wheat known as the Ceanaca or Clawson, I will give you my experience in its cultivation, and would recommend every farmer to try it. Last fall I tried it for the first time. I sowed two bushels of it and it has yielded at the rate of forty bushels to the acre on common summer fallow without any manure or extra labor. I also had the Silver Chaff, the Scott and the Treadwell, all in the same field, but the Clawson was the heaviest in straw of any of the four kinds and it comes in very early. It is a white wheat with red chaff and appears to be a very hardy wheat, and a wheat that would bring the highest price in the market. Mr. Editor I do not send you this as an advertisement for my own wheat as I cannot supply the demands that have been made on me for it already, but there are several others in the County who have it, and I can confidentially recommend it to the Farming community as an excellent wheat. Hoping that you will give this a place in your valuable paper,

I am, Sir, yours truly.

In Case of Consumption.

East Stoneham, Me., May 12, 1873.
Messrs. Seth W. Fowle & Sons;

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to write a few words in favor of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. In the early part of last Winter I took a severe cold, and shortly afterward a distressing cough was added to it. My friends did everything they could for me, but without avail. The best physicians that could be procured did not relieve me, and my cough continued with me all through the winter with increasing severity. I spit blood three or four times a day, and my friends considering when I heard of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I began its use, and before I had taken half a bottle of it my cough and all my other troubles left me, and I was cured. I feel so truly indebted to this great remedy for what it has done for me that I send you this voluntary testimony, hoping it may be the means of inducing others, who are suffering as I was, to make use of it. It is the best remedy for lung complaints that I ever heard of, and I am constantly recommending it to my friends.

Mrs. Mellisa M. Ball.

SUPERSTITION.

A panacea, or "cure-all," is one of the myths of the age of superstition. Dr. R. V. Pierce does not recommend any one or even his whole list of standard remedies as adequate to cure every disease. For severe lingering coughs, bronchial, throat, and chronic lung diseases, he believes his Golden Medical Discovery is unsurpassed, but it will not cure you if your lungs are half wasted by consumption. The Discovery not only exercises a potent influence over pulmonary affections, by reason of its pectoral properties, but possess also the most valuable alterative, or blood-cleansing properties, and is therefore a sovereign remedy in blood and skin affections. But while it will cure scrofulous and other ulcers or sores, blooches, pimples, and eruptions, it will not cure cancer, nor does its manufacturer claim any such merit for it as is possessed by proprietors of other blood-cleansing medicines, who dishonestly try to deceive the afflicted into the belief that their preparations will accomplish impossibilities. By reason of its real intrinsic merit it has a sale surpassing that or any other blood and cough medicine.

RED BOOT.

Stop, Ladies and Gentlemen; stop I beseech. And read Larmour's poetical speech:
The shoe shops which in Peterboro we meet
Are as numerous almost, as stones on the street;
But there are no shoe stores wherever you go,
So deserving of notice as Larmour's Depot.

When good judging customers come to our shop,
Believe me, they need no persuasion to stop;
For bargains being firmly and well put together,
Our goods are all made of the choicest of leather.

Our boots and our shoes may be fearlessly worn
On the top of a chilblain, a bunion or corn;
And even the sensitive toes I would have you to know,
May be readily suited at Larmour's Depot.
Another thing worthy of note in our trade is
Our wonderful method of suiting the ladies;
We have great boots for walking; and shoes for the ball
With fronts lace and side lace, and no lace at all.

When customers call for our boots and our shoes
They can always be suited with good overshoes
Our rubbers are best for resisting the snow;
Now what is there wanting at Larmour's Depot.

And as for our excellent Congress boots,
You would hardly believe how the article suits:
Our Prunella and Leather boots hand sewed too
Are such as you do not in all places view.

To persons whose shoes are the worse for wear,
We beg to announce that we promptly repair;
And ready made shoes we mean on sale then,
It's returned to the owner almost like new.
And now last our casting should never begin
We'll wind up our tale by inviting you in.

It is daily becoming more apparent that business men who advertise are the monopolists of trade in dull times.

It is no longer the fashion to send around a slice of wedding cake. They now send the receipt how to make it.

There are always some people left behind at excursions, simply because they think it won't start when it will.

Mr. John Erskine has removed his dry goods store to Hunter Street, next door to McClelland's jewelry store.

August Measures are plentiful. "Meathers" were also numerously observed on the streets of the Town last night.

Pie-Fic "Sandwiches" are the latest. An Exchange says they are made by a pretty good looking fellow between two jealous girls. They ought to be very popular.

Remember the promenade concert to be given by the Peterborough Firemens' Band, assisted by the C. Y. B. Band of Port Hope, in the Drill shed on Thursday evening next.

Complaints are occasionally made to us that the EXAMINER is not regularly received by subscribers in Town. We hope that any of our friends who may have suffered in this way will make the fact known at this office so that the matter may be inquired into.

Just So.—An exchange hits the nail on the head when it says:—"The man who expect a minister to give them $1,200 worth of grace for $600 salary are the same ones who demand local notices in their home papers for nothing, and do their advertising on Novelty press hand bills."

The services in connection with the formal re-opening of the Methodist Church, Norwood, will take place on Sunday, the 9th September, when Sermons, appropriate to the occasion will be delivered by the Rev. Mr. Clarke, the former pastor, and the Rev. W. H. Poole, also well and favorably known in this neighbourhood. The Harvest Home Festival will be held on the Monday following.

Uneasiness.—Considerable uneasiness is experienced at the continued absence of an upholsterer who left Peterborough over a week ago. It is reported that his business affairs were not in a satisfactory condition. If he should not turn up before our next issue we will give him an extended notice that we will not commend at present.

Excursion to Rochester.—Mr. Calcut will run the Golden-Eye in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Excursion on Thursday next to Cobourg to Rochester. The Norwegian leaves Cobourg at 9 a.m. The tickets are good for four days and are only $1. For further particulars as to the Golden-Eye's time for starting will be seen by posters in a day or two. Tickets to be had from Mr. W. Gellie.—Express office

The Musical Society intend giving another excursion and concert. This time to Sturgeon Point, on Tuesday next, it being the day that the Lindsayites have set aside for their civic holiday. We have no doubt but that a great many will avail themselves of the trip if the day be fine. There was a meeting last night to make final arrangements, particulars of which will be announced by posters.

Musical Society Excursion.—The second excursion of the Peterborough Musical Society came off on Tuesday last to Campbellstown and was well attended. the company all enjoying themselves immensely and returning home in good time in the evening. The Society gave their concert on the boat on the way up the river and delighted those on board with sweet strains of music. The society deserve every encouragement and we hope to see their excursion to Sturgeon Point well patronized.

Removal.—Miss E. Delaney has removed to the stand formerly occupied by Mr. F. D. Dorsa and opposite T. Menzie's bookstore, where she hopes by having more commodious premises to keep a larger and finer assorted stock of millinery, mantles, &c., to meet the demands of her large and steadily increasing business. Miss Delaney is energetic and obliging and is doing a nice business in which by strict attention she hopes to merit a continuance of that support which has been given her since commencing business.

Taken His Seat.—Mr. A. Rutherford was elected by acclamation on Monday to the seat in the Council rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. McWilliams. Mr. Rutherford took his seat on the same evening. The EXAMINER quoted some of the doings of the Council of this year, but we must confess that we find the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, and we do hope that Mr. Rutherford will arrange himself on the side of economy and try and curtail outlay, at least until better times return. In the second Ward there will be a contest and let us advise ratepayers to elect the most economical man.

"Canada School Journal."—The third number of this educational monthly is before us; and we must say, in justice to the enterprising publishers, Messrs. Adam Miller & Co., Toronto, that in our opinion they have succeeded in producing, not only the most readable and attractive, but also the cheapest and most useful journal for teachers and students which has yet appeared in Canada. To teachers and private students we would say that the literary and professional information here given is worth more to them than five times the price. The publishers will mail a sample copy free to any teacher or trustee who has not already seen one. The subscription is only $1 per annum.

Merchant Tailoring.—We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column announcing the commencement of a merchant tailoring establishment by Messrs. [illegible] Morehead & Madison, in the store lately occupied by Thompson Bros. They intend doing a real merchant tailoring business, keeping that class of goods only which constitute the same. The abilities of Mr. J. O. Madison as a cutter have been advertised so largely by Messrs. Lasher & Lavery and he being so well known, it is unnecessary for us to more than mention that he is a member of the firm and will do the cutting. The other members of the firm are well and favorably known in Peterborough and we predict for them a share of public patronage. The shop will be open early; business about the first of September.

Grey County Assessment Shows Wo!—This county has been favored (this is from the fact that we have seen it specified in the [illegible] Assessment Roll for [illegible]

Picked. Adjust to save our interment. In our opinion they we thought that the assessors were selected because of their fitness for, and cost forth to do the work of assessing property. It appears now that we were mistaken, as we learn that Councillors tell the assessors what property is to be raised. Is not this a piece of impertinence that should not be tolerated for one moment. If the present assessors are not qualified to do their work, why, remove them, but while they are the nominal assessors no Councillor has a right to tell them what property should be raised or assessed higher than hitherto. We will feel glad if our informant is mistaken in what he tells us, for we could not feel safe if Councillors' personal feelings were allowed to govern the valuation of the property of the Town.

Entrance Examination, Collegiate Institute.—The following is the comparative list of pupils who have succeeded at the Examination for entrance to the Collegiate Institute in July:—

Bell S. E. V.	Cameron John

Galloway L. A.	Dobson Alver

That By-law.—The advocates of water works cannot but now see the position they held in the matter of water works. The defeat is a crushing one, and must, at least, should prove a lesson to Councillors to let water works alone until the people petition for them. The position taken by the EXAMINER has received a hearty endorsation by the vote at the polls, and we congratulate the ratepayers that they have escaped the meshes that were being woven to entrap them, and burden them for ever. If this by-law had received their assent, it was but the thin end of the wedge which would have ended in mulcting the people in over $100,000, before the bottom would have been reached. There is abundant proof for asserting that a "ring" had been formed to run this thing and an intention to provide situations and salary for some favorite at the public expense. Their little game has not succeeded and is not likely to succeed until wiser heads obtain the public ear. May we not add until men come to the surface in whom more confidence can be placed than the advocates of "purer water" can command at present.

M. gave them four hours to leave town or he would send them to the Central Prison for 6 months. They have not been heard of since.

The mill has been almost rebuilt. The grounds levelled and faced with timbers towards the river. The latest and most improved machinery has been placed in the engine room and inside the main building, and every improvement secured calculated to ensure the satisfaction and profitable working of the mills; Messrs. Dunne & Sperry having spared no cost or pains in putting the mills in excellent condition.

In the engine room there is a large 50 horse power engine, manufactured by the Warwick Engine Company, Guelph. This is considered one of the most complete engines now made, differing from the ordinary engines in several important particulars, which leaves it under complete control of the engineer, to use any portion of the power or the whole at will, and also to use any portion of the machinery without interfering with any other part of the work in the mill. This engine can be worked at the rate of 120 barrels of flour to one and a half cords of wood.

The ground floor, adjoining the engine room contains the larger portion of the machinery, the 4 run of stones being on the second flat. The chopping stone is arranged to be used at will, without interfering with any of the other run of stones. The "packer" is on the ground floor, and is calculated to pack either bags or barrells. On the second floor the wheat will be received and weighed, and then elevated to the top of the building at the rate of 500 bushels an hour. The weighing scales will weigh a load of 60 bushels at one draft. On this flat there is also a packer of the same sort as before described. On the second floor in the south end are four run of stones for flour purposes, one of which will be used for gristing as occasion may require, and in this department the Messrs. Dunne & Sperry have made arrangements for securing for their patrons the fullest yield their wheat will warrant. There are also arrangements by ropes and pulleys for distributing the wheat from the elevator to any bin on the third floor, or to any place required in the building. The north end of the second flat is being fitted up for a flour and feed store, where everything in this department will be kept, and will be delivered to any part of the Town or Ashburnham free of charge.

On the third floor are found the packing chests, one of which will hold about 300 barrels. There are three double boulting chests, and apparatus to correspond, and there is also one for gristing, of the most improved kind, which will ensure farmers all the return their wheat will yield They have also a bran duster.

The fourth flat is to be used as a store house, and will hold about 20,000 bushels of grain. They have also on this flat two coolers, and a middlings purifier capable of purifying the middlings from the four run of stones. There are conveyors for taking the feed, chop, etc., to the end used for that purpose, where it will be kept for sale.

The mill is capable of running off 120 barrels of flour in 12 hours. The machinery has been tested and is giving great satisfaction, it is under the superintendence of Mr. J. Tromanhauser, from Guelph.

Messrs. Deane & Sperry are deserving of patronage for their energy in placing this property in such excellent order. It is very convenient to the market, and centre of the town, and on this account will be largely patronized. The enterprising proprietors are well known for their courteous, obliging, and business like habits, and they will spare no pains to serve the public in the most satisfactory manner. We hope their enterprise will receive its reward in a liberal patronage, and ensure them a full return for their outlay.

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

For five days no news from Osman Pasha has caused some uneasiness at Constantinople. It is feared his communication with Sofia is interrupted. The Porte denies that Osman is hemmed in.

Reuter's agent has advices from Osmam Pasha to Aug. 19th.

A British military attache with the Turkish forces telegraphs from Eski Djuna, twenty miles west of Shumla, that 15,000 destitute refugee Mussulmans are there.

A special despatch, reproduced by the Official Russian Agency, admits the Russian losses in the battles before Plevna were 3,000 to 10,000, half of whom were killed or seriously wounded. About 5,000 are in the hospitals. Of 200 attached to the Red Cross ambulances, forty were killed while collecting wounded.

The reported proclamation by Kossuth is a canard.

The Turkish army in Bulgaria has resolved to offer battle to the Russians, who are commanded by Grand Duke Nicholas 210,000 men will altogether be engaged.

The Russian staff in the recent deliberations favoured an immediate vigorous resumption of operations, and was of opinion no point should be voluntarily evacuated.

A Constantinople special says:—Suleiman Pasha telegraphs he has passed through Kazanlik, and occupied the town of Schipka, evacuated by the Russians.

ASIA MINOR.

The London News says Saturday's engagement before Carss was merely a reconnoissance. Only skirmishing lines were engaged. The Russians withdrew according to prearranged plan.

New York Herald's cable give particulars of Gen. Malikoff's attack on the Turkish line on Sunday. The Turks were driven from their intrenchments at the point off the bayonet. The Russians did not attempt to capture their second line of defence, but retired to their former position. The attack was a feint to cover a strategic movement. The Russians lost 34 killed and 76 wounded; the Turks lost 180 killed.

SERVIA.

Servia still remains neutral though a recent visit of representatives from Russians and Montenegrians is said will result in her drifting into war. No definite advances or engagements are reported this morning with the exception that Suleiman Pasha is moving on the Shipka Pass from the south side of the south side of the Balkans.

A Belgrade special says:—The Russian Generals Fabyeff and Hidrof have arrived; They were received by M. Ristics. A Council of Ministers was afterwards held till four in the morning. Conclusions unknown. It is believed that Servia will soon take part in the war. The Moscow Committee has asked Servia to do so, and offered to assist her with money.

TURKEY.

The ports has ordered an immediate concentration of 80,000 militia of the second-class at Adrianople, Sofia, and other points.

The English iron-clad Agincourt has sailed from Malta for Bunka Bay with four hundred tons of entrenching tools.

The appointment of the Turkish gouverneur of Bulgaria, Suleiman Bakey has been completed.

Canada at the Paris Exhibition:—Dr. May has met with very gratifying success in his canvass for exhibitors at the Paris Exhibition. More than thirty in Hamilton have promised to put in an appearance. In London, more than twenty. In St. Catharines, about twelve, and in Brantford fifteen, with others in proportion. In general the people greatly appreciate the efforts made by the Government in connection with the Exhibitions at Philadelphia and in Australia, and are the more induced to come forward for what promises to be the finest and, for Canadians, the most valuable of them all. The English catalogue will not only give a description of Canada, but of every city, town and vilage from which any exhibitors come, and will also show the character and extent of the manufacturing industries in each, as well as the facilities of production and shipping possessed by each single producer. It is also proposed to interest the different agricultural societies in the country to collect specimens on the stalk of the different cereals grown in Canada, in order to show the number of grains on each head, and the character and quality of the straw. In short, nothing will be spared to make the exhibition of Canadian products a thoroughly effective one, and it will be to their profit, as well as to their honor, if all Canadian manufacturers and producers go as heartily into the work of preparation as many have already done.

LAKEFIELD.

Harvest Home.—It is the intention of the committee of the People's Christian Association to make the 7th of September the occasion of a Harvest Home, by having an excursion to Stoney Lake, where the farmers from Dummer and Burleigh can join those who go up from Lakefield and Youngs' Point. The profits of the excursion are to be devoted towards paying off the debt on the People's Christian Association Hall, and every effort will be made by the committee to make it a grand success. The unusually bountiful harvest with which a kind providence has blessed this section of the country, will no doubt be the cause of bringing many together to this, the first Harvest Home held from Lakefield. The committee hope to have many good speakers present to deliver addresses. Posters will be printed in good time to give all particulars.

The following are the names of the committee, Isaac Garbutt, J. C. Sherin, John Hall, Joseph Nelson, R. A. Strickland.

Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W. & W. the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Huston, R. Ternan, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "it is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from ¼ of an inch thick, down to gauze, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W, will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

Its remprkable power in relieving certain severe forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large. In this Syrup (carefully prepared at low temperature), containing a large quantity of the finest picked Gum in complete solution, all the Tonic Expectorant, Balsamac and Anti-Spasmodic effects of the Red Spruce Gum are fully preserved. WHAT THEY SAY OF IT? A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preperations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man."—A. Maybee Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'one of the best medicines they have ever used;' it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rusan, Township Percy writes, "I persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers Price, 25 cents.

Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold—Pain cannot stay where it is used.

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents' worth has cured an old standing cough. The Most Valuable Gift—Restoration of the Health.

During the past ten years the proprietor of the Great Sheoktoneon Remedy has faithfully redeemed every promise and guarantee made to the public over his signature. Alarming and apparently hopeless cases of Lung Disease, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Afflictions of the Kidney and Chronic Complaints of every description, including Scrofula and Skin Diseases of life-long duration, have been permanently removed and eradicated. Those who volunteered their testimony to the efficacy of the Remedy are not bogus people in unheard-of localities of foreign states, but respectable citizens of this Dominion, easy of access and open to question upon whose verbal recommendations we are willing to test the reputation of the Great Sheoktoneon Remedy. If persons afflicted do not delay until medicine may be pernicious, still permanently injurious effects can possibly follow the use of the Sheoktoneon Remedies, as they contain no minerals, by which the fate of the invalid is so often sealed under the form of some temporary sedative or stimulant. These Indian Remedies are widely known and still possess the public confidence after the lapse of sufficient time to test their efficacy.

The Sheoktoneon Vegetable Sugar Coated Pills have won for themselves the most favorable reputation of any pill before the public. Their efficacy has been fully proved as a remedy for Biliousness, Sick Headache, and Constipation of the stomach. Price of the Remedy in pills, boxes $1; Pills 25 cts. a box.

W. C. NORTH, ESQ.

I have engaged the services of this

WORLD RENOWNED ARTIST

For one month only, from August 12th. This gentleman is acknowledged in the artist world as the Greatest Photographer America ever saw, and is celebrated so much for his touching up for his work. Knowing that I have placed myself under him for improvement, feeling confident that the work finished by him, and the testimony of America's Leading Artists will insure him the warm reception in Canada that he has received in the United States.

My Gallery has been entirely Refitted Throughout.

The public are respectfully notified that it will be impossible to have Pictures by him after the above date. This may be the last opportunity you will ever have to get Perfect Pictures at Moderate Prices.

The "Philadelphia Photographer," the organ of artists, says that Mr. North possesses those great requirements of a portrait photographer:—

"Genuine genius an aptitude for imitating nature; a keen, infinitive perception of human character; a well-trained eye that can see all the delicate play of light and shade on a face; a pleasing address that will place the sitters at ease, and enable him to secure the best expression; a flood of mental resources by which he can adapt himself to different temperaments, and find expedients for every emergency; and withal an unlimited stock of patience, by which he may rise above the perplexities of his calling, and persevere for a successful result with both old and young.

Parties wishing to avoid crowds should make an engagement for their sittings as soon as possible.

The Young Husband's Dilemma.

John had just married and brought home a bride,
A graceful and buxom and beautiful miss;
And when at the altar he stood at her side,
It seemed the last drop in his cup full of bliss.

Indeed she was one of the fairest of creatures
Her lips were like rubies, her teeth white as pearls;
The rose might have borrowed its hues from her features,
The sunlight was mocked by her golden curls.

With feasting and music the swift moments flew,
Till midnight approached, and the bride and her groom,
After bidding their friends and companions adieu
Retired—together of course—to their room.

Then her beautiful wreath and gossemere veil
On the top of the bureau she carefully laid,
Then placing her dress with its long silken trail,
O'er the back of a chair by the side of the bed

And then, one by one—but I can't tell the name
Of the various garments embroidered and white,
Nor the feeling that over the young husband came
As he sat and observed her disrobe for the night.

But many a brilliant illusion, I ween,
The possession of such a position dispells,
To the man who has heard, but never yet seen,
That wonderful process, the peeling of belles.

So John felt on seeing those beautiful curls,
Those glorious masses of bright golden hair;
And the teeth he admired—they were whiter than pearls—
All laid in a box that she placed on a chair.

Meantime in that box something more caught his eye.
To show how the artist Dame Nature can mock;
A full and judiciously chosen supply
Of something ad libb., rouge, enamel and chalk.

From her cheeks came her plumpers, which lest she should loose 'em,
She placed in her toilet box too, with the rest
Then swiftly detached the full, palpitant bosom
Her lover so fondly—so blindly—had pressed.

Then she placed on the chair the huge cushions she wore,
When the husband was still more than ever non-plussed,
To see what he had never witnessed before,
A fair woman's bustle abreast of her bust.

Then touching a spring that was hidden some where,
Her lower limbs parted precisely in halves,
And she laid on the altar—I mean on the chair—
Her last sacrifice, a pair of fat calves.

Her dissection completed, she plunged under cover,
Like a lark that might in a rivulet drop;
Then tenderly asked of her motionless lover,
"My darling how long do you mean to sit up?"

"My dear, I'm quite undecided," he said,
"What course in the cause would be proper and fair—
To follow the fraction that got into bed,
Or stay with the part that is piled in the chair."

THE POTATO BUG.

From the egg to maturity—Its history and habits The danger of Paris Green.

From the Montreal Star.

Science has given to the potato bug or beetle of commerce the formidable name of Doryphora decemlineata, a title large enough, in connection with that of the family Chrysomelidæ, to which it belongs, to include the largest order of vertebrata. The extensiveness of the name has nothing in common with the insignificance of the object it designates in size, but it indicates amply its terrible power in numbers. The potato bug, a handsome chrysomelide itself, is a formidable foe to man and to agricultural industry. Having worked havoc in the United States, it has extended its operations into Quebec, is reaching into new districts, and will soon be familiar to every farmer on the continent of North America. Already has it been transported to and done some damage to the potato crop in Great Britain, Belgium and France. The climates of these countries do not appear, however, to be favourable to its excessive multiplication, and it has, therefore, been kept under control in Europe.

As its name indicates, its history is traced back to Colorado, and its habitat was originally confined, so far as we know, to a small extent of country in the region of the Rocky Mountains, where it fed on solanum rostratum, a species of wild potato, but having in some strange way obtained access to our cultivated plant, Solanum Tuberosum, the ordinary potato, it became at once civilized in its tastes, prodigious in its fecundity and migratory in its habits; so that in the search for food it has settled as a tax upon mankind, and a prey upon his industry in the potato field, and has thus made its way eastward to the larger centres of population, where its favorite food is cultivated in such abundance as to invite and increase its numerous progeny. It does not confine its habitat to the potato plant, but is also found on the tomato, the egg plant, the common henbane, the thorn-apple, and other plants of the order Solanaces. The odor of potato patches, however, probably appeals to the instinct of these insects at great distances, and directs their migratory flight. They travel sometimes in great multitudes, and not only are borne upon the wings of the wind, but also sail down rivers and lakes on trees, timbers and rafts, or ride free on railway cars bound east. We have heard from a friend settled at Muskoka that he has met on Lake Simcoe curious looking yellow logs, floating slowly down, and upon rowing up to examine these, he found them literally covered with swarms of these beetles. They thus occasionally take a rest on the water during their eastern pilgrimage.

The perfect insect is a short, broadish beetle, about ½ in. long by ½ in. broad, with striped wing cases, with ten longitudinal stripes on each wing case, yellowish and black alternately, hence the name "lentined" potato beetle, to distinguish it from another beetle which also invests the potato vine in great numbers, which is smaller and more elongated in form, called the "three lined" potato beetle (Lematrilineata).

It is also distinguished by a broad thorax, with two rows of black spots along each side, and a black head with short antennæ, funnel-formed and thickening towards the apex. In this country, the insect has three broods in each season, and the pupa lies underground during the winter; each female deposits from 700 to 1,000 eggs, which completes their transformation is about 50 days; so that it has been calculated that a single pair are capable of two dozing during a season more than "fifty millions" of progeny! The eggs are deposited under the surface of the leaf in groups of forty or fifty, set up closely on end like eggs of the bed-bug of ordinary execration, but are yellow, or rather orange color. The larva is a fat, fleshly looking grub, reddish-brown when small, orange when large, with black spots along each side, a black head with powerful mandibles. This is, of course, the most voracious stage of the insect's life, though the female beetle is also very destructive. For the next three months it will be found upon the plants in all stages continuously to the close of the season. We are informed that the lar

The Young Husband's Dilemma.

John had just married and brought home a bride,
A graceful and buxom and beautiful miss;
And when at the altar he stood at her side,
It seemed the last drop in his cup full of bliss.

Indeed she was one of the fairest of creatures
Her lips were like rubies, her teeth white as pearls;
The rose might have borrowed its hues from her features,
The sunlight was mocked by her golden curls.

With feasting and music the swift moments flew,
Till midnight approached, and the bride and her groom,
After bidding their friends and companions adieu
Retired—together of course—to their room.

Then her beautiful wreath and gossemere veil
On the top of the bureau she carefully laid,
Then placing her dress with its long silken trail,
O'er the back of a chair by the side of the bed—

And then, one by one—but I can't tell the name
Of the various garments embroidered and white,
Nor the feeling that over the young husband came
As he sat and observed her disrobe for the night.

But many a brilliant illusion, I ween,
The possession of such a position dispells,
To the man who has heard, but never yet seen,
That wonderful process, the peeling of belles.

So John felt on seeing those beautiful curls,
Those glorious masses of bright golden hair;
And the teeth he admired—they were whiter than pearls—
All laid in a box that she placed on a chair.

Meantime in that box something more caught his eye,
To show how the artist Dame Nature can mock;
A full and judiciously chosen supply
Of something ad lib., rouge, enamel and chalk.

From her cheeks came her plumpers, which lest she should loose 'em,
She placed in her toilet box, too, with the rest
Then swiftly detached the full, pajntant bosom
Her lover so fondly—so blindly—had pressed.

Then she placed on the chair the huge cushions she wore,
When the husband was still more than ever non-plussed,
To see what he had never witnessed before,
A fair woman's bustle abreast of her bust.

Then touching a spring that was hidden some where,
Her lower limbs parted precisely in halves,
And she laid on the altar—I mean on the chair—
Her last sacrifice, a pair of fat calves.

Her dissection completed, she plunged under cover,
Like a lish that might in a rivulet drop:
Then tenderly asked of her motionless lover,
"My darling how long do you mean to sit up?"

"My dear, I'm quite undecided," he said,
"What course in the cause would be proper and fair—
To follow the fraction that got into bed,
Or stay with the part that is piled in the chair."

THE POTATO BUG.

From the egg to maturity—Its history and habits—The danger of Paris Green.

From the Montreal Star.

Science has given to the potato bug or beetle of commerce the formidable name of Doryphora decemlineata, a title large enough, in connection with that of the family Chrysomelidæ, to which it belongs, to include the largest order of vertebrata. The extensiveness of the name has nothing in common with the insignificance of the object it designates in size, but it indicates amply its terrible powar in numbers. The potato bug, a handsome chrysomelide itself, is a formidable foe to man and to agricultural industry. Having worked havoc in the United States, it has extended its operations into Quebec, is reaching into new districts, and will soon be familiar to every farmer on the continent of North America. Already has it been transported to and done some damage to the potato crop in Great Britain, Belgium and France. The climates of these countries do not appear, however, to be favourable to its excessive multiplication, and it has, therefore, been kept under control in Europe.

As its name indicates, its history is traced back to Colorado, and its habitat was originally confined, so far as we know, to a small extent of country in the region of the Rocky Mountains, where it fed on solanum rostratum, a species of wild potato, but having in some strange way obtained access to our cultivated plant, Solanum Tuberosum, the ordinary potato, it became at once civilized in its tastes, prodigious in its fecundity and migratory in its habits; so that in the search for food it has settled as a tax upon mankind, and a prey upon his industry in the potato field, and has thus made its way eastward to the larger centres of population, where its favorite food is cultivated in such abundance as to invite and increase its numerous progeny. It does not confine its habitat to the potato plant, but is also found on the tomato, the egg plant, the common henbane, the thorn-apple, and other plants of the order Solanaces. The odor of potato patches, however, probably appeals to the instinct of these insects at great distances, and directs their migratory flight. They travel sometimes in great multitudes, and not only are borne upon the wings of the wind, but also sail down rivers and lakes on trees, timbers and rafts, or ride free on railway cars bound east. We have heard from a friend settled at Muskoka that he has met on Lake Simcoe curious looking yellow logs, floating slowly down, and upon rowing up to examine these, he found them literally covered with swarms of these beetles. They thus occasionally take a rest on the water during their eastern pilgrimage.

The perfect insect is a short, broadish beetle, about ½ in. long by ¼ in. broad, with striped wing cases,

AN INTERNATIONAL QUESTION.

Second only in importance to the labor difficulties of the United States of late has been the Indian troubles. They have been of longer duration, and the greater firmness with which their foundations have, during many years, been laid will in all probability cause a longer time to be occupied in their eradication. The primary cause of the oft recurring Indian wars in the United States lies in the loose way in which the Republic deals with the aborigines, whereby the redman has been robbed on the one hand and the public chest on the other to gratify the cupidity of Indian Agents, and those with whom they are connected both as superiors and inferiors. Indian remonstrances over broken promises have either been totally disregarded, or taken up merely that they might be disposed of as advantageously as possible to the officials themselves. Favour has installed many a man into a position in the Indian Department, that he might there have a chance to reap "casual advantages" in return for political support, either given or to be given. Fear, too, has proved a powerful agent in making men tractable in a party sense. In this way Indian grievances have been used; and, the purpose being gained, they have been dropped without any good resulting to the complaining Indians. It has ever been a matter of votes; and the Indian has no vote. If he had he could be powerful in the United States; but as he has not he is overpowered, and his cry for justice is choked before it reaches executive ears. So far established has this Indian "business" become that those engaged in it feel somewhat secure in their salaries and stealings, especially as they have from year to year gathered round them a multiplicity of branches all depending on them, and all commanding a certain political power that menaces those who would attempt any reform that would encroach on this overgrown organization, held together by the bond of material interest, strengthened by a common cupidity.

While Indian post-traders and other officials succeeded only in raising an agitation in their own territory, creating raids here, and expeditions there, and which were duly magnified to bring through their hands the more money or material, we on this side of the border could congratulate ourselves on our better Indian policy. Even when Captain Jack held an American army in check outside his barren strongholds; and later when north-western chiefs rose to revenge the wrong of their race, we could pass cool opinions on operations that seemed to be calculated to make long campaigns, from which certain officers and officials could reap a rich harvest of public plunder, while the Indians were pursued at a distance that ensured their escape from capture or extermination. When the brave Custer fell amid his little band, Canadian, as well as American hearts thrilled with pity and admiration for the rash, yet heroic general and his companions in the deadly fight. But even this shock did not rouse the United States government to begin to undo the system that has cost so much in annoyance, money, and blood. Further Indian troubles have followed; the war whoop of the savage has been raised on the western plains, and in the mountains; and defiance has been flowing from savage lips in the teeth of the whole American army, which, judging from carefully do-nothing expeditions, the Indians have learned to despise. The troubles have at last attained such alarming proportions as to make probable some earnest movement at Washington for grappling with it.

The case has been more complicated, and made more interesting to Canadians by the retreat into our North-West Territory of Sitting Bull, one of the chiefs defying the American soldiers. He, and his people are not the best kind of visitors at any time; but under the circumstances attending their arrival they are peculiarly unwelcome. Canada has quite enough to do to care for her own Indians, though she has managed to do it well. The Canadian Indians look on the new arrivals as intruders; and the insufficiency of the close contract can only be bad. There is a danger too that Sitting Bull's band may at any time raid from Canada on United States territory, in which case the Canadian authorities would have to take a hand at teaching his bovine Majesty better manners—no easy task with the present small force of Police in the West. Contingencies like these have led to consultations between the Canadian and United States governments, and Mr. Mills, Minister of the Interior, went to Washington to see what could be done in the matter. His explanations of the character and results of the Canadian policy of dealing with the indians, commended our policy to the minds of the wise heads at Washington that it was at first proposed that something of the kind should be adopted in the United States. This seems to have got up such a bruise among the big business fraternity to which we have referred above as dealing in Indian troubles, that the New York Tribune, a leading government organ, has been ordered to declare that the Canadian policy is not adapted to the United States. The reasons given are "rather thin," but it is doubtless necessary for a Republican government to deal cautiously with even an admitted evil, when it can control a big volume of votes, in a country where a Presidential election is never far off. We cannot see why the same principal that makes and respects treaties with Canada's 91,000 Indians will not apply to the 313,000 Indians of the United States. The statement that our Indians are assigned "an area greater than the whole United States," is absurdly incorrect to begin with; but even granting that the United States Indians "are crowded into a territory which is becoming smaller every year," that is no reason why they should be defrauded of the allowances voted them, or why their territory should become yearly smaller without the regular formula of bargain and sale which will prevent their complaint of injustice. On the whole it may be well that the Canadian element has come into this case; and we shall not be surprise if certain modifications of the Canadian policy will yet form the basis of the mode in which the United States government will for the future deal with their Indian tribes.

WHO ARE THE TWENTY CONSPIRATORS?

The Irish Canadian has of late been making dire threats that Professor O'Donoghue and itself will yet do their duty in exposing a number of guilty persons they have hitherto been shielding from the terrible vengeance of the law. On the 8th inst., in answer to the Nouveau Monde, and speaking of O'Donoghue's restoration to his people, the Irish Canadian uses the following burning and beautiful language:—

"Restored he shall be, come what may, the reserves that Professor O'Donoghue's friends here so far have maintained, they will continue to maintain as long as allowed by the necessities of the defence; but in calm indifference to clap-trap cries of 'informer,' will surrender those reserves one by one to their extent—if facts take a form, declaring such a course absolutely unavoidable, of bringing Messrs. Mackenzie and Blake, should those ministers not deal fairly and promptly with one political exile, face to face, through the ready and able service of Ex-Attorney-General Clarke, and a man to be Grand Jury, with the duty of dealing with twenty."

Again it says on August 15th, speaking of Attorney-General Clark:—"Now that he is on his way back to Manitoba, his presence will be employed. if Mr. Mackenzie do not give back Professor O'Donoghue from legal vengeance before many weeks, to make amnesty a question of two races, too hot for the meanness and obstinacy of the Grits."

This is awfully mysterious. All we can gain from it is that the Grits have been so mean as not to understand what has been kept locked in the bosoms of Prof. O'Donoghue and his immediate friends, of whom Attorney-General Clark seems to be one; also that there are twenty persons, not all Irish, who are to be understood as being equally guilty with O'Donoghue, but whom the disinterested friendship of that chivalrous gentleman has kept concealed, while he suffered martyrdom for them all. We are quite willing to believe in the guilt of even more than twenty skulking traitors in Manitoba, who have all along suffered O'Donoghue to expiate alone the crime for which they should all have suffered; but we must confess we cannot for the life of us understand why this same O'Donoghue should have, from mistaken ideas concerning 'honour among thieves,' any hesitation whatever in exposing those who shrank into congenial obscurity when trouble came into their camp; and who are doubtless even now willing to trade on their reputation for loyalty. By all means expose the lot of them!

WATER WORKS FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Of course we are glad the late water works by-law was defeated. The result of the vote was a triumph of popular rights over a designing clique, a triumph in which THE EXAMINER, as the only paper of the town that espoused the cause of the people, claims a share. We tried throughout the discussion to present facts, and to weigh them carefully and temperately, as far as possible separating the question from matters of a merely personal nature, introduced by some of the disputants during the heat of debate. If we have done any man wrong, even by imputation, we do not know of it; and if any has such a grievence against THE EXAMINER, we shall be glad to make room for both complaint and explanation. We have already expressed our opinion of the by-law, and the Act on which it was presumedly based. Though we firmly believe the by-law should not have been submitted in the first place, we as firmly believe that the discussion to which it gave rise has been productive of much good, in directing the attention of the people towards a great public question and provoking thought and producing a fund of general knowledge respecting it, to be used in the future. We cannot, therefore, agree with the Review, that "any further discussion of the subject would be useless." If Peterborough and Ashburnham are ever to have water works, it should only be after full examination of resources, honest calculation of cost, investigation of plans, and intelligent discussion of all various matters pertaining to such a very important public question. The fate of the late scheme should be a studying example of the folly and futility of springing any project of the kind upon an intelligent people. Such hasty action in any case must be looked upon with suspicion; for it is a well recognised principle that any good thing rather courts than bears examination. We trust, therefore, that any future project to provide a water-supply for Peterborough will be preceded by and based upon practical investigation and discussion, instead, as in the last case, of being the somewhat startling preliminary to what should have gone before.

The lack of foundation—or want of candour with the public—in the first place, led to misunderstandings at every turn. One of these cropped up just before the final act; and it is so characteristic that we deem it worthy of more than passing mention. The public meeting on the Friday night last preceding the voting named a committee to consider a system of water works for fire purposes only, and also passed a resolution asking the council to withdraw the $50,000 by-law. The committee so named could not very well act without the endorsation of the municipal body, such confirmation included acquiescence in the request for the withdrawal of the then existing by-law. The council could not recognise the committee proposed by the citizens on the 17th, without doing away with the standing work of its formerly recognised and yet existing committee, by either withdrawing the by-law, or letting it go to a vote of the people, and till the work of the one committee was disposed of, it would be highly presumptuous for a second committee, unrecognized, save by the people, to set itself against the operations of the council. It therefore could not act till the by-law was withdrawn, as requested; and when the council refused one recommendation of the public meeting, it was but natural to suppose it would not recognise the twin recommendation. It may be said that any action of the council towards withdrawing the by-law, on the mere resolution of a public meeting, would have been somewhat irregular. Not more so, however, than its acceptance of the committee named by the public meeting (if one convened by circular can be so-called) at which the lately rejected scheme was first brought up, If the council could take action on so very serious a matter on the simple recommendation of one public meeting, (so-called,) surely its dignity would not prevent it from following the demand of an unmistakeable public meeting, especially after the expressions of the ward meetings, held the week before. It is plain from a comparison of the manner in which the council has acted after the two meetings mentioned, that the members of the body are led by a few dictating persons who have somehow gained an influence over them; and that they are not at all representatives of the people. They should therefore be called on to resign, excepting of course Mr. Rutherford the newly elected member for ward three.

As we have before remarked, care must be taken in well considering the question of water works, before entering into any project for their construction; but especially is this the case when the idea includes a supply for domestic purposes. The all-important question of the public health then arises, with all its different elements, based on sanitary science, unfortunately very little cultivated as a popular study. The danger of speculation interest, or mere enthusiasm, causing a forgetfulness of this ever essential element is well illustrated by the course pursued by the Review in its advocacy of the Otonabee River as the source of a "purer" water supply. This was while the "scheme" was still alive. But no sooner is it dead than the second paper of the town, as if to make reparation for conscious sin, publishes the following encouraging testimony:—

"Already on the Little Lake and the Otonabee we have submerged beds of sawdust and edgings, emitting from their midst the germs of deadly fevers and other contagious diseases, and in sailing on some parts of the Little Lake, it is sickening to inhale the gas and effluvia arising from these beds."

We are glad to see our contemporary at last in his right mind on this question, and discussing it intelligently though indirectly. There is still hope for those who even blunder on the truth occasionally.

FIRE IN ASHBURNHAM.

On Thursday evening last, a fire broke out in the plaining and sash factory of Mr. W. Rombough, Ashburnham, which consumed the plaining factory, also Mr. Wand's plaining factory and sash factory; a building occupied by Mr. Faint as a carding mill, a portion of which was occupied by A. Cope as a turning factory, and also Mr. Cope's dwelling house which was attached, and all his furniture, clothing and beddinv.

The fire commenced about 8.30 p.m., just while the people generally were at the circus. When first seen it was against the door outside of Mr. Rombough's plaining and sash factory, and was so advanced as to prevent getting inside to save any of the tools, or made up work, therefore all in it was entirely destroyed, consisting of all Mr. Rombough's tools, the mens' tools and a considerable quantity of doors, door-facings, blinds etc., for the new west ward school house, and a great deal of other work, all of the machinery, and every thing in the building A portion of this building was occupied by Mr. Henry Owens for the manufacture of his pumps, this was also destroyed, and all the machinery and tools, and the timber lying around.

The fire men were very soon on the ground, and in less than 15 minutes from the ringing of the alarm—were throwing two large streams on the building, but chiefly with a view to preventing extension of the flames, as from the first it was evident the building where it commenced could not be saved. Mr. Wand's building a little north of Mr. Rombough's factory at a very early period caught fire, and owing to the flames and the mill pond, became isolated, thus preventing access to it except by a few persons who chanced to be there early. These few assisted in saving some trifling articles, but very little indeed. The building and almost all in it was consumed, and considerable lumber and work, tools and machinery, nearly wholly.

The building occupied by Mr. Faint, and Mr. Cope being close to the sash factory was soon past being saved, and Cope's dwelling became out off. At first it was thought that the dwelling could be saved but this soon proved to be impossible and the efforts of those present had to be directed to get the stuff out, but it had to be taken over the roof of Messrs. Mowry & Forsyth's sheds, and consequently very little was saved, and the few things got out were badly broken and damaged. At this time Messrs. Mowry & Forsyth's foundry and machine shops appeared to be in danger, as the burning buildings were closely built up to the sheds, but the excellent work of the firemen, and of the men on Mr. Mowry's own small engine fortunately prevented the extension of the fire in that direction. The wind also was very favorable from south east, or the machine shops and saw mills must have been consumed.

The loss is considerable, the buildings all were owned by Mr. Rogers, and were not insured. His loss must be over $2,000.

Mr. Rombough's loss is believed to be over $3,000. He has an insurance of $1,000. He had a policy for $1,000 more but the Company is insolvent.

Mr. Wand's loss is fully $2,000. He has an insurance in the Manufacturer's & Merchants for $1,000.

Mr. Owen's loss is said to be over $1,000. He has an insurance in the Hand-in-Hand for $600.

Mr. Faint had no insurance, we have not heard a statement of his loss.

Mr. Cope's loss in tools, machinery and dwelling house cannot be less than $600. No insurance.

The origin of the fire in a mystery some are charitable enough to think some smoker caused the fire by lighting his pipe and throwing away the match in a heap of ignitable material all around the door, and in this charitable conclusion, the man is said to have been under the influence of whiskey. Others consider it the work of an incendiary, but can assign no reason for it, as all concerned are heavy losers by the fire. But as two attempts have lately been made to set fire to Mr. Cope's dwelling, this fire it is feared was the work of some scoundrel not yet known.

During the progress of the fire, Mr. G. C. Rogers while busy at work by some mishap received a spurt of water from the nozzle, on the side of the head; he being only a few feet from the nozzle, and the engine only 200 feet or so from the fire, the force was equal to a stroke of a hammer. It knocked him down, completely stunning him for a time. He afterwards rallied and worked a little but after the excitement was allayed, he had to be taken home, and we regret to learn that he has since suffered severly from the effects; but we are glad that he is recovering rapidly, although to some extent still suffering.

WAR NEWS.

The war news is still meagre and uncertain, but latest Intelligence favor the Turks. They have gained important advantages in Asia, and have compelled the Russians to act on the defensive. It is now said that the Czar is very ill, and has been ordered by his physicians to leave the camp for repose. Peace it is said is longed for as Russian Head-quarters. The present state of the Russian army is not one of security, and even one decisive engagement might compel them to hasten to their own territory. The telegraphic news of importance will be found in another column.

In the early part of the summer, the Commissioner of Crown Lands, on the representation of Mr. Duncan Anderson, Mr. Bertram and other gentlemen gave $1,000 towards repairs on the Burleigh road, with a view to giving employment to persons along the road, who were said to be in a state of starvation, and who must suffer severely if not assisted in someway. A stranger was sent to see the money expended.

Shortly after giving a friendly notice of this generous act of the Government, and also of the interest taken in the settlement and sufferers by Mr. Duncan Anderson, we received a communication signed "Burleigh," stating that not altogether the needy and suffering settlers were receiving work and aid, but several well-to-do persons, and persons especially who were in Mr. Andersons books for unsettled accounts were being favoured. To this communication Mr. Anderson sought and obtained, readily, the right to reply. His reply induced a second letter from "Burleigh," still urging that his first letter was true in every particular. Here is the letter:—

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I noticed in your issue of the 28th of June, a letter from Mr. Anderson in reply to my letter in your issue of the 14th of June. In that letter Mr. Anderson denies that it was necessary for a man to be in debt to a certain person before he could obtain work on the Burleigh Road. I can only say in reply to that, that circumstances are greatly against him, and if we had the names of all persons employed on that road with the amount received by each and also what percentage of the money expended went into the pocket of Mr. Anderson, he would be placed in an unenviable position. Mr. Anderson does well to come out and defend what he has done for the reason that some of those gentlemen who used their influence with the Government might think there was something really wrong. He may well feel uneasy after betraying the trust placed in him by those gentlemen for I can assure him the facts of the case (and they are stuborn things to get over) will be placed before some of those gentlemen so plainly that it will take a smoother tongue than his, if it is possible to get one, to explain them away.

I am yours, &c.,
BURLEIGH.

As a journalist we considered it our duty to insert the letters of both parties lest we might be held unmindful of public interests, and willing to encourage or cover the misuse of public moneys intended, as was held to relieve, persons almost about to starve, instead of being given to parties not suffering, but who owed Mr. Anderson. These letters pro and con we inserted as a journalist in the interest of the public, and with no intention of affording an opportunity of reflecting unduly on Mr. Anderson.

Last week we received a visit from Mr. Edwards, of the firm of Scott & Edwards, wishing to obtain the real name of the correspondent whose letter appeared in our columns on the 12th of July, referring to matters on the Burleigh Road, in which it intimated that Mr. D. Anderson had been affording advice and influence to give work to persons on the road who were in his debt or warmest friendship, and because we believed that the obtaining of the name of the writer was the only object of the visit, and not a sense of having suffered any wrong or injury from the publishing of the letter, we refused the name of our correspondent. On the 24th inst., we received a letter from Messrs. Scott & Edwards, threatening to institute legal proceedings against us unless a satisfactory apology be made and the name of the writer of the letter alluded to be furnished to them, as Mr. Anderson's Attorneys, we suppose.

If we could believe that we had in any way wronged Mr. Anderson, either in fact or in intent, or if he or his attorneys will point out to us how we have done so, we will be glad to do Mr. Anderson ample justice, as we have always been on the most friendly terms with him, and have refused more than once to publish communications reflecting adversely on him, in his public capacity.

We had no feelings of antagonism or illwill towards Mr. Anderson then, nor have we now. If the only object he has in view is to obtain the name of a correspondent to gratify a mere spirit of curiosity, we must still refuse to gratify that spirit.

Fully convinced that Mr. Anderson has not been wronged or injured by us or by our correspondent, and that there was no malice or illwill on his part or on our part, and certified by our correspondent that all that is contained in the letter referred to is true, and inasmuch as Mr. Anderson has already taken action, we feel still inclined to keep the secrets of our office to ourselves, even at the risk of a little bluster.

THE Journalistic jews-harp of the waterworks schemers acknowledges that the duration of the discussion was "a time of excitement." Open confession is good for the soul, even when it is a small one.

WE accept the Review's apology for the use of the word "purer;" though we consider it quite unnecessary.

THE "old man" of the Review continues to moan at our youthfulness. Time we are young, and comparatively green; but the verdancy of youth is preferable to venerable toothlessness. Of course we speak in general terms.

THE Monetary Times has referred to the Peterborough water works debate, which it chooses to call a wrangle. It is of little import what it is termed, any wrangle that may have taken place was on the part of the advocates of an extravagant outlay for what could be obtained for one half the sum they proposed to force from the ratepayers. The Monetary Times (usually well informed,) is somewhat astray in reference to the Act fixing a limit of $50,000. The Act fixes a limit of twice as much, viz: $100,000. The opinion of the Monetary Times on some matters we are ready to accept as wise and practicable, but on this question the people must be the judges of what they want, and as to who sets forth the facts of the case. The fact that the advocates feared discussion, and refused to come before the people with anything except personal abuse, affords strong proof that they had no well digested plan to lay before the people. This fact, together with another fact, namely, that the people had not sufficient confidence in the promoters of the by-law, has defeated water works of any kind for the present, and what advantages have been thus cast away, or whatever disadvantages may ensue, may all be attributed to the advocates of an expenditure that was, and is, held to be intended as only a beginning that would end in three or four times the amount now asked for. That any of the advocates fully set forth all the facts of the case is doubted by disinterested persons, cognizant of all that took place during the discussions.

WAR NEWS.

The Russians Again Defeated in Asia

VIRTUAL CLOSE OF THE CAMPAIGN.

THE BULGARIAN CAMPAIGN.

A despatch from Shumla states that the Turks, on Friday night, at Papaskeim after a severe engagement, turned the Russians left wing. The Russians were repulsed along the whole line, suffering severe loss.

It is supposed that Suleiman Pasha's attack on the Shipka Pass was a mere feint to enable him to effect a junction with Mehemit Ali. The Pass offers a front for only eight hundred or a thousand men. The estimate of the attacking forces at forty battalions is the Russian one. Suleiman Pasha's advance is rumored to be at Bebrova, and Mehemit Ali for the first time shows activity. It is reported that the attack on Tirnova is probably an exaggeration of Mehemit Ali's movement from Eski Djuma toward Jomlitz to join Suleiman Pasha. The Turkish reinforcements bear a smaller ratio to the Turkish army than the Russian reinforcement to the Russian army. The Russian troops at Sistova rioted because of the bad provisions and threw 100,000 mouldy loaves into the Danube. The Russians are preparing for a prolonged campaign, contracting for bridges across the Danube that can withstand the ice, fortifying places in the Dobrudscha, and accumulating war material there. The Turks are on the alert. Prince Hassan will engage Gen Zimmerman, while Fazli Pasha, supported by Hobart Pasha's fleet, will operate on the Lower Danube against Kilia and Nikolaeska. The fleet is expected to strike a blow between Sulina and Odessa, to parry which the Russians have sent reinforcements.

A despatch from Gorny Studeni says the Turks assaulted the Shipka pass Thursday on three sides,, but every onslaught was repulsed. In the evening the rifle corps stormed the heights on the Russian right flank. Desperate fighting took place and was stopped at midnight by the moon's eclipse. The Russians maintained their positions in spite of the Turks numerical superiority and cross fire. This was the fourth day the Russians fought Suleiman Pasha's entire army without rest or warm nourishment. Friday's fighting was limited to a cannonade, when the Turkish left wing, threatening the Russian rear, was driven from its position. All is quiet at Loftcha and Plevna.

Suleiman Pasha telegraphs to Constantinople confirming the battles of Wednesday and Thursday. The Russians are surrounded and are likely to be captured.

The New York Time's cable special says the Turks number 50,000 at Ragard 40,000 at Osman Bazar, 40,000 with Suleiman Pasha, and 55,000 at Plevna and Lofctcha under Osman Pasha, faced by 200,000 Russians. The Turks must send 20,000 from Plevna to meet the Roumanian army. The Shipka Pass fighting is only one feature in the Turkish movement towards Tirova. The Turks show brilliant generalship.

It is announced in Paris from Russian sources that the Shipka Pass has been evacuated.

Col. Wellesley, after a careful investigation, reports that the accusations against the Russians of cruelties are entirely unfounded. Little quarter, however, is shown by either side in the war.

The Russians admit that after defeating the Turks at Aghaslar they were compelled to retire to Sulban Koi. Mehemet Ali puts the Russian loss in these operations at 400 killed and many wounded. The Russians assert that their loss is 70 killed and 285 wounded. The Russians say their loss at the Shipka Pass is considerable, 1427 wounded being brought to Gabrova. The number of killed is unknown. The cannonade in the Pass was renewed on Saturday.

Suleiman Pasha telegraphs than he has taken the two principal Russian works in the Shipka Pass.

An Adrianople despatch says Suleiman Pasha has taken a third Russian work in the Shipka Pass, and is attacking Gabrova.

A Gorny Studeni despatch says the Russian General Donoschinsky was killed on Sunday in the Shipka Pass. He commanded in the first three days' fighting.

Constantinople advices say that the Russians lost 4,000 in the above affair.

The Paris Temps says intelligence from an authentic source stated that Suleiman Pasha captured the Shipka entrenchments with fifteen guns, and advanced toward Gabrova.

A Bucharest despatch says the rumours of disagreement between the Roumanian Government and the Russian headquarter authorities are malicious inventions. The Roumanian army will operate as previously arranged.

A Gorny Studeni correspondend says that Friday's reinforcements should insure the safety of the Shipka pass. On Sunday the fighting at the pass was renewed, but the Russians are likely to hold the position. Suleiman Pasha merely wastes his army in dashing it against Shipka. On the 21st when the fighting began, the Russians were 3,000 strong with 40 cannon. Mines were exploded in the trenches just as the Turkish assailing columns were over them, and many Moslems were blown into fragments. By Thursday the Turks had almost surrounded the Russians, and the latter sent a despatch to the Czar for reinforcements. The Russians were hired out when Radetzky arrived with reinforcements, and took general command. The defenders then numbered 13,000. The Turkish guns raked the road by which the reinforcements came. The object of Friday's fighting was to drive the Turks from their well wooded position flanking the Russians. Desperate fighting occurred, mostly with musketry. Little impression could be made by a front attack, so a counter flank movement was decided on. The Turks met it with a tremendous fire. The struggle lasted a full hour, when the Turks withdrew on the right and left, leaving only their central position to be attacked.

THE CAMPAIGN IN ASIA.

Nothing is doing in Armenia. The Turks retain their position from which Mukhtar sought to drive them. Both the Russian and the Russians have diverted troops to Batoum Asiatic troops to the Montenegrin seat of war.

Mukhtar Pasha telegraphs from Gumlikhan on Saturday that the Turks carried the heights of Kisiltepe on Friday night, repulsing three Russian attempts to retake them. Two hundred cannon were brought into action. The engagement became a great battle, lasting till six o'clock on Saturday evening. The Russians were routed, losing 4,000 men, including General Schoutchawroff, commander of the cavalry, and a large quantity of arms and munitions. The Turkish loss was 1,200. Mukhtar's horse was wounded.

An Erzeroum telegram says on Friday the Russians advanced on the Kurukdara and were compelled to retreat after five hours engagement

A Batoum despatch says Dervish Pasha on Friday, captured the redout of Djeandjiur. A hundred Russians were killed.

In consequence of Mukhtar Pasha's victory General Kembell regards the campaign in Armenia as closed for this year.

TURKEY.

Ahmed Vefik Pasha, President of the Chamber of Deputies, has been appointed Governor of Adrianople. Mustapha Pasha Governor of Tripoli, has been appointed Minister of war, ad interim.

It is stated that the Porte will ask Greece to explain her armaments.

LAKEFIELD.

HARVEST HOME.—It is the intention of the committee of the People's Christian Association to make the 7th of September the occasion of a Harvest Home, by having an excursion to Stoney Lake, where the farmers from Dummer and Burleigh can join those who go up from Lakefield and Youngs' Point. The profits of the excursion are to be devoted towards paying off the debt on the People's Christian Association Hall, and every effort will be made by the committee to make it a grand success. The unusually bountiful harvest with which a kind providence has blessed this section of the country, will no doubt be the cause of bringing many together to this, the first Harvest Home held from Lakefield. The committee hope to have many good speakers present to deliver addresses. Posters will be printed in good time to give all particulars.

The following are the names of the committee, Isaac Garbutt, J. C. Sherin, John Hull, Joseph Nelson, R. A. Strickland.

A TORONTO PAPER SAYS:—Yesterday interesting experiments were made by the Montreal Telegraph Company as to the working of the telephone. In the evening a large number of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the room of Mr. Dwight, Superintendent of the Montreal Telegraph Company, at their head office, corner of Wellington and Scott streets. From this a wire was stretched round by Scarboro' to Mr. Dwight's private house, Carleton street, embracing a circuit of something like twenty miles. The telephonic apparatus was attached at either end, and the success was perfect. Mr. Dwight's voice was recognised by all in his room, and the voices of the officials and many of the visitors by those who were in Mr. Dwight's private residence. The tendency of the experiments was to show the simplicity and the convenience of the apparatus. In other parts of the city, also, trials were made, and at Court street Police Office as great a success was achieved.

SUPERSTITION.

A panacea, or "cure-all," is one of the myths of the age of superstition. Dr. R. V. Pierce does not recommend any one or even his whole list of standard remedies as adequate to cure every disease. For severe lingering coughs, bronchial, throat, and chronic lung diseases, he believes his Golden Medical Discovery is unsurpassed, but it will not cure you if your lungs are half wasted by consumption. The Discovery not only exercises a potent influence over pulmonary affections, by reason of its pectoral properties, but possess also the most valuable alterative, or blood-cleansing properties, and is therefore a sovereign remedy in blood and skin affections. But while it will cure scrofulous and other ulcers or sores, blooches, pimples, and eruptions, it will not cure cancer, nor does its manufacturer claim any such merit for it as is done by proprietors of other blood-cleansing medicines, who dishonestly try to deceive the afflicted into the belief that their preparations will accomplish impossibilities. By reason of its real intrinsic merit it has a sale surpassing that or any other blood and cough medicine. 34 3ins.

One More Unfortunate.

Almost every day the papers chronicle the suicide of some poor unfortunate whose mind has been enfeebled by dyspepsia, over whose earthly horizon a heavy gloom has gathered from the untold and untellable agonies of this cruel complaint. Dyspepsia is one of the most depressing diseases afflicting humanity. It is cosmopolitan in its nature—no country is exempt from its visitations, no family is free from its attacks. There is a balm in Gilead; it comes in the shape of the PERUVIAN SYRUP. For years it has been scattering its blessings abroad There is probably no disease which experience has so amply proved to be so remediable by the PERUVIAN SYRUP as dyspepsia. The most inveterate forms of this disease have been completely cured by this medicine, as ample testimony of many of our first citizens prove. Sold by all druggists.

PETERBOROUGH, AUG. 30, 1877.

The Schools re-open next Monday.

There are more hunters than ducks.

The evenings are growing shorter and cooler.

Plums are plentiful, lots of them in the market.

Look out for Deane & Sperry's advertisement next week.

Why do bricklmakers die young? Because theirs is such a kiln business.

W. H. Rivers, the actor, admits in the Detroit News that he is dishonorable and unpunishmently.

Second Ward.—Mr. W. Paterson, Jr. was elected in the Second Ward on Thursday last in the place of Mr. Elder, resigned.

The advocates of water works are now termed, "the originators of mud-hole laystories." Now, gentlemen, how is this?

A popular clergyman in a neighboring town delivered a lecture on "Fools." The admission tickets read, "Lectures on Fools. Admit one."

Cricket.—A game of cricket will be played to-day, between the Lakefield and Peterborough cricket clubs. The match is to be pitched at 10.30 a.m.

Dunkin has already aroused his opponents here. They are actively engaged canvassing against him. They may hasten slowly, there is time enough.

Before purchasing your fall stock of boots and shoes see R. Stetson & Son's immense stock, which they are offering both wholesale and retail at lowest possible prices for cash.

No Quorum.—There was no meeting of the Town Council on Monday evening, there being no quorum; several of the councillors being absent from town, spending a few days vacation.

Gospel Temperance Meetings.—Mrs. Kent Mason will deliver an address this (Thursday) evening in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, commencing at 7.30. Subject: "What we need." All should hear her.

Remember the auction sale of the house and lot belonging to Mr. Bushnell, Esq., on Tuesday the 4th of September, at two o'clock. The place is beautifully situated, and within a few minutes walk of the Post Office.

Boating Club.—The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club for September will be held at the Boat House on Monday evening next at 7.30, when final arrangements will be made in regard to the regatta.

Removal.—Mr. Erskine, during the past week, has removed his business to the shop adjoining Mr. McClelland's jewellry store, on Hunter street. The shop has been refitted in excellent style, and is quite attractive in appearance.

Excursion.—An excursion party to Mount Julien on Tuesday by over all night at Lakefield. We understand that there were several excursions during the night from the train, but all found their way back to it in time to return home at 6 o'clock in the morning.

Manufactures in Cobourg.—The Peterborough, Cobourg and Marmora Railway and Mining Company applies to the Ontario Assembly for, among other things, the power to acquire land in Cobourg for the purpose of erecting furnaces and manufacturing iron.

As previously announced, the Firemens' Band will give a promenade concert in the Drill Shed this evening, assisted by the O. Y. B. Band of Port Hope. The proceeds to assist in purchasing some new instruments as they intend to play at the Central Exhibition at Lindsay in October.

The Sporting Season.—On Saturday, the first of September, the sporting season commences for deer, grouse, partridges, hares and rabbits. Quail cannot be shot until the first of October. Every young man or boy who can buy or borrow a shot gun is getting it in order just now.

Fire.—Mr. Loch, furrier, sold two seal jackets to two of the ladies belonging to the circus on Thursday last at $160.00 each. The ladies said that they were the cheapest articles of the kind that they had seen anywhere on their travels, and that Peterborough was the place to come to buy seal jackets at moderate prices. This must be flattering to Mr. Loch.

Sidewalks.—We would call the attention of the Street Inspector to the new sidewalk being laid down on George street; some of the scantling are rotten, and besides the work is not being done in a workmanship like manner and some of it would need the presence of the Inspector a little oftner if possible. A sidewalk in the business portion of the town shou'd be laid with a little pretention to regularity.

Camp Meeting.—There is to be a Camp Meeting held on the farm of Mr. Thomas Richardson, in the Township of Cavan, within two miles of Bethany, commencing on Friday, the 17th of September, at 10 a.m. The Midland Railway will give return tickets at a single fare and will stop trains at a temporary platform, erected opposite Mr. Richardson's farm. It is expected that the meeting will continue several days.

Private Excursion and Dinner.—On Tuesday a large number from Cobourg availed themselves through invitation of Mr. Barber to a free excursion from Cobourg to Peterborough. The "Isaac Butts" carrying the excursionists from Harwood to Peterborough. On their arrival in Peterborough arrangements having been previously made, they were entertained at a dinner at the Huffman House, in Mine Hosts, Huffman's, best style. About one hundred sat down to dinner. They left by the "Isaac Butts" for home about 5 p.m., seemingly well pleased with their trip.

Funny.—The Conservatives of Lindsay are excited over the slaughter of American goods there, and are loudly calling for Protection on account thereof. The facts we believe are these:—A not very scrupulous mechanic of Peterborough manufactured some articles dubbed them "American," took them to Lind, say and sold them as Americans, at what was considered slaughter prices. It examined closely the purchaser may discover enough Peterborough saw dust about them (in them) to convince him that there may be Canadians cheap enough to palm off sawdust for American upholstery.

Personal.—We regret to learn that Mr. A. Smith, of the firm of Smith, Boyd & Co., is very seriously ill in Quebec. He was at Quebec on business, and taking ill Mrs. Smith was telegraphed for, and left here on Thursday for Quebec. It is said to be a paralytic stroke, and no serious that danger is apprehended. The greatest sympathy is expressed for the afflicted family by all classes of citizens here, with the earnest wish that he may not be so ill as reported. Since the above we learn that telegrams have been received confirming the severity of the attack, and expressing no change to any noticeable extent.

Accident.—While a number of young men from the Village of Millbrook were on their way out here to the circus on Thursday last, they became running races, and in trying to pass a team were overturned into the ditch, breaking the hind spring, and upsetting the rig, severely injuring and breaking the collar bone of one of them, and knocking several pickets out of place and removing several pieces of flesh from others. A farmer coming to their assistance, brought them who were badly bruised up here, and after the necessary repairs had been made, some of them left for home by the evening train and others waited for the morning train.

The London Circus.—The street parade made by this organization on Thursday morning last was equal to anything of the kind seen here of late years. There were two bands, ninth instrument, two big cages, with the keepers in the midst, many fine saddle horses mounted by male and female riders, teams of diminutive ponies and mules, numerous cages of animals drawn by good horses in excellent condition, interspersed in many carriages on the occasion, a four horse chariot, driven by a female, a buckboard, ox the same with a clown for driver, then came five large advertising and other features of interest. The shows in the afternoon and evening was largely attended.

Fell Him Round.—R. H. Bryant, an Upholsterer in Peterborough during the last four months has suddenly decamped—destination unknown. Several Mechanics, Printers, and others are pleased that he did not stay longer here, and are glad bogus knight have harnessed. When last heard from he was slaughtering furniture in Lindsay, palmed off as "American," but really made here. Bought, we suppose, on credit, pay day indefinite, he turned all he got into cash at anything he could obtain for it. There is no desire expressed here for his return, but all request that his name may go before and his weaknesses follow after, him to save innocent people from becoming his victims. Pass him around, gentlemen, for your own sakes! He rarely pays the Printer!

The Model School.—On Monday there was a special meeting of the School Board to receive a report from the committee to which this subject was referred. Mr. Shaw reported on behalf of the committee, recommending the acceptance of the school in Peterborough. The Board received and adopted the report, and authorized proper arrangements for the working of the school. The Model school will therefore open here on Monday next, under the management of Principle Jeffers, in the mean time merely provisionally, as it is the intention of the Board to make arrangements, at an early date, for carrying out the regulations of the Minister of Education in reference to Model Schools. Those candidates who wish to avail themselves of the Model School would do well to signify their intention at once to the Principal, or to the Public School Inspector.

Mrs. Kent Mason, so favourably known as a Temperance Lecturer, addressed a very large audience in Bradburn's Hall on Sabbath evening. Fully 1,000 persons were present. Her appearance is greatly in her favour, but independent of this she is an excellent speaker, clear, logical and earnest, with a very nice delivery. On Monday evening she lectured in the Bible Christian Church to a full house, and was attentively listened to. On Tuesday evening she again addressed a good house in Bradburn's New Hall. Although the evening was unfavorable, 450 to 500 persons were out to hear her. Her subject was: "Responsibilities and Victory," and the lecture exceeded even expectation. The Revds. Messrs. Mulhern, Baptist; Roberts and Metherel, Bible Christian, were on the platform, and where active in their assistance, and sympathy with the work of this excellent lady.

John Joseph Valois was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison for stealing flour out of the flouring mills of Mr. G. C. Rogers, Ashburnham.

W. H. Walsh was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison for stabbing W. H. Metherall.

Murphy Wave, or Blue Ribbon Movement.—Mrs. "Kent Mason"—Mrs. Clayton—has held several meetings here during the week, and delivered exellent addresses on the subject of temperance. This lady is a native of New England. Her home has been for years in Hartford, Connecticut. She is a member of the Methodist Church in that city, and connected with the Women's Christian Association. She has best of references from the pastor of her church, from Rev. Dean Bond, of Montreal, Rev. Dr. Douglass, Rev. Mr. Murray, Presbyterian, of London, Ont., and other well known gentlemen of Toronto. She is the wife of a Methodist minister, Kent Mason being a professional name. She has been over four years engaged in Gospel Temperance work, for which she appears to be well adapted. Her earnestness in appeal, her clear reasoning, and untiring labor, are all combined to ensure her success. She has inaugurated here what is known as the Murphy, or Blue Ribbon Movement. Over one hundred and fifty persons have already signed the pledge at her meetings,about 35 of whom are persons who have never taken any interest in the temperance question before. Each one signing the pledge not to drink intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and pledging himself to urge others not to use intoxicating liquors, is invested with a badge or blue ribbon, and she requests that all who have signed will wear the badge at her meetings. To-night she will deliver an address in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, subject: "What we Need," and we can assure our readers that they cannot spend two hours better than in hearing her. By request she will preach on Sunday afternoon in Bradburn's Hall, at four o'clock, subject: "The Prodigal Son." This will afford an excellent opportunity to hear her which should not be neglected.

Young Canadian's Pic-Nic.—The Young Canadians of Peterborough held their annual Pic-Nic to Idyl Wild on Tuesday last, and as usual their pic-nic is generally the pic-nic of the season. At 8 a. m. the Golden-Eye left the wharf with about 300 on board, who were fully intent on having a good day's enjoyment; and a more agreeable and happy party could not go down the river. The Firemen's Band accompanied them, and added much to the day's enjoyment by playing several of their selections. A Scow was attached to the boat at Hale's Bridge, which was speedily taken possession of by the lovers of fun. Music was furnished by Martin's Quadrille Band. On the way down considerable amusement was created by rather a plain-looking old gentleman taking a fancy to three gay young ladies from Peterborough. The ladies had quite a nice time, as the old gentleman was treating them to ice Cream and other delicacies. After they thought they had sufficient, they found that it was not an easy matter to get clear of him, as the old gentleman wanted at least a smile for the little kindness that he had so lavishingly bestowed on them. Here some quick movements took place from the scow to the boat, as neither place had charms for them long at once. The Boat arrived at Idyl Wild at 1 p. m. when all partook of a hearty dinner; afterwards a regatta took place in which Indians and Indian women took part, and created much amusement. The first race was a double canoe race by Indians, 6 entries, 1st prize, R. Crowe and J. Crowe; 2nd, Jas Morrison and Jas Simpson. Double canoe race for Indian women, 1st prize, Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Muskrat; 2nd Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Crowe. Single canoe race, 4 entries, 1st, prize, James Howard; 2nd, Jerrie Crowe. Foot race, 6 entries, 1st. prize, E. Cumage; 2nd, Jas. Howard. After the races were all over the winners were presented with their prizes. All left for home at 5 p. m. On the way home great excitement was aroused by a couple of weddings (which are imaginary at present, but to be realized in no distant day.) Some of the ladies and gentlemen on board becoming so enamoured with each other they were anxious to enter into the bonds of matrimony, and found that there was very little difficulty in doing so. In a few minutes a gentleman came forward with a license, a clergyman and a bride's cake. There must have been some expectations of something of the kind taking place, when everything was in readiness in such short notice. After the ceremony the two happy couples were the recipients of wedding presents and were also serenaded by the Band, after which they went on their tour to the bow of the boat, it being the furthest trip that it was possible to take at the time. The excursionists arrived home about 11 o'clock p. m., after enjoying a very pleasant day and wishing that the Young Canadians would soon afford them the pleasure of another trip. All on board speak in the highest terms of the courtesies extended to them by Capt. Dean.

Excellent Disinfectant.—Onions sliced and put in plates in a sick room are an excellent disinfectant, and will prevent contagion from eruptive troubles. They should be removed, and fresh slices put in their places, as soon as dissolved. Be sure that these slices are buried or put where they cannot be eaten, as soon as taken from the room. It is not safe to use onions that are not taken fresh from the earth, during any epidemic of eruptive diseases, as they are so quickly sensitive to or impregnated with any contagion or malaria in the atmosphere.

GAMEBELLFORD.

—On the night of 22nd inst., another severe fire took place here. It originated in the sash factory owned by Mr. Cockburn, and occupied by Mr. Bonor, and before the fire brigade got to work it was in a mass of flames. The woolen factory on the south side, owned by Messrs. Gault Bros. & Co., of Montreal, and operated by Messrs. Morris & Co., next took fire, at the same time reaching the block of buildings on the north side of the sash factory. One was owned by Geo. Vanderveort, and occupied by Mr. Fogg as a furniture warerooct. The other two buildings in this block were owned and occupied by Dr. Bogart. The loss in severe, as the hands working in the factories, some forty in number, will be thrown out of employment. Losses—Messrs. Gault Bros., $14,000; there is thought to be but little insurance. R. Cockburn's loss was $4,000; no insurance Messrs. Morris' loss, covered by insurance, except wood, about $200. Geo. Vanderveort's loss $600; no insurance. Dr. Bogart loses, both on buildings, stock and furniture, from $3,000 to $4,000; partial insurance—about $1,500. Losses to insurance companies—Royal Canadian $3,000; Citizens', $1,500; others not known.

STONY LAKE.

At the regular monthly meeting of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 530, held at Stony Lake. It was moved by Bro. Christopher Crow, and seconded by Bro. David Drain Sen., and resolved—First; That we, the members of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 530, cannot let this meeting of our Lodge close without expressing our sorrow, and regret at the death of our beloved Brother, Thomas Let Hack, et, who was brutally murdered in the City of Montreal on the 12th day of July last, by a mob ot ruffians, formed expressly for the purpose of disturbing the peace, and for riot. Secondly; We express our deepest sympathy with the relations and friends of our deceased Brother, in their deep affliction and bereavement. Thirdly; Condemn the conduct of the Mayor of the City in the strongest terms, in not using the powers with which he was legally vested, for the suppression of the riotous mob, that he was aware was likely to distur b the streets on that day. Forthly; That we as Orangemen demand, that our rights as British subjects, must be protected by the Authorities of Montreal, as well as in any other part of the British Dominion's. And that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Peterborough Examiner, and the Montreal Witness for publication.

The gifts of pilgrims to the Pope during the celebration of his jubilee amounted to $3,295,276.20, of which $1,818,000 was in gold. Of this sum $800,000 will be placed in the Papal treasury; a like amount will be invested in the funds for employees and soldiers and their families who have remained faithful to the Pope; a like amount will be expended in rebuilding monumental churches, constructing useful works and encouraging the arts and sciences; the remainder of the money will be devoted to charitable purposes.

A good deal of dissatisfaction has been created in Orange circles by the conduct of the Grand Sovereign in shirking the Hackett funeral procession in Montreal. Some of the more pronounced Orangemen say that if Mr. Bowell shirks the 12th of July procession in Montreal next year, they will have to get another Grand Sovereign. Others, however; take the view that the Grand Sovereign's conduct admits of satisfactory explanation—that, like a wise general, he is careful not to expose his followers to the risk of losing the invaluable services of their leader. Altogether, it is a pretty quarrel as it stands.

Pleasant Bedroom.—There is nothing more indicative of refinement and genuine culture in a family than bright, cheerful and tastefully decorated bed chambers. Tasteful decorations do not necessarily mean expense, and it is possible to make a chamber look very pretty at a very small outlay. Indeed, in many instances, no outlay at all will be required beyond what would be incurred under any circumstances. The woman of a family, especially, are apt to pass a good portion of their time in their bed chambers, and in some households the sleeping apartments are used alike for sewing-rooms, sitting-rooms, and nurseries. It is worth while to obtain all the innocent pleasure we can find in this life, and there can be no doubt that life is pleasanter if most of its hours are passed in cheerful-looking apartments.

We learn from the Hamilton Times that a "hatter"—I e., a person passing round the hat for the wherewithal for the projected John A. demonstration—was bluntly refused a subscription by a leading Bank. The "hatter" hardly knew what to make of it. The incident "messed him surprise." Things evidently are not as they used to be. The days have gone by of Sir Hugh Allan "subscriptions;" Northern, G. T. R. and G. W. R. millings; Secret Service money grabgames; ordnance lands for lovies, &c., &c. Recent revelations have shown how systematically blackmail was levied among the old regime on nearly every official and public institution in the country, the Banks not excepted, and how much of the Tory success was due to possession of enormous bribery funds. Now all these sources of supply are cut of, and the Tories know that their only chance of success has vanished. No wonder they are not good-natured.

The Clawson Wheat.—An important contribution to the controversy about Clawson wheat is made by the Hon. Geo. Geddes, one of the ablest writers in the Country Gentleman, and one of the most experienced farmers in his State:—"Last year an attempt to discredit this kind of wheat for making good flour was made at Detroit, and Michigan farmers were very much alarmed about the time of sowing wheat. Letters were written to me, and much interest taken in the question among wheat raisers and millers. Letters are now coming in upon me making like enquiries. My answer is, that in Syracuse, Clawson wheat is quoted as high as Dehl. Wicks, or Treadwell, and certainly the Syracuse millers have ground this wheat long enough, and in sufficient quantities, to know its real value for making flour. To close this matter, and answer at once all enquiries, I add to the foregoing, that being a grower of wheat for more than forty years on the best wheat lands, and having raised many varieties, I consider the Clawson the very best of them all, taking everything into consideration.

They had a very interesting trial at the United States Land Office, in Los Angeles the other day, the case being Ketchum vs. the State of California, with Messrs. Gould & Blanchard as attorneys for plaintiff, and Judge Widney for defence. Mr. Gould called Ketchum and asked: "What "became of Lasheais?" Witness—"He "was hanged by Judge Widney and some "other persons." Judge Widney quickly arose and drew a pistol from his pocket, and holding the muzzle down, addressed Ketchum substantially as follows: "You "say I murdered a man! You lie, you "perjured villian! I was in the County "courtroom trying a case at the time "Lasheais was hanged, and knew nothing whatever about it. If you and "your crowd are armed to assassinate or "murder me, draw your pistols and go "on." Mr. Gould—"We are not armed." Judge Widney—"Then I will "put away my weapon, as I will not use "it on an unarmed man." The case then proceeded without interruption until the noon adjournment, when Judge Widney asked Mr. Gould if his party intended coming armed or unarmed in the afternoon, as he would be governed entirely by their actions. He said he only wanted a fair show,. but did not intend that any one should get the drop on him. Mr. Gould made no definite promise.

Educational Scandal.

The Toronto Central Committee in connection with the Educational affairs of this Province have made a startling discovery. It has been found out that between thirty and forty of the teachers, including the gold medalist who passed the recent examination for teachers, had got hold of examination papers before the examination, and were thus enabled to pass the test without difficulty. The correctness of the papers first attracted attention, and the Committee began to suspect a leak somewhere. They had however, hardly any clue to work on. At last a clerk in the Education Office confessed that he had given a set of papers to a friend, who had entreated him very strongly to do so. It was found that the teacher thus obliged by the clerk had not given any one else the advantage of the papers, and the Committee directed their investigation to other quarters. They soon struck a vein which led to a printer in the employ of Hunter, Rose & Co., the printers of the papers, as the guilty party. Notwithstanding the usual care, and that the contractors had exercised every precaution that the Committee had directed should be observed in the printing, this man got hold of a complete set of the papers, copies of which he sold to candidates for teachers' certificates. Mr. Hardy the acting Minister of Education, was informed of what had happened and he at once took steps to have the dishonest printer arrested and punished, but he had already got wind of the investigation and fled the country. The clerk in the education office was discharged. What will be the result of the discovery is not yet settled. All those known to have bought the illicit papers will have their certificates cancelled and perhaps the whole examination will be vitiated.—Whig.

It is even hinted that the papers have been given out to favorites by some of the clerks, or obtained from the printers, for the past three years, but that the matter was not detected until this examination. If this can be fairly established, all first class and second class certificates granted during the three years should be cancelled. It is a well known fact that many who have obtained certificates at Toronto, must have done so through advantages not confined wholly to attendance there, as their daily work fully indicates. This scandal may lead to more carefulness in future, and prevent a recurrence of what must cast a shadow on all the teachers who obtained certificates during the period referred to.

LOOK AFTER THE GIRLS.

An exchange very sensibly says:—An alarming custom which seems to be growing among our girls is the practice of walking the streets during the evening We believe in walking, and think young people require plenty of fresh air and exercise; but surely and hour's brisk walking at sunset will effect this object. Modest girls should not be seen on the street, unless necessity compels it, after dark. We hope and believe that this alarming custom in the majority of cases works no serious result; and yet it requires a great deal of human nature to believe even this, and no great degree of foresight to predict the mischief that in very many cases must come of it. Girls are too often inclined to get up "little flirtations" with the gentlemen they meet. Sometimes it is no more than an interchange of glances, a cough, a wave of the handkerchief; but these little departures from maidenly modesty lead to greater and more dangerous ventures: and we shudder to think of the abyss on which they unwittingly stand. What kind of parents can they be who let their daughters thus expose themselves to the greatest of all dangers! Parents are bound to watch over their children Perhaps the mother thinks that girls will be girls; that she had her flirtations in her day and no harm came of it, and her girls will have time enough to sober down when they are married and off her hands. So they will, poor things; but what chance of a happy married life has a girl brought up, or allowed to grow up in this way, not only with no domestic training, but with no sense of womanly dignity or responsibility? Once in a while there comes a dreadful reckoning to one of these silly mothers, the discovery of an awful shame that casts a perpetual shadow on the household. The daughter, perhaps, is turned adrift upon the world, to suffer alone the inevitable penalty of the fault that was more her parents' than her own. We have not exaggerated the magnitude of this evil; we are sure that we do not exaggerate its danger. Mothers take care of your daughters.

FRIENDLY SERMONS.

An Explanation for the Historian of 1877 which it would be well for the Rev. Dr. Dowling to Heed.

Mr. W. H. Moore discusses the recent labor troubles in the United States, in the following able and highly interesting manner in a recent issue of the New York Evening Post. Mr. Moore takes exactly the same ground on this subject as that recently taken by John Bright in a speech at Manchester, that is, he attributes the troubles entirely to the absurd and oppressive protectionist laws in force in the United States. Let us hope that Mr. Bright's prophesy, that the labor troubles in that country would prove a death blow to protection, may meet with a speedy fulfilment. Mr. Moore says:—

To the Workmen of the United States:

The future historian of 1877 will be sorely puzzled when he comes to relate the labor distress and riots of 1877. He will naturally say out, "How was it that 43,000,000 of people living in that vast area of what then, 1877, was the United States, having some 50,000 miles of railways at their disposal, steam and electricity at their command, an ingenuity in machinery which only twelve months before was dazzled by a jury of the whole civilized world to be unsurpassed, not suffering as India did at the same period from drought, or bad crops, at perfect peace with foreign lands, and even peaceful at home, how was it," the historian will ask, "that these 43,000,000 of our ancestors were rioting about wages and labour, pinched by hunger, and by all accounts in a distressed state, when seeing in the year 1877 feed, clothe and maintain 200,000,000 of the human race!'

Of course, dead generations are not held up by respectable historians to contempt, especially when they are our ancestors. But we shall certainly be held up to pity by the future writers of the year 1977.

Now it is not likely that a vestige of what I have written or shall write will survive to that remote period. Yet I am at least anxious to put myself on record that I fully understand the cause of our present distress, and that a selfish impracticable policy, the offsprings of a bloody strife and confusion, is to blame for it.

The Economy of this country is made up of three enormous branches.

First—The agricultural branch.

Second—The industrial or manufacturing branch.

Third—The commercial branch.

Now, as long as these three enormous branches work harmoniously together, and are not antagonistic amoung themselves, prosperity in the result. But the moment that one of these branches either fails to perform its function or becomes antagonistic to the other branches, distress and confusion are the result to all three

Now let me examine these three branches separately:

First—The agricultural branch. At no time and in no country can these possibly be shown a more satisfactory state of harmony in raising products from the ground breeding cattle and producing dairy products than in the United States. The cotton crop of 1876-77 will no doubt nearly reach 5,000,000 bales, the largest crop on record. The cereal crop of 1876 was large, and the surplus, which we sent to foreign contries was unprecedently greater than was ever known before. In short, the agriculturalists of the land have done their duty, and can, with justice, say:—"The distress in the land is not chargeable to us, and we, the agriculturists, after doing all these wonders, are still suffering from a silent disease the cause of which is dim to us."

Next, let me examine the industries of the country. In doing so I find bankrupt cies, distrust, strikes, labor riots, want of employment, and a large share of starvation. Now, what has caused all this distress? Let me show you. In 1850, when a beggar in the streets of New York was a novelty, and starvation of the laboring classes was unknown, there was still a population in this country amounting in all to 23,191,876 souls. Surely such a population was not to be despised. It was larger than that of one of the great Powers of Europe, namely Prussia. The manufacturing industry of the United States in 1850 was also far from contemptible, as in that year the country produced $1,016,106.600 of manufactured goods. Now, if we divide the then population into the amount of industry created we shall find that we produced for home consumption of the rate of $44 per capita. This amount was consumable, and as the proof shows, did not lead to distress. Ten years later, in 1860, the population had increased to 31,183,-744 souls, which might be considered a very respectable population. The production of manufactured goods in 1860 amounted to $1,885,861,600, and if you divide the population into the amount produced it will give $57 25 per capital of consumable manufactured goods. Now, it is well known that for twenty years previous to 1860 there really was no labor distress in this country. There was a panic in 1857 lasting about thirty days; with this exception labor earned a livelihood, labor was not degraded by going rampant through the country rioting, and in large cities begging for broken victuals, as it does now. Surely no one will dare to gainsay this fact. And now let us look at the third decade, 1870. In that year the population was $8,115,641, a mighty empire. But our manufactured production amounted to $4,232,325,400. If we divide the population into the amount of production we sall find that it gives more than $111 per capita for home-made consumable goods. Well then, the average rate of wages, and the average general inflation in 1870, as compared with that of 1860, was undoubtedly one third greater. It would therefore follow that whereas the consumption in 1860 of home-made manufactures was $57.25 it could with safety, on the inflation basis, be one-third more in 1870, or $76 33. This is a more than liberal allowance. But our production was $111 per capita, and consequently $34.57 more per capita than it was in the power of the population to consume. If this surplus production could have an outlet the whole country would have been enriched by the exportation not only of actual goods but the labor that produced the goods. That is to say, we would have made the foreigners pay for part of our labor. But, as we exported in 1870—or to come down to 1876—a less percentage on the production than we did in 1860. what else but ruin, bankruptcies and labor roits, can we expect? In 1876 we exported of manufactured goods about $69,000,000, and we no doubt produced $4,000,000,000. In 1869 we exported about $39,000,000 of manufactured goods and we only produced $1,885,861,600. Here then we see the immense difference between the agriculturalists and the manufacturers. The former produces largely and ship his surplus abroad, thereby, clearing the home market of the encumbrance, while the manufacturer over produces and does not ship his surplus in sufficient quantity abroad, thereby clogging the house trade and causing stagnation. Either the manufacturer must send his great surplus abroad or he must produce less. That he has no outlet for his goods has been mentioned over and over again. That the cause of not having a foreign market is the outrageous tariff is not only not denied but has been fully conceded.

Well then; stoppage of manufactures causes less demand for labor, lower wages, strikes, labor distress and discontent. In the meantime the manufactured articles are higher than they are in the rest of the world—a result which also is owing to our tariff. The labor in woolen fabrics, for instance, does not average more than 13 or 14 per centum, that is to say, if we buy $100 worth of cloth the labor contained therein is only $13 or $14. But the raw wool is surcharged by a duty of from 50 to 60 per centum. The dye stuff, oil and chemicals used in the manufacture is surcharged by a duty of from 30 to 50 per centum, and such is the case in almost every manufactured article we produce. Hence the manufactured goods are dearer than they otherwise would be, and the farmer, who is the chief consumer, is thereby injured; and this is the dry rot, the silent disease that agriculturists suffer from.

Thirdly, as to commerce. Well the tariff forbids us to trade, as otherwise we would do, with foreign nations. The high duties prohibit imports, and as I have shown, they make exports of manufactures almost impossible. The tariff have crippled our shipping trade, because they will not allow us either to build or buy ships! Let this most disgraceful exhibit tell in full at a glance the ruined state of our shipping. In 1876 the total foreign exchange of commodities that came to and went from the United States was as follows:

Value of exports carried by vessels	$867,393,789
Value of imports carried by vessels	581,947,913
Total amount by ships	$1,269,741,702
Total of the above named carried by foreign ships	$626,715,644
Balance carried by American ships	343,026,058
	$1,269,741,702

Such is the result of our tariff laws, such the fruits of our protection laws. America, the young glorious of Nations, which should, under free institutions, have only healthy competition the wonder and admiration of the world, allows herself like some paralytic cripple, to be fed by foreigners in the very carrying trade to and from her own shores. This crippled state of our merchant marine of course produces the chance of carning anything for carrying goods by Americans for other countries. And thus our many thousand sailors, stevedores, shipbuilders, carpenters and other laborers swell the great throng of the already very large pauper labouring population of the land.

And this is the result, not of a people, who by habit are idle, lazy, given to riotous conduct, anxious to have revolutions, or fond of religious persecutions—no! It is the result of wicked laws, which an orderly, peace loving, hard working people only too well obey.

Even with this synopsis of an explanation, should it fall into the hands of the future historian of 1977, it would not be very difficult for him to understand the labor riots in 1877.

The Dunkin Act and Municipal Matters.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

There is one noticeable fact that the Dunkin Act has very properly its effects in municipal matters, as shown by the election in No. 2 ward on Friday last, and as a friend of the cause aimed at by the supporters of the Bill, I thing our townsmen ought to use more caution in reference thereto. The Candidates in the contest hold, I believe about the same views on temperance matters, and both very fit men for our Town Council. Mr. Paterson, a strong man in the ward, and Mr Tanner untried, but from interest taken in his election by respectable citizens, I believe he is a sound man. True he was supported by members of the License Victuallers Association but not their nominee. While Mr. Paterson was nominated by Councilor Rountree, one of their men who voted for reduction of their Licenses, now I claim it is inconsistent, and injurious, to the cause for the Right Bower of No. 2 ward to throw in his heavy cards on temperance principals, in opposition to either of those candidates.

This outside wire-puller and supporter of the lavish expenditure of the present Council does not fail to use all the material at his hands, for his electioneering dodges although we don't know much about his temperance principles, and would like him to be prepared at the coming election to select his candidates in due time, that people may have an opportunity of knowing their temperance principles, and pledges.

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Having just returned from a visit to the Marmora Gold Mines, I thought it might interest some of the numerous readers of your paper, to know my opinion of the mines, as you are probably aware, I have spent the last twenty-four years in Gold Mining in New Zealand and Australia, latterly in quartz mining in New Zealand and was for a time manager of the Wealth of Nations' Mine, and am still a stock holder, and receive yearly dividends equal to the whole original cost of the stock. After a careful examination of the Marmora veins, or lodes—particularly those embraced in the Gatling Co., property, on lot 9 in 8th con. I have no hesitation in saying the ore, or rock will yield twice as much per ton as the Wealth of Nations; and for convenience, and every facility for economical working, I believe no gold mine in the world is so favourably situated-good roads, and only distant from Belleville 34 miles, and Peterboro 42 miles; abundance of water on the spot, best hardwood can be delivered at the mills at $1.50 per cord and all other supplies, and labour to be obtained at very low prices. Under these circumstances I could not understand why such great wealth should remain undeveloped so long, where only a few thousand dollars would complete the twenty stamp mill that has been erected on the property, and place the Company in a dividend-paying position. If I were in New Zealand or Australia I could raise there all the money required in twenty four hours, so that the drawback to the property is its being in Canada, and too near home to be appreciated, but which in reality, add greatly to its value, as labour and supplies are cheaper than in any gold mining country. I can assure your readers many of whom, are my personal friends, that there is no humbug about the Gatling Co., mine. The veins are wide and permanent, beyond a doubt, and exceedingly rich in gold. There are six openings or shafts, two on each of the three veins or lodes, that cross the property, and var

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT? A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man."—A. Maybee Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'one of the best medicines they have ever used;' it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rumm, Township Percy writes, "I persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers Price, 25 cents.

Alarming and apparently hopeless cases of Lung Disease, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Affections of the Kidney and Chronic Complaints of every description, including Scrofula and Skin Diseases of life-long duration, have been permanently removed and eradicated. Those who volunteered their testimony to the efficacy of the Remedy are not bogus people in unheard-of localities of foreign states, but respectable citizens of this Dominion, easy of access and open to question, upon whose verbal recommendations we are willing to put the reputation of the Great Shoshonean Remedy. If you are afflicted do not delay until medicine may be powerless to aid you. No injurious effects can possibly follow the use of these Indian Remedies, as they contain no minerals, by which the fate of the invalid is so often sealed under the form of some temporary sedative or stimulant. These Indian Remedies are widely known and still possess the public confidence after the lapse of sufficient time to test their efficacy.

The Shoshonean Vegetable Sugar Coated Pills have won for themselves the most favorable reputation of any pill before the public. Their efficacy has been fully proved as a remedy for Bil complaint, Sick Headache, and constitution of the stomach. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills 50 cts. a box.

OUR SABBATH RETREAT.

For the EXAMINER.

This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it. Psalms, cxvii. 24. Isaiah, lviii, 13.

Full many a time in the years that are gone
On a calm Sabbath eve with our books we have come,
To the hallow'd retreat, so tranquilly calm,
Our souls to regale on the Heaven-sent balm;
Our Sabbath school books, with their stories so short,
Were easy to read, and as quickly forgot?
But no, there were some, we remember them yet,
For early impressions we rarely forget.
As Bunyan and Baxter, or Pike and Alleine
Honar and Spurgeon, or Godly McCheyne,
And many likeminded, whose wisdom and truth
Shone mildly uplighting the pathway of youth
And here in the Bible the glad news we read,
How even for children Christ's blood-drops were shed.
For we read that "of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."
We trusted His word, and that was believing.

Or oft in the hush'd glow-lit scene we'd engage,
In calm meditations from Nature's own page,
And viewing the beautiful field, and the wood,
Up to God rose affections in deep gratitude;
Or gazed all enrapt'd on the peace-smiling sky,
Admiring the crimson-edged cloud floating by,
Or the soft-wreathing clouds, their peaks all ablaze,
In reflections of gold from the setting sun's rays.
And joy'd that for us our dear Saviour did care,
As we thought of the mansions He's gone to prepare,
In the city of Zion, where there is no night,
Nor the setting of suns, for the Lamb is the Light.
Where the palm branch is waved and the crowns never fade
Of th' ransom'd in glory, so brightly array'd,
And a dear sainted mother amid that bright throng,
Now praising our Saviour with perfected song,
Whose glorified spirit made Heaven seem near;
And though short was the time that she spent with us here;
Her soft gentle voice, and her looks of sweet peace,
Came soothing our sorrows and bidding them cease.
And telling of one who'd be with us always,
To guide our young footsteps on life's narrow way.

How hallow'd those scenes of youth's Sabbath day's close,
'Tis delightful once more to enjoy their repose,
O, ye who would shorten the hours of this day,
Or in self-seeking pleasures would wile them away,
Ah, little you know of the joy and the bliss,
How holy the quiet of the day's sacredness,
'Tis the entering on now of that Heavenly rest,
That's awaiting the pure in the land of the Blest.
Remember to honor the Lord's day aright,
And then you will call it a joy and delight;
And with the good bishop of old, find this true,
A Sabbath well spent is a week blessed to you.
Such pleasure and joy to you will be given,
Earth's Sabbath will be happy foretaste of Heaven;
Farewell sacred scenes may thy memory blend,
With the peace of that Sabbath that knoweth no end.

August 17th, 1877. E. 3.

"The whole week is sanctified by this day; and according to my care of this, is my blessing on the rest."—Bishop Hall.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Estimates for the Year.

A regular meeting of the Town Council was held last Wednesday evening. Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Cahill, McBain, Haggart, Rountree, Yelland, Rutherford, Baptie, Dumble and Millar.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From P. Hollarnd, stating that he had no right to pay the taxes for 1876, on a house belonging to S. Griffith, and contradicting the statement made in a communication brought before the Council in reference thereto at a previous meeting.

From E. J. Toker, acknowledging with thanks on behalf of the Mechanics' Institute the grant of $100 given to them.

From Augustus Sawers, in reference to his proposed woollen factory for which he asks exemption from taxation.

From the Clerk, stating the school by-law had been carried by 125 of a majority, and that the water works by-law had been defeated by a majority of 276.

From the Clerk, announcing the result of the special election held in No. 2 ward—Mr. Walter Patterson being duly elected. He also stated that Mr. Patterson had since made the necessary declaration and taken the oath of office.

From H. Calcutt, stating that he was about to build a new wharf for his steamers at the foot of Dalhousie street, and asking the Council to grade that portion of the street adjoining the river at present unfit for travel. Provided the Council gave him the exclusive use of the wharf he would be willing to pay taxes thereon. He would also plant a number of shade trees and otherwise beautify the same.

From Jas. F. Dennistoun, and others, calling attention to the fact that not a single gas lamp was in the 4th Ward, and asking to have them placed on George street, at the corners of Smith, Aurim, Edinburgh and Dublin.

From Mrs. Hayes, asking for a small weekly allowance.

From Wm. Davidson, stating that he had bought a piece of land from the Dickson Estate at the east end of McDonel street and had partially erected a valuable building thereon, but he now found that it was a portion of McDonel street that he had purchased, and upon which he was building, and asked the Council to convey to him the said street from Dickson street to the mill race.

DISPOSALS.

The petition of Jas. F. Dennistoun and others was referred to the Gas Committee to report.

Mrs. Hayes petition was referred to the Charity Committee.

Mr. Calcutt's communication was referred to the Street Inspector and Finance Committee jointly with power to act.

Augustus Sawers' petition was received.

MR. DAVIDSON'S PETITION.

Moved by Councillor Dumble, seconded by Councillor Cahill,—That the petition of Wm. Davidson, asking that the portion of McDonel street on which he had partially erected a dwelling house be sold to him, be referred to the following committee with instructions to report the quantity of land sought to be purchased, the value of it, and effect of closing the street in reference to owners of adjoining lands, and to report at the next meeting of this Council; the committee to be Messrs. Dumble, Cahill and Rutherford.

ESTIMATES FOR THE YEAR.

Councillor Cahill, as chairman of the Finance Committee, presented and read the following report:—

Your committee have carefully considered the different expenditure and made liberal estimates for the same, and have made the rate sufficiently high to cover such expenditure. Being of opinion that this is the proper course to pursue, they disapprove of the course followed by the previous Councils in levying too low a rate to meet the proper expenditure of each year.

Your committee would direct particular attention to the comparatively small amount over which the Council have control, a very large proportion of the taxes being absorbed by the schools, the administration of Justice and the Commissioners of the Town Trust, which are altogether beyond the control of the Council.

The following are the estimates for the year:—

Administration of Justice	$1,800 00
Assessments	30 00
County of Peterborough	263 00
Charities	1,200 00
Fire	1,400 00
Commissioners	4,541 00
Law Expenses	1,200 00
Interest on Loans	1,100 00
Miscellaneous	1,100 00
Police	100 00
Printing	1,000 00
Salaries	5,000 00
Schools, Public	7,851 00
Schools, High	4,560 00
Special Grants	1,800 00
Streets and Bridges	4,000 00
Water and Gas	1,500 00
Loss on Collecting	500 00
	$39,253 00
Deduct for Licenses	5,300 00
	$34,052 00
14 Mills on $2,487,765	$4,828 00
Leaving a surplus of	$776 00

On motion the report was adopted.

Councillor Yelland moved, seconded by Councillor McBain,—That Mr. Patterson be appointed on all committees of which Mr. Elder was a member.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

HERE AND THERE A GEM.

(A leaf from the Scrap-Book of "Zedekiah.")

MODESTY is a guard to virtue.

THE best truths are gotten by digging deep for them.

THERE is nothing so fearful as a bad conscience.

THAT which is inappropriate in dress is never beautiful

THE most agreeable inmates of any home are the happy tempered ones.

FLOWERS are sweetest things God ever made without a soul.

IF you have built air-castles put foundations under them.

MANY a man has ruined his eyesight by sitting in a bar room looking for work.

LEARN wisdom and prudence from the mistakes of your neighbours.

PRACTICE flows from principle: for as a man thinks so he will act.

NATURE preaches cheerfulness in the saddest moods. She covers even forgotten graves with flowers.

THE discovery of what is true, and the practice of what is good, are the two most important objects of life.

ONLY what we have wrought into our characters during life can we take away with us.

WE cannot all be great, but we can all be gentlemen and women, and the greatest cannot be more.

CONNUBIAL love frequently absorbs judgment, swallows up all common sense, and defies all common prudence.

IF you wish to accumulate means, be careful of small things. The beach is made up of grains of sand, and the ocean of drops of water.

GOOD thoughts, like diamonds, are valued for their brilliancy; but unexpressed, are like a candle hid under a bushel—they do but shed no light.

A PLEASANT, attractive home hallows the past, controls the present and rules destiny of mankind, and brings humanity nearer to Him who rules the home above

THE most sacred shrine on earth is a fond mother's love. It is as pure as heaven's own sunlight, changeless as the laws of the universe, and deathless as immortality itself.

MANY people take no care of their money until it is almost gone; and others do just the same with their time—let it run like sand through their fingers.

ALL people have tangles in their life, but don't look the closet door upon the skeleton; bring it out and air it. Perhaps it may prove to be only the skeleton of a cat, or even none at all.

THE hallowed winter evenings of far away childhood peep lovingly through the dim vista of years like twinkling stars. Around them cluster poetry, affection and love. There the battles of life have been planned, charted and pushed to the very verge of victory.

As drops of water falling from the roof of a cave form, in the course of time, a stalactite, bright and strong to behold, so do single small acts of our will form themselves, by repetition, into lasting and unshaken habits.

WE may believe that friends will find their lives saddened by our death, but if we could step back into the world two years after our departure therefrom, we should find few faces sad on our account.

SOME one has said, very truthfully, that a man's dress has a powerful influence upon his character. Dress like a rowdy, and in the course of time you will feel and act like one.

VIRTUE seems to be nothing more than a motion consonant to the system of things; were a planet to fly from its orbit, it would represent a vicious man.

"Do you reside in the city?" asked a masked man of a masked lady at a San Francisco masquerade party. He felt faint when, in the well-known voice of his wife, she said to him, in low tones, "Don't be a fool, John; I know you by that wart on your thumb!"

THE HORSE.—"Of the great number of animals under the control of man, the horse is unquestionably the most serviceable; for it not strange that so many who own horses, and who are dependent on their labour for a living, should neglect to give them that care and attention which their own interest no less than the safety and comfort of the horse demands. The best remedy for horses is "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Horse Remedy," of this there can be no doubt—it is safe and easily given. PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 6, 1877.

A REVENUE vs. A PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

The Conservative papers are very general in following Sir John Macdonald's lead into the jaws of Protection, he poor man having, after much hesitation, chosen it as a cry for lack of something better whereby to distract public attention from misdoings whereby he succeeded in undoing his party. He and his followers now cry out for protection to a few Canadian manufacturers by the imposition of heavy import duties that would have to be paid by the whole population were they once levied and collected. If a protective tariff means anything it means the imposition of such a duty as will raise the price of imported commodities to such a price that they will not enter into competition with like goods made in Canada. To give certain manufacturers a monopoly whereby they can reap enormous profits for a time the whole consuming public are to be made to pay more for what they buy. This is a complete reversal of the maxim of statesmen, "The greatest good to the greatest number." It would sacrifice the many at the expense of the few. We are told it would only be for a time. This is quite true; for trade would assuredly find its level before long; and the very increase of manufacturing ventures that Protection would bring about would be the means of inducing a home competition that would bring prices down to a normal condition. But established manufacturers would in the meantime have snatched their pile from loss in the inevitable crash that would follow as certainly as night follows day. How many, think you, of the hot-house plants brought into existence by a high Protection tariff, living solely on the advantages given them by such a policy, could stand after the abnormal fostering had lost its effect? Few could survive, and all must feel the effects of the reaction. Yet we are told the manufacturers ask only temporary Protection. Already has the country felt the recoil from an exceptional encouragement in the manufacturing line. The American war gave Canadian manufacturers large opportunities for trade by the opposite effect it had on those of the United States. In consequence of this hundreds of small manufacturing concerns sprang up throughout Canada, to live just as long as the favorable circumstances existed that called them into birth; but to be snuffed out as soon as trade began to revive in the neighboring Republic. Not only was the money invested in waste plant, machinery and material lost, the business of the whole country in all its intricate, yet continuous, ramifications felt the shock. The people of Canada may well doubt if it will pay to plant a Protectionist mine under the commercial fabric of the Young Dominion.

A reaction following, and resulting from a period of extraordinary prosperity constitutes the present depression in trade, happily now giving evidences of a speedy close. The low tariff can have nothing to do with it, else why did it not come when the tariff was still lower, under Conservative rule? The leaders of the Conservative party either have greatly changed their views on this question since going out of office, or they sacrificed their principles to retain office, in this, as in other respects. The open record of the late government, as of any other, may be taken as a pretty fair indication of the feelings of the Canadians as a whole, the more so as its course was frequently changed very abruptly lest offence should be given and the chance of retaining the Treasury Benches weakened. Looking back but half a dozen years we find the same men who now cry out frantically for a Protective tariff contenting themselves with one so purely based on revenue requirements as to be considerably lower than that they cry against as giving no adequate Protection. In this we see a very consistent inconsistency between Tory practice and Tory preaching. They did at one time formulate certain changes and introduced them as a "national policy," the proposed object of which was to retaliate upon the United States by imposing tariff charges equal to those the continuance of which has well-nigh ruined that country, not only commercially, but also politically and socially. But the "national policy" of the Conservative government never came to a trial, its framers seeing plainly in it an overthrow of their Ministry. So they strangled their bantling at its birth, and next day brought down a complete change in their fiscal policy. Somewhat analagous to their national policy is their present advocacy of a reciprocal tariff with the United States, whereby we are told that that country will be forced to grant us a new Reciprocity treaty for the interchange of natural products. This is a sort of proposition to do evil that good may come of it. Is it likely that the United States will be encouraged to give up Protection by its advocacy and adoption here? Yet this is the absurd theory of the Opposition.

It is said that some declare that changes in the tariff have no effect on the business of the country. We cannot accept any doctrine so absurd as that. It is as bad as some of the pleas in favour of Protection. Every business man is practically aware that every change in duties directly affects transactions in the articles on which the duties are raised or lowered. The duty itself might be high or low without disturbing trade, provided they remained steady. It is the change that does the mischief. Every such change however slight has its effect in disarranging commerce for a while; therefore it can be imagined how great a disturbance to every branch of business in the country would be caused by a sudden abandonment of a low tariff for a high one. Whatever goods would be imported would have to be sold at a price sufficient to cover the high duty. Enhanced prices would be the order of the day. Thus the consumer in each case would be made to pay dearly—for what? a disarrangement of trade in the first instance; sudden inflation, for the sole enrichment of those prepared to play a grab game while it lasted; as sudden a collapse when valves began again to find their level, and a further disarrangement of trade as a consequence. Canada can't afford to indulge in so costly an experiment. Indeed, the less the tariff is tinkered at the better. Whatever may be said of Free Trade, and Free Traders by the Conservative press, we must have a tariff if we would have a revenue without heavy direct taxation. Larger Customs receipts than required by the estimated demands on the public chest would tempt to wastefulness, whereas smaller receipts, by imports that practically prohibited imports, would lead to the necessity of extending the list of articles paying internal revenue fees. In this way what was actually given to manufacturers in one way would ere long be taken from them in another; and in this way as well as others equalization would be brought about, till nothing remained beyond the trade disturbance to which we have referred. We really don't think Protection would pay.

THE REVIVAL OF TRADE.

It is cheering to notice on all sides a steady return to commercial confidence. The dark night of depression in which Canada, though not more than other countries, has dwelt for some time is passing away before the dawn of reviving prosperity. The signs of a better day are numerous and unmistakeable. Taught by dear experience, the merchants, in every line, are carefully avoiding the danger of overstocking. They feel that they can meet the probabilities of growing purchases, by a people who have largely abstained from buying for the past three years, by making or importing goods as the demand arises as well and with less risk to themselves than by laying in large consignments on speculation. The facilities for replenishing stocks, either at home or from abroad, are now such as to render practically unnecessary the old place of providing enormous stocks, which could stand the demands of half a year. Care on the part of merchants in its turn operates on the banks, by giving them greater confidence in making loans. They can now find plenty of good paper, instead of risking their circulation in bolstering up tottering concerns. These things combined must have a healthful effect on the commercial world, by giving an advantage to the better class of houses, to the almost entire exclusion of the few black sheep that are still found surviving the squeeze of the low pressure. The habit of frugality taught, and the plentiful supply of money will naturally tend to the wiping off of old scores and shortening of credits. The chief feature that brightens the business picture is the abundant harvest of the present year. On that as a basis the whole commercial fabric to a large extent rested, and many were the eyes, outside the farming community that turned anxiously during the last summer to a contemplation of the growing crops. The minds of thinking men in all occupations were led to speculate on the prospective yield, and hearts in country, town and city hoped for full returns to the husbandmen, and were gladdened at the fair promise. Now that hopes of this kind are realized, all look fraternally to each other, ready, let us hope, to extend that mutual assistance and inspire that mutual confidence on which sound business always depends. An abundance of money is ready for the moving of the grain; the farmers receiving better prices than they have done for some years will be able in their turn to discharge their old obligations, either in the shape of mortgages on their farms or accounts due merchants or tradesmen. Then will be helped out of the despondency into which many of them have been cast, being freed from care through an ability to pay what they owe to wholesale houses or to those who supply their raw material. Through the hands of all these the money will again come back to the farmer for the necessities of life which he alone produces in the shape of grain for food, wool for clothing, as well as for cattle, horses, and the products on which they subsist. When each one pays each as able to pay; and we hope that the coming era of cash transactions will present such a strong contrast to the late unsatisfactory term of very long credits that the whole community as individuals will be induced to abandon forever the pernicious for the praiseworthy system.

THE Government of Ontario has signified its readiness to unite with the other Provinces in appointing the 22nd of November as a day of thanksgiving for the blessings of a bountiful harvest, and returning prosperity.

A MOTION was passed requesting the Council to submit a by-law granting aid towards the Toronto & Ottawa Railway to the amount of $200,000, at a public meeting of the ratepayers held in the city of Ottawa on Friday last.

SAYS the Stratford Beacon:—Hon. Mr. Mackenzie returned last week from his visit to the Maritime Provinces, his tour from first to last having been one continued ovation. Wherever he appeared the people without political distinction united to extend to him a right cordial welcome. His reception at Charlottetown, Halifax, Berwick, Windsor, Truro, Londonderry, St. John, &c., was of the most hearty kind, and his addresses were so frank and convincing as to disabuse the people of the false impressions which unscrupulous journals had so industriously striven to sow.

THE LATE ALEX. SMITH, ESQ.

It is our painful duty to announce this week the sudden decease of Alexander Smith, Esq., of the firm of Smith, Boyd & Co., Lumber Merchants. His decease took place at Quebec, where he was on business in connection with the large firm in which he was senior partner. He had been there several days, and appeared at least in his usual health, and had been conversing with parties whom he knew the evening previous to the commencement of his illness. An individual went to see him at his hotel at a later period, but learned that he had just been visited with a paralytic stroke, the second, we understand, as he had been prostrated by one about a year ago. Mrs. Smith was made aware of this attack on Monday by telegraph, and she and her father, Jas. Hall, Esq., left at once to see him. They arrived there on Tuesday, but while conscious of their presence he was unable to speak to them. He continued to sink until Friday, when in spite of medical skill he expired. The sad news was received here with great general sorrow, and with deep sympathy for his bereaved wife and family in their trying affliction.

Mr. Smith was comparatively a young man, being in his 45th year at his decease. He was a native of Scotland, but had been in Canada from an early period. He was manager of the Bank of Toronto for several years, and in that capacity was much respected by the directors and by all who did business with the bank. After retiring from its management to join the company of which he was a member, he was made the recipient of a handsome sum of money by the directors as a mark of appreciation of his success and business talents. He was elected a member of the Town Council several years, and was a useful and faithful representative until he retired, owing to demand on his time for his own business. He was soon selected as a School Trustee, and in that position rendered valuable services by his counsel and painstaking watchfulness of all the business of the Board. He was esteemed and respected by all classes of citizens; was an active and faithful worker in the Reform party, and would have been their representative in Parliament but that he refused to accept the nomination because of his own large business engagements requiring his care and management. He leaves a wife, a daughter of Jas. Hall, Esq., M. P., and seven children—four sons and three daughters—all young, the eldest not over 12 years, to mourn the loss of a beloved husband and father.

His remains were brought home on Saturday, and interred on Sunday; the funeral cortege being the largest that has ever been witnessed in Peterborough.

BRIGHAM YOUNG is dead.

LANARK County is in the midst of a Dunkin Act agitation.

POLLING on the Dunkin Act in the county of Bruce commences on the 18th September.

"WOULD to God I could catch him," said Sir John Macdonald, during his memorable speech in Peterborough, while Reil, the man to whom he alluded, was living on United States territory upon money furnished him by Sir John, to get him out of the way. The memory of that hypocritical utterance still haunts the memories of the people hereabout; and it evidently is remembered by Sir John as one of his unfortunate imprudences; for while he accepts invitations to address public assemblies at Cobourg, Lindsay, and even Millbrook, he carefully refrains from any such engagements as regards Peterborough.

IN explanation of his enquiry at the Dundin Poll, in Toronto, respecting Mr. Mowat's vote, and his voting contrary, Hon (?) William Macdougall has published a statement, in which he says:—"As the Attorney General professes to be a Christian politician, and with his brother Premier loudly boasts on public platforms of his own and his party's unexampled piety and purity, I wished as a friend of temperance to emphasize my dissent from their doctrines and their practice in this matter." In fact Mr. Macdougall acknowledges plainly that he tries to throw some dramatic effect into the otherwise tame matter of recording his vote, and that, too, for a political purpose. In all of which Mr. Macdougall made a very proper fool of himself.

OPPOSITION journals have been much exercised of late over the participation of a country Postmaster in a Liberal demonstration. The Kingston Whig wants to know what they think of the prominent part taken recently in the Cobourg Conservative Pic-nic, by Hon. Sydney Smith, Inspector of Registry Offices for Ontario. We venture to say our Tory friends will be very "mum" on the subject. Does the "Whig" not know that Mr. Smith is feeling his way to return to Parliament before a year. He has visited Peterborough two or three times lately, and knowing ones inform us that as the government has paid him $2,000 a year for several years for a sinecure, his desire is to sacrifice a little, and try and represent West Peterborough. It will have a hard road to travel.

A GREAT deal has been said lately in the Opposition press anent the purchase of the Neebing Hotel, and lands attached, at Fort William, by the Government, for the requirements of the Pacific Railway terminus. The price paid—$5,029—as settled by the Government valuators, has been ridiculed as most extravagant, and all manner of allegations, of corrupt collusion between the Government and Mr. ADAM OLIVER have been made. Although the property was valued by competent and impartial valuators, one of whom was a prominent Conservative, and that this fact ought to be sufficient proof of the entire correctness of the transaction, it has not been found sufficient to satisfy the suspicious scruples of the Tory press. To show, however, the utter groundlessness of insinuations and accusations which have been made in these newspapers, it is only necessary to state that Mr. Oliver is not the owner of the property—that he is only one of a company, comprising both Conservatives and Reformers, and that this company are anxious to relieve possession of the property expropriated by the Government at the same price as was awarded for it by the Government valuators. The following letter has been addressed to the Public Works Department by the Company from whom the property was purchased:

FORT WILLIAM, August 28th, 1877.

F. Braun, Esq., Sec'y Public Works Department, Ottawa:

DEAR SIR,—It is rumoured in this place that you do not intend to retain all the lands purchased here for the Canadian Pacific Railway—that is, the Fort Will terminus. If such is the case, I am requested by a large number of the shareholders of the Neebing Hotel Company to offer the Government five thousand and twenty nine dollars, being the amount paid for the building and to the said company. If this offer is accepted we hope to hear from you at once, as the best season for building is far spent.

I am, dear sir, yours, etc.,

(Signed) ADAM OLIVER.
President Neebing Hotel Co.

MR. ROSEVEAR—or, as his political friends love to call him, "Honest John," —at the Cobourg Conservative pic-nic remarked that he sometimes thought Hon. M C, Cameron too honest That is a failing in a Conservative politician. the title "honest" must surely be applied to Mr. John Rosevear in an ironical sense.

THE Cobourg World says: "The crowd at the recent Liberal-Conservative Pic-Nic numbered some twelve or fifteen hundred persons." It seems to have been a rather tiresome affair. We believe there were three or four present from Peterborough. Dr. O'Sullivan was "not well" and failed to put in an appearance. Political hash seemed to be the popular dish but the Dr. thought that it was not "cooked," or "served up" in the right way

"THE Administration, since it was first formed in November, '73, and organized and reorganized as it has since been, has day after day fallen lower in public esteem, until even its supporters in the House of Commons have fallen in number from over one hundred to some thirty-five or forty."—Review. Well may the sheet that counts so badly, to turn a useless and very transparent falsehood, be called a "Tory lyre." The term "organ" would not suit it at all.

THE member representing East Durham in the Ontario Legislature, stated in Cobourg that "in his opinion the farming community should be more largely represented on the floor of Parliament, and he felt assured that there were very many who were competent to occupy seats in the House." The suggestion of competency is rather tough on Mr. Rosevear himself; for he is a remarkable proof that "the farming community should be more largely represented (in brains) on the floor of Parliament." Poor East Durham!

The Detroit Free Press says:—"Here is an example that might be advantageously followed by those high in authority outside of Canada. Mr. Mackenzie, Premier of the Dominion Government, when he set out from Ottawa for the maritime provinces, was offered a special car for his party, but refused to accept it unless the company would take payment for it. This the company would not do, so the Premier, his wife and Secretary took seats in the ordinary first-class carriage." Mr. Mackenzie is not a petitioner for Railway Co. bonuses.

"Those thirty members of the House of Commons who are disqualified from taking their seats are somewhat anxious to know whether Mr. Mackenzie is going to help them out of the dilemma into which he has got them through giving them Government contracts, or whether he is going to leave them to their fate.—Review.

From the fact that it is a Conservative paper that thus announces it, we take it that the anxiety is chiefly among the disqualified Opposition members, who must go before their constituents again for rejection or acceptance. To relieve them and their journalistic friends as well, we will inform them that Mr. Mackenzie is going to do nothing to help them further than has been done by the House of Commons, in passing the Bill of last session in relation to their case. Mr. Mackenzie has no more to do with it than any other member of the House intent on preserving the independence of Parliament in accordance with the Act, and so far from his getting them into the dilemma, they have themselves to blame for any trouble occasioned through their entering into public contracts either wittingly or unwittingly. They should have known the law if they did not; and if they did they were the more to blame in disregarding it. The Act does not prohibit a member from entering into a contract with the Government; but it does preclude him from holding his seat if he does contract to perform public work. A member may tender for any public work and the Government is not legally bound to reject his tender because of his occupancy of a seat in the House; but it is expected that the acceptance of the contract will bring about such member's resignation. Each, any, every member of the House has a choice between Government contracts and his seat in the House; and no one but himself is to "blame if he neglects to make that choice till forcibly reminded of the necessity.

PROTECTION VERSUS FREE TRADE.

(From the Cornwall Observer)

Before the Conservative party commits itself irrevocably to the doctrine of protection to home industry, we must consider whether we can defend a system which enlightened men of all parties, in all countries are agreed in regarding as an industrial heresy. Can we resist the influence of the example of the mother country and of France? The effect of free trade in England was like the discovery of another continent and its annexation to her shores; so great was the increase of her population and her wealth, the diffusion of her industry and the expansion of her commerce. The long residence of Louis Napoleon in England and his familiarity with her industrial progress led him to the study of its causes, and brought him into close relations with the late Richard Cobden. The result was that when he became Emperor, he utterly destroyed the old system of protection, which it is now proposed to establish here. The opposition in France was tremendous disaster and ruin were apprehended. But the consequence was a material prosperity, unexampled in her history, and the late war demonstrated her ability to pay her conquerors without distress an amount of money which astonished the world. Our Americans cousins, forced by the stress of civil war, established a high protective tariff. The result shadows our very doors; her manufacturing industry paralyzed; her commerce destroyed; thus millions of men out of work. The years of her prosperity were years of free trade. The years of protection have in more than one sense been years of calamity and woe. Sir John Macdonald acknowledges that the principle of protection does not admit of defense. Then why will he consent to yield to the pressure of an insignificant body of manufacturers who only desire to enrich themselves at the general expense. Why should he consent to abandon the policy under which the Conservatives have fostered the interests of the country so long and so successfully? Where is the need for protection now more than ten or twenty years back? Is it because our manufactures are in their youth? Then they were in their infancy if they needed no nursing then, they are surely grown beyond the use of the bottle now.

The farmer who is and must continue the great source of our prosperity cannot escape the necessity of competition in the market of the world with other producers. The price of butter, cheese and flour in Liverpool will be the price here, less the cost of getting it there, and no hocus pocus of protection can affect it by a hair's breadth. Who is verdant enough to believe that the labor represented by a bushel of wheat or oats, a hundred weight of butter or cheese, is changed upon anything like equal terms with the manufacturer? They are indeed hard times for the manufacturer when his half day's work is not the equivalent of a half day's work of the farmer.

It is commerce and trade which clear the road and open the gates of the great markets for him, and they must not be closed. And we hope the day is not coming when the grand old Conservative party will put its hand to such a work.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

From the Toronto Leader.

Our readers will be glad to learn that the scheme of the Toronto, Huron & Ottawa Railway is being rapidly and successfully developed. At a large and influential meeting held at Ottawa the other day, the matter was pretty fully discussed and another meeting called for the purpose of further consideration of the subject. We are pleased to note that the president was able to give some very hopeful information as to the prospects of this most important road. The Government has given the promoters every encouragement, and the usual aid is promised to it immediately, municipal aid has been extended in proper proportion. Thus far the municipal aid amounts only to $750,000, and this will have to be increased to $1,200,000 or thereabouts before Government aid can be extended. Ottawa is evidently alive to the vast importance of the projected line, and is not prepared to let the scheme drop. But Ottawa cannot do more than bear a share in the cost of construction. Other municipalities will benefit as much as she will by this road, and it behooves other municipalities, therefore, to do their very utmost to bring about its speedy construction. Toronto will be especially benefited by the road, which, as we have before stated, taps a peculiarly rich section of the country. It is to be hoped then, that this city will not be less generous to the new projection than she has been to other lines. But we have no doubt that the citizens will be afforded an opportunity of discussing the matter in public meeting. As, however, the various rural and urban municipalities are treating the subject, and very naturally, wish so great favour, we have no doubt that this city will not be behind its neighbors.

LAKEFIELD.

HARVEST HOME.—It is the intention of the committee of the People's Christian Association to make the 7th of September the occasion of a Harvest Home, by having an excursion to Stoney Lake, where the farmers from Dummer and Burleigh can join those who go up from Lakefield and Youngs' Point. The profits of the excursion are to be devoted towards paying off the debt on the People's Christian Association Hall, and every effort will be made by the committee to make it a grand success. The unusually bountiful harvest with which a kind providence has blessed this section of the country, will no doubt be the cause of bringing many together to this, the first Harvest Home held from Lakefield. The committee hope to have many good speakers present to deliver addresses. Posters will be printed in good time to give all particulars.

The following are the names of the committee, Isaac Garbutt, J. C. Sherin, John Hull, Joseph Nelson, R. A. Strickland.

SMITH.

LAKEFIELD.

A correspondent from the Village of Lakefield asks the following questions:—Who is Legal Reeve in Lakefield? Who got up the R. R. Swamp By-law? Who dedicated the advertisement for tenders for the drainage of the swamp? Why was the Tenders when opened on Saturday night not settled? Why was the Tenders not settled on Monday night at the adjourned meeting? Who had the lowest tender? What did the Village Solicitor say in regard to the Councils action? Has the Swamp Drainage By-law been sanctioned by the Ratepayers? Who is legally to pay for the work? Is there a "Nigger on the fence?"

THE WAR.

The Battle of Pelisat

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The report that Baker Pasha is missing is not confirmed. It is now stated that he has been decorated with the Order of Osmanli. It is stated that the Grand Duke Michael, commander-in-chief of the Russian army in Asia Minor, has assumed command of Gen. Melikoff's corps in person, that officer having been removed for exceeding orders.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—The Turks acknowledge the loss of 7,000 men in the Shipka pass. Two thousand wounded reached Adrianople yesterday.

Adrianople intelligence from the Shipka pass states that Suleiman Pasha has gained a more advantageous position for his batteries on the heights surrounding Fort Nicholas. Russian reinforcements arrived during the night. The road to Gabrova is being commanded by Turkish batteries.

GORNY STUDENI, Sept. 3.—The official statement of the Russian loss on the 31st is as Kadikoi seven killed and thirty wounded, at Pelisat 1,050 killed and wounded. The Turkish loss in enormous. Near the Village of Pelisat alone 300 dead were counted. The cannonade between Rustchuk and Giurgevo continues. No loss or damage on either side is reported.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Hobart Pasha declares utterly fictitious the published details of an alleged fight between the Turkish ironclad Feshi Bozlend and the Russian mercantile steamer Vesta. The vessels were never within two miles of each other. The ironclad received only one spent shot. The captain did not know he had injured the Russian steamer and did not pursue her as his vessel was overladen.

BELGRADE, Sep 3.—Servia refuses to assist the Bosnian insurgents. Their deputies have been informed that Russia cannot assist them and they may act according to their own judgement. The means of the insurgents are exhausted, and they are in want of everything. They intend to treat with Turkey, get permission for the Bosnian refugees in Austria to return unmolested, and then lay down their arms. The Bosnians cherish great animosity towards Russia, and regret the useless sacrifice of men and means during the last two years. Some representatives of the insurgents have returned to camp and some remain here till the fate of the question is decided.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—A correspondent writes on Friday that Suleiman Pasha abandoned his attempt on the Russian position in the Shipka Pass, and left the neighbourhood of Shipka Pass. Some say he is at Kazanlik, others that he is seeking another pass. The correspondent believes he is reorganizing his shattered forces. A few Egyptians with cannon confront the Russians on the heights, and some miscellaneous Turkish troops are at Shipka. The Russian reinforcements have marched back, and the Grand Duke's chief of staff who visited the pass is satisfied with the Russian position there.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—The commandant of Rustchuk made a sortie with seven battalions defeating the Russians, Osman Pasha, after inspecting the battle field of Pelisat, reports that the Russian losses are greater than at first supposed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Suleimin Pasha telegraphs from the Shipka pass that cannonading began again on Saturday and continued on Sunday. Prisoners state that the effective strength of most of the Russian battalions has been reduced by one-half. The Bulgarians have also suffered cruelly.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 3.—Prince Charles, of Roumania, issues a manifesto to the troops announcing that he has been appointed to supreme command of the Russian and Roumanian armies before Plevna. The manifesto states that it was the duty of the Roumanian army to cross the Danube and encounter the Turks in their own territory, because the war was approaching the Roumanian frontiers, and if the Turks were victorious the Roumanians would suffer severely.

POREDIN, Sept. 3.—Osman Pasha's attack on the Russian positions at Pelisat and vicinity was one of the most hardly fought battles of the war. The Turks early in the fight captured a Russian redoubt one mile in front of Pelicat. In an hour this redoubt was taken by the Turks, retaken by the Russians, and taken again by the Turks. The Russian left wing was driven back on Pelisat, in front of which trenches had been dug and lined with troops. The Turks advanced as though determined to drive the Russians out of Pelisat. Descending a hill in that direction leisurely without firing, scattered and diffused, they came down half way, the Russian artillery tearing up groups in the most savage manner. The Russian infantry fire for the last five minutes was very heavy. About 2galince the battle now began to roll along the hill crest and the Turkish advance veered to the left and attacked the Russian trenches on the crest of the hills between Pelisat and Zgalince. The Turks in a little hollow were lost to sight for a time while the Russian trenches poured a storm of balls into the advancing column. This lasted fifteen or twenty minutes with fearful loss of life. The Turks withdrew carrying off their wounded but formed and advanced again. Many dead Turks were found within ten feet of the Russian trenches. The little slope on the crest of which trenches were situated was literally covered with dead. The battle here was terrible, but the Turks were again repulsed, but attacked a third time. The scene of carnage was again repeated, but only lasted a moment. The Turks, completely broken, withdrew firing and carrying of the wounded and many dead. They fell back on the redoubt they had first taken with the intention of holding it, but were not allowed to remain long there. Another attack was made on the Russian centre equally as unsuccessful as that on the Russian trenches. On the left the Russians pursued the retreating Turks with a murderous fire. Six companies with bayonets swept them out of the redoubt. At four o'clock the Turks retreated everywhere, and the Russians occupied the whole of their first positions, besides pursuing the Turks a short distance with cavalry. The Russians were 20,000 strong. Their loss is estimated at 500, and the Turkish loss at 2,000.

ERZEROUM, Sept. 3.—Advices from Kars indicate that great operations are imminent and the Turkish army is preparing to march on Alexandropol.

GORNY STUDENI, Sept. 3.—The Emperor will present Gen. Radetsky with a sword set with diamonds for his defence of the Shipka pass. The new week promises to be a bloody one. Summer is going and decisive results become every day of more importance to the Russians.

VIENNA, Sept. 3.—The report that Suleiman Pasha was acting under imperative orders from Constantinople in pressing the attack on the Russians in the Shipka pass is denied. He receives full credit in Constantinople for his earlier operations, but in renewing that attack is deemed to have made a useless sacrifice of troops, and to have acted contrary to orders. An order has been sent to Suleiman Pasha to desist from his attempts for the present, and to follow in the future more closely the instructions received from Mahomed Ali Pasha.

School is in.

Now, isn't it delightfully cool?

Ashburnham is to have five more gas lamps.

Blind Tom is said to be loosing his natural gift.

The cool nights are just the thing for a good sleep.

Two Correspondents suggest more economy in school matters.

The Ashburnhamites don't seem to care about annexing to the town.

The ice cream and soda water business has gone down with the mercury.

The Musical Society are having an excursion to Sturgeon Point to-day.

"Harvest-Homes" are now the delight of rural sections. There is joy in the land.

The Schools are now open. During the holidays needed repairs and renovations have been made.

Cricket.—The Lakefield Club cleaned our Cricket Club out last Thursday with nine wickets to spare.

Personal.—Mr. C. J. Leonard passed a very creditable primary examination at law at Osgood Hall last week.

Foot Ball.—There will be a meeting this evening in the Rest House at 7.30 p.m., for the purpose of organizing a Foot Ball Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fish and Game Protective society will be held at the Huffman House, this (Thursday) evening, at 8 p. m.

Called to the Bar.—Mr. C. S. Wells passed a very creditable examinaon last week and was called to the bar. We congratulate him on his success.

Paintings.—Mr. Workman has a painting of Mr. J. Ormond in the window of Mr. Little's store, which is neatly done, displaying as usual his artistic talent.

"Rolling Home in the Morning Boys," is what he tried to sing, early in the morning, on one of the streets. The Police Court record tells where he slept.

Overcoats were brought into requisition by a good many gentlemen during the past few days, the change from the extreme heat to chilliness not being at all pleasant.

Removal.—Long Bros., will remove in a few days to the shop lately occupied by Haggart Bros. It is being entirely refitted for them in Mr. Cox's usual way of doing things.

Commenced Rebuilding. Messrs. Cope, Rombough, and Wand are about commencing to erect new buildings in the place of those destroyed by the late fire in Ashburnham.

New Rigs.—Mr. D. O. Henthorn has added two new top rigs and two open ones to his livery stables. All those who want to take a drive can be accommodated with handsome rigs.

Garden Party.—A very successful garden party was held on Thursday evening last at the residence of Mr. W. J. Nesbitt in aid of St Luke's Church, Ashburnham, and was well attended.

The Winnipeg Free Press says: "If you want a notice in this paper to advertise your business interest, insert it as an advertisement. No more 'dead-head' advertising under the name of 'locals.'"

Building Operations We observe with pleasure that building operations are being carried on with vigour in various parts of the town. Mr. Cox is proceeding in the erection of the new Post Office on the corner of George and Hunter streets.

Henry Best has now in stock five car loads of Silver Star export oil, the finest brand of refined petroleum made in Canada. Messrs. Englehart & Co., Hamilton, are the refiners. My prices are as low for any quantity as the more inferior brands are sold.)

Insecutable. On Thursday last a man named Hector Robinson married a young woman named Miss Farley. On Friday he became unwell, and on Monday died about 9 o'clock a. m.; just 3 days from his nuptial to his decease. This ways of the Allwise are inscrutable.

Promenade Concert. The concert under the auspices of the Firemen's Band, on Thursday evening last was well attended. The Port Hope Band was present, assisting their brethren, and added much to the pleasure of the evening. The whole was a very pleasant affair.

Changed the Date.—As will be seen by reference to our list of fall shows in another column, the Otonabee directors have changed the date of their show from the 9th of October to the 6th, on account of interfering with the East Riding exhibition to be held at Warsaw on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 9th and 10th of October.

Personal. Rev. J. Campbell, M. A., called on us on Saturday. He has just returned from Europe, where he has been for some months. He visited Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany and Italy, during that period. He has returned to Canada with the intention of commencing active labour in the ministry of the Presbyterian church.

Vick's Floral Guide.—The last number for the year of Vick's flower catalogue is just issued, and contains over so many good hints on bulb culture and the management of winter gardens. The Guide will hereafter be issued monthly at $1.25 a year. Mr. Vick never does anything by halves, and his friends may depend on having a good floral magazine.

Fair Day. Tuesday last was the September fair day. There is not the same interest being taken in these quarterly gatherings of the "sons of toil" as there used to be, although there was a better market on Tuesday than at the previous fair. Very little stock changed hands. The day was quiet but towards evening a good many could be seen without a "blue ribbon."

Changed Hands. Mr. Eastland, during the past week, has sold out his livery stables to W. & H. Morgan, who intend running it under the name of Morgan Bros., and they hope that those who have patronized these stables in the past will continue to do so. They have added two more horses and a basket phaeton to the stable, and by paying every attention to the wants of their customers, trust to meet with a fair share of public patronage.

Two of our local "Brilliant Young Ladies, announce by an advertisement in the Mail that they wish to correspond with a fair number of equally talented gentlemen. We should say that these young ladies must be very "brilliant" indeed, when they have to advertise for correspondents. They at least lack common sense. We recommend "Birdie Macbeth," and "Amy Clayton" to try their graces on the old gentleman at the pic-nic.—I-s-CREAM.

Fall Goods.—Mr. J. Elder has opened out 42 cases and bales of fall goods, which he has been able to secure at surprisingly low prices, owing to the depressed state of the market. This is the largest lot of goods that Mr. Elder has ever purchased before at one time. His object for purchasing such a large stock of fall goods being to attract the attention of cash purchasers so that parties will at once see the advantages of buying their goods at the "Elephant House."

Ashburnham Council.—The Council of the Village of Ashburnham met on Monday evening. A by-law giving the Peterborough Gas Company the power to lay pipes through the village was passed through its several readings and passed. Several accounts were also ordered to be paid. A deputation from the town, consisting of His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Dumble, Scott and Smith waited on the Council urging the annexation of the Village to the Town. The Council thought that if the ratepayers of the village were very anxious to annex they would have petitioned the council to either call a public meeting to discuss the matter or to submit a by-law before this, and that in consequence made up there in the matter, but awaited the action of the ratepayers of the village.

Blue Ribbon Movement.—At the close of Mrs. Kent Mason's temperance work here during the past week it was found that over 300 persons had joined the temperance movement and signed the pledge. In consequence a meeting was held in the Temperance Hall, at which Mrs. Mason was present and gave an extempore address. Immediately after it was decided to form a "B. R. Temperance Club," and accordingly officers were elected and a night of meeting appointed. The officers elected are: President, Mr. J. Stratton; Vice-President, Mr. W. Eastland; Secretary, Mr. Rob. Watson; Treas. Mr. Robert Weir. The first meeting will be held in the Temperance Hall, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, and it is the desire of the promoters of the movement that all who have signed the pledge during the week should be at the meeting.

Important Change.—By reference to our advertising columns it may be seen that Messrs. Sutherland, Boreland & Madison have changed their premises and will open out in the stand vacated by Messrs. Lasher & Lowry, and will not open in the shop formerly occupied by Thompson Bros., as previously announced. Their goods are arriving daily and they expect to open out on Monday, the 10th instant. The stock will consist of everything to be found in a first-class merchant tailoring establishment, besides a large stock of ready-made clothing. Mr. Madison, who has just returned to town from his trip down south and who is a member of the firm—will endeavour to produce garments superior to any he has ever turned out in Peterborough. Remember the stand, Cox & Donnelly's new brick block, and next door to Mr. Stenson's boot store.

Battalion Orders. The 57th Battalion will assemble for annual drill at the Drill Shed, Peterborough, on the 19th inst., at 9 o'clock a.m.

Intermediate.—The following candidates passed the Intermediate examinations here in July:

Delaney, W.	Campbell, W. A.
Hines, Albert.	Burrows, J. Herbert.
Mead, Wm.	Munroe, Jessie.
Sherin, Fred.	Leonard, Catherine.
Moffat, John.	Brown, Jennie.

All of these, except Mr. Burrows, were pupils of the Collegiate Institute, and the number of successful candidates speaks well for the Institute.

Flavelle, Maggie.	Metcalf, J. F.
Anderson, Donald.	Walmsley.

These passed the examination for second-class certificates. They are all from the Institute except Mr. Walmsley.

Fall Shows. Below will be found the dates of the fall exhibitions that are of interest to our readers.

WEST RIDING.—At Peterborough, on Wednesday and Thursday, October 10 and 11th.

EAST RIDING.—At Warsaw, on Thursday and Friday, 11th and 12th October.

ORONABEE EXHIBITION.—At Keene, on Saturday, the 6th of October.

SOUTH MONAGHAN EXHIBITION.—At Centreville, on Thursday, October 11th.

SMITH, ENNISMORE AND LAKEFIELD.—At Bridgenorth, on Tuesday, the 9th of October.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.—At Lindsay, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 2nd, 3rd and 4th. $3,500 offered in premiums.

UNION EXHIBITION.—At Port Hope, open to the province, on the 12th, 13th and 14th of September. $1,500 in prizes.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—At London, commencing on the 25th of September, and continuing during the week.

Mrs. Kent Mason left here on Wednesday by the train for Lindsay, where she intends labouring for a time in the interest of temperance. While here she drew crowded houses every evening, and over 300 persons signed the pledge at her meetings. She is the most earnest and energetic temperance worker that has visited Peterborough. Sincere and pathetic in her appeals to the drinker, and at times eloquent and impressive. While in Peterboro' she was unceasing in her efforts to awaken an interest in the work to which she is so devoted, and to provide that after her departure her labour might not be fruitless. On Sabbath evening over 1,000 persons went to hear her in Bradburn's New Hall, and the utmost decorum and good order prevailed during the whole evening. Her address, founded on the parable of "The Prodigal Son," was earnest and touching, and produced a manifest impression on almost all present. Her highly cultivated mind, her vanity, sincerity, and activity in promoting the temperance cause while here secured for her many friends, although some kept aloof from her meetings.

The Fortnightly.—The August number of the American reprint of the Fortnightly Review, published by Messrs. Belford Bros., is just out. The initial article is a paper on the "Secret Societies of Russia," which throws light on the many conflicting elements which underlie the social fabric in that country. Mr. Grant Duff, in "Aims for rational education," attacks the present educational system, and makes many practical suggestions on the subject. "Covour," by Mr. H. Hyndman, gives an excellent and reliable sketch of the life of that famous statesman, and there are several other good papers on miscellaneous subjects. "Fen or mound-land," by Dr. Barney Yeo, should be of itself a road thousand of the "Fortnightly Review," for August, for is not this the very question which each malade imaginaire is just now asking himself, and can there be this month a nicer study than to pause over Bradshaw to decide whether by Pro. Benecke's experiment on the tissue-change at the sea level and on mountain tops, yours is the organization to be sent off to the Engadine or to the Ocean Wave of Scarborough!

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL SESSION.

The Council met in special session on Saturday evening. The Mayor in the chair, and all the Councillors present but Messrs. Haggart and Millar.

After the Mayor stated the object of the meeting, which was to pay a tribute of respect to the late Mr. Smith, a

A By-law fixing the rate at 14 mills on the dollar was read a first, second and third time and passed.

LORD DUFFERIN IN THE NORTH-WEST.

HIS EXCELLENCY AMONG THE MENNONITES.

HOW THEY ARE GETTING ALONG—MANNERS AND CUSTOMS.

(Correspondence of the Globe.)

There are at present two large Mennonite settlements in the Province. The principal of these is the Rat River Reservation, which has just been visited by His Excellency. It comprises a tract of eight townships, which contain an aggregate of about 174,000 acres. Within the bounds of this reserve are thirty-two villages, with a population of 658 families, or about 3,660 souls. The situation of the tract is east of Red River, and its nearest boundary is about twenty-two miles southeast from Winnipeg. The other reservation is west of the river, and is known as the Dufferin Reserve. It is on the Boundary line between this Province and the Territory of Dakota, and extends eastward to within a short distance of the river. It consists of 17 townships, containing over 370,000 acres, 18 villages, 450 families, and about 2,500 souls. In addition to these two settlements, a few Mennonites have settled down on Scratching River, 30 miles south of Winnipeg. This settlement consists of 38 families and 192 souls. These last named colonists, however, were people of considerable means, and did not take advantage of the privileges offered to them by government. They came in on precisely the same footing as other colonists, except that they claim the exemption from military services, and to be permitted to conduct their schools, churches, and social polity after the fashion to which they have been accustomed in past times. In round numbers the entire Mennonite population of Manitoba may be placed at 6,400. Not one head of a family can be called an absolutely poor man. They are a saving, thrifty people, anxious to get rich in this world's goods, but making this desire subservient to the laying up of a treasure where moth and rust do not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal. The entire population brought with them into this country nearly half a million of dollars in hard cash.

Their mode of settling down upon their farms is totally different from that pursued by colonists in general. They adopt, in a somewhat modified form, the co-operative principal. A group of families—usually from twelve to sixteen—take up their homesteads separately, but contiguous to each other. They then select the most beautiful spot on the tract and take up for the site of the village. Here all the residents are built within a short distance of each other, with plots set apart for the churches and schoolhouses, and with a street two chains wide running through the centre of the village, or dorf, as it is called. Each family has a small garden attached to the house, and this is adorned with flowers grown from seeds imported from Russia, and which has not proviously been grown in the Dominion. A herdsman is appointed who is paid by the village, and it is his duty to look after the farmstock of the whole community. Most of the houses are built of logs, a few only of the more modern ones being constructed of frame. The principal rooms of each house has a flooring of boards, the others being generally left without that luxury; but each room whether floored or not, is kept scrupulously clean, these having no floors being sanded like those of peasants' cottages in Europe. Adjoining the house the stables and outhouses, one roof covering the whole range of buildings appropriated to each family. This is a feature which might be changed with advantage to the health and comfort of the occupants, as it is but a step from the dining-room to the piggery, and in hot weather the former is necessarily charged with a perceptible atoms from the stables. Several of the houses lately constructed are modified for the better in this respect, the outbuildings being removed to a distance from the dwellings; and in course of time the colonists will doubtless conform to the general usage of the country.

The most conspicuous object in each house is an immense oven, built of rude bricks made from the clay of the district. This generally extends into several rooms and reaches from floor to ceiling, thus warming the whole building. An American stove is commonly employed for cooking, the oven being used for heating purposes only. The bread and cake is oven is made by the colonists themselves, and is a compound of straw and dung cut into huge blocks and dried in the sun. Contrary to what might be supposed there is no unpleasant effluvia arising from the burning of this compound, all offensive particles being carried up the flue into the chimney, and thence out into the open air.

The municipal affairs of each village are administered by a mayor or reeve, who is annually elected by the heads of the families in the village. The entire community is under control of a magistrate or elder, who is elected every fifth year, and who, with the mayors of the different villages, forms a sort of miniature parliament, which meets as often as the exigencies of the community may require. The bishops, ministers, and school teachers are also elective. The latter receive salaries, but the services of the bishops and clergymen are gratuitous, no man being elected to such a position unless he is pecuniarily well-to-do. The people are their own insurers, and have a mutual system of insurance against fire, under the management of a Board of Directors elected from time to time. In fact the whole tendency of the institutions of the Mennonites is to isolate them from the rest of the community. In most respects however, they are excellent citizens. Fighting, quarrelling, and drunkenness are vices utterly unknown among them, and their example cannot fail to exercise a salutary influence over other settlers in years to come. Their permanent prosperity is a matter as to which there can be no difference of opinion.

Many of the foregoing facts have been published before, but some of them have never appeared in print, and a knowledge of them is necessary to any one who wished to comprehend all the points embodied in the address of the Mennonites to Lord Dufferin, and in his reply thereto.

Mr. Hespeler's translation of the address was as follows:

To His Excellency Lord Dufferin, Governor General of the Dominion of Canada.

In the name of all the Mennonites who have emigrated from Russia, we greet you most humbly.

When the Russian Government informed us six years ago that they were about to violate the agreement made with our grandfathers under the Emperor Paul, which exempted us—according to our religious belief—from all military duties, we were obliged to look for new homes under a Government which we might trust would keep their promises, allowing us to worship God according to our consciences, and exempting us from the duty of carrying arms.

We were unable to secure the privilege of practising our religious belief under European Governments, and therefore our eyes were turned to America.

We had heard of the United States from agents sent among us, and some of our people settled in that county. In the year 1873 your Government sent commissioned Mr. Hespeler to us in Russia, who offered us homes in your country. In the year 1873 we sent a delegation to visit this country, and also the United States, and some of us who signed this were members of that delegation. They travelled over the greater part of this Province, and far into the west. They were treated with all kindness and consideration by the Government, and thereby the opportunity was given them of seeing and examining for themselves; and before they returned to our people in Russia, the Government repeated the promises which had previously been sent to us through Mr. Hespeler.

The delegates were in a position on their return home to inform us that the advantages which this country offered exceeded even the representation made, and therefore they had no hesitation in advising to come here.

From the liberal terms the Government had laid before us, we have already sent a number of our people here, and next year we expect a further number of our friends.

We are pleased to be able to state that we are satisfied in the highest degree with the country and the soil, and also the manner in which the Government have kept their promises to us.

Your Excellency has now the opportunity of seeing for yourself what we have accomplished during our short residence.

You see our villages, our fields, and our bountiful harvest—witnesses in themselves that the capabilities of the country have not been misrepresented to us.

Under the guidance and protection of Divine Providence, we have every reason to look forward confidently to great future prosperity, our villages multiplied and our herds increased.

We are contented and willing to obey the laws of the land, but we cannot reconcile our religious belief with the performance of military duty.

We have full confidence in the continuand of the good faith you have kept with us, and with thankfulness we acknowledge the fatherly care which is being bestowed upon us, as also for the assistance in advice and deeds we are daily receiving through your Government Commissioner and our interpreter.

We know of your Excellency's noble character for honor, truth, and condescension, and feel ourselves honored and happy to be permitted to express to one so near Her Majesty in rank and goodness of heart our grateful thanks for many favors.

We welcome you in our midst, and pray to our Creator to bless your Excellency and Her Majesty the Queen, trusting that you will carry to her the expressions of our attachment, together with the interest we feel in everything which concerns the welfare of her person and her empire.

With our most humble feelings of thankfulness for the honor of your gracious visit, we sign ourselves, in the name of all our brothers.

SIGNED—Jakob Peters, Peter Tows, Gerhard Wiebe, Hienrich Wiebe, Cornelius Tows, Jakob Friesen.

His Excellency signified his intention of replying at length, and in writing, to this address at an early day. He, however, made a few extempore remarks in reply, and as they are full worth reproducing I give them verbatim, as follows:

Fellow-Citizens of the Dominion and Fellow-Subjects of Her Majesty:

I have come here to day in the name the Queen of England to bid you welcome to Canadian soil. With this welcome it is needless that I should couple the best wishes of the Imperial Government in England or of the Dominion Government at Ottawa, for you are well aware that both have regarded your coming here with unmitigated satisfaction. You have left your own land in obedience to a conscientious scruple, nor will you have been the brat to cross the Atlantic under the pressure of a similar exigency. In doing so you must have made great sacrifices; broken with many tender associations, and one thrown the settled purposes of your former peacefully ordered lives; but the very fact of your having manfully faced the uncertainties and risks of so distant an emigration rather than surrender your religious convictions in regard to the unlawfulness of warfare, proves you to be well worthy of our respect, confidence, and esteem. You have come to a land where you will find the people with whom you are to associate engaged indeed in a great struggle, and contending with foes whom it requires their best energies to encounter. But those foes are not your fellow-men, nor will you be called upon in the struggle to stain your hands with human blood—a task which is so abhorrent to your religious feelings. The war to which we invite you as recruits and comrades is a war waged against the brute forces of nature; but those forces will welcome our dominion, and reward our attack by placing their treasures at our disposal. It is a war of ambition—for we intend to annex territory after territory—but neither blazing villages nor devastated fields will mark our ruthless track; our battalions will march across the illimitable plains which stretch before us as sunshine steals athwart the ocean; the rolling prairie will blossom in our wake, and corn and peace and plenty will spring where we have trod. But not only are we ourselves engaged in these beneficent occupations—you will find that the only other form of hostility with whom we can ever come into contact are occupied with similar peaceable pursuits. They, like us, are engaged in advancing the standards of civilization westwards, not as rivals, but as allies; and a community of interests, objects, and aspirations has already begun to cement between the people of the United States and ourselves what is destined, I trust, to prove an indissoluble affection. If, then, you have come hither to seek for peace—peace, at least we can promise you. But it is not merely to the material blessings of our land that I bid you welcome. We desire to share with you on equal terms our constitutional liberties, our municipal privileges, and our domestic freedom. We invite you to assist us in choosin the members of our Parliament, in shaping our laws, and in moulding our future destinies. There is no right or function which we exercise as free citizens in which you do not here participate, and with the civil freedom we equally gladly offer you absolute religious liberty. The forms of worship you have brought with you you will be able to practice in the most unrestricted manner, and we confidently trust that those blessings which have waited upon your virtuous exertions in your Russian homes will continue to attend you here; for we hear that you are a sober-minded and God-fearing community, and as such you are doubly welcome among us. It is with the greatest pleasure I have passed through your villages and witnessed your comfortable homesteads, barns and byres, which have arisen like magic upon this fertile plain, for they prove indisputable that you are expert in agriculture, and already possess a high standard of domestic comfort. In the name, then, of Canada and her people, in the name of Queen Victoria and her empire, I again stretch out to you the hand of brotherhood and good fellowship, for you are as welcome to our affections as you are to our lands, our liberties, and freedom. In the eye of our law the least among you is the equal of the highest magnate in our land, and the proudest of our citizens may well be content to hail you as his fellowcountrymen. You will find Canada a beneficent and loving mother, and under her fostering care I trust your community is destined to flourish and extend in wealth and numbers through countless generations. In one word, beneath the flag whose folds now wave above us, you will find protection, peace, civil and religious liberty, constitutional freedom, and equal rights.

These remarks of His Excellency were duly translated to the Mennonites by Mr. Hespeler. The crowd listened eagerly, vainly endeavoring to conceal their eagerness and emotion under a mask of German stolidity. They frequently doffed their caps in token of their approval, and many of them were moved to tears by the kind and feeling terms in which His Excellency referred to the tender associations connected with their far-away homes. One stolid-looking, rubicund-visaged, middle-aged man I particularly noticed, who was determined to present a smooth exterior. Vain determination! First the muscles about his mouth were seen to quiver; then there was a perceptible trembling of the eye-lids, and at last, long before His Excellency's remarks were concluded, he fairly broke down, and the tears coursed down his weather worn cheeks like rain. Many women, too, were affected to tears. His Excellency, with the tact of the true orator, seemed to feel the impulses of the crowd, many of whom, I verily believe, would have delighted to hug him to their bosoms at the close of his remarks.

The members of the Reception Committee were then introduced; among others a gentleman who had been presented with a gold watch by the Emperor of Russia. The schools of one of the villages also were then arrayed before the Vice-Regal visitors, and sang an original song of welcome to His Excellency. This song was the composition of their schoolmaster, Mr. Peter Dueck, and the sentiment expressed in it was a hope that the Governor-General would favor them with a visit to his home. Another schoolmaster presented Lady Dufferin with a floral gift, consisting of a specimen of the handi-work of each of his scholars, thirty-two in number, and done exceedingly well, considering the short time allowed for the purpose. His Excellency then addressed the children in a few words, and promised to visit their village. A few songs were then sung by the children, and the proceedings terminated.

THE PICKERING HORROR.

VERDICT OF THE JURY.

The following verdict was returned by the jury in the enquiry respecting the horrible and fatal outrage committed on Mrs. Ellen Bennett, of Pickering:—"We find that Ellen Bennett came to her death on the 10th of August, from injuries inflicted upon her on the night of the 26th of July, that said injuries were feloniously committed by Thomas Burk and John McPherson; and that said Burk and McPherson did forcibly enter the dwelling on the night of the 26th July, with intent to commit a rape on the person of the said Ellen Bennett."

James Summerville, a witness who gave evidence at the inquest, has been since arrested on a charge of having committed wilful and corrupt perjury. The prisoner was brought before Dr. Gunn, J. S. M. Wilcox, and John Phillips, J.P. He swore at the inquest that James McPherson was home between ten and eleven o'clock on the night of the 26th July, when the outrage was committed on Mrs. Bennett.

Wm. G. Gerow, Wm. John Bokell, James Hogle, Thomas Major and Moses Linton were examined in support of the charge, by Mr. Firewell, County Crown Attorney. The evidence for the prosecution went to show that McPherson must have been in Broughsm at the time prisoner said he was at home in bed.

FREE TRADE.

(From the Bobcaygeon Independent.)

Let us suppose a case. We will imagine the people of the Township of Fenelon to be very clever in the manufacture of gridirons, and to have an overpowering taste for cabbages. We will imagine also that the people of the Township of Verulam possess a singular power of raising cheap cabbage, and to be greatly addicted to the use of gridirons. Well, in the natural order of things the people of Verulam would raise cabbage, and the people of Fenelon would make gridirons, and they would exchange gridirons and cabbage with each other. The arrangement would be a good one, and each would gain. We will now suppose a little more. Let us imagine that the Verulam Township Council held a meeting and decided that it would not allow any more Fenelon gridirons to come into Verulam, and at the same time the Fenelon Council decided that no more Verulam cabbages should be admitted into Fenelon. The reason alleged by each Council being the same, viz., to encourage the home construction of gridirons in Verulam, which had no iron, and the home growth of cabbages in Fenelon, which had no soil suitable for their production. Well, now, what should we say of those Councils? Should we not consider them lunatics and imbeciles, and call them drivelling idiots and even still more opprobrious names? Why of course we should. Very well, then. Now let us take another step. Canada can raise meat, poultry, horses, lumber, and some other articles, remarkably cheap and remarkably good, and much cheaper than they can be raised in the States; on the other hand the States can produce some kinds of manufactured articles much cheaper and better than they can be produced in Canada. Well, why in the name of common sense should they not exchange those articles one with another, and each country direct its whole attention to producing the articles for which it is best adapted. And yet both Governments are striving to prevent this natural exchange, and some idiotic persons in Canada demand 'Protection,' whilst the States generally declare that such free exchange is an evil to be prevented by legislative enactments. Could idiotcy do anything more idiotic? Must not the mind of a Protectionist—who could suppose that an advantage would be gained by the Verulam and Fenelon Councils imposing Protective duties on articles exchanged between the two townships,—be in a condition of extreme bemuddlement? and can any difference in principle be discerned between the Councils of those two Townships and the two Governments of Canada and the States? The position we have set up is of course absurd, but it is not one particle more absurd than the actual position at this moment of Canada and the States. So absurd is the position that wherever intelligence is found there the doctrine of Protection is flouted and ridiculed. No later than last Monday the Times, the leading journal of the world, had an article on the subject of reciprocity between Canada and the United States, and pointed out that if the two Governments could agree together on the terms upon which the customs line could be abolished it would be a consummation attended with many advantages. At the same moment the National Board of Trade, sitting in Milwaukee, composed of men thoroughly acquainted with the subject, memorialised the President in favor of reciprocity with Canada. In the face of all this the Conservatives of Canada, with a Pig-headed perverseness beyond all powers of ordinary comprehension, are agitating for "Protection." Their cry is about equal to no Fenelon gridirons in Verulam, no Verulam cabbages in Fenelon, and having raised such a cry there is only one other thing for them to do,—to retire into the Asylum at Orillia, and await there in peace the moment when Nature shall release them from a world for which they are totally unfitted.

WINDING UP AN INSURANCE COMPANY.—The London Free Press says:—"Notice has been issued to cash policy holders of the Beaver and Toronto Mutual to the effect that, under the Act respecting the Beaver and Toronto Mutual Fire Insurance Company, passed in the last session of the Dominion Parliament, it has been finally decided to wind up the concern. The assets of the company, it is feared, will not realize sufficient funds to meet its liabilities and cover the cost of reinsuring cash policies, and policy-holders are cautioned to consult their own interests by taking out a new insurance in another office."

HACKETT MONUMENT.—A Montreal report says:—"The sketch plan of a grand monument to the memory of the late Thos. Lett Hackett is completed. It will cost as designed about $5,000. It is to be forty-five feet high, on a base of twelve feet. The monument is to be of Ohio stone. The base will have two buttresses and a deeply recessed panel, with a figure and an open Bible with the inscription:—

THOMAS LETT HACKETT,
Shot in Victoria Square.

And above a richly carved pediment, with the words:—

July 12th, 1877.

Over this rises an octogonal shaft, seventeen feet high, supporting a canopy and cross. On each side will be polished granite columns.

KANSAS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR:—Thinking that a few items from the "Plains of Kansas" may be interesting to at least a few of the numerous readers of your paper, I take pleasure in informing you that our crops are of the finest description, (except fall wheat which promised a very large yield until struck with rust while in the milk); all other small grain "Pass out well;" corn is going to be an immense crop, in fact the crop this season promises to yield double that of any previous year. The spring opened out cold and wet, (caused no doubt by the Presidential Meddle;) but as soon as that Memorial great passed over the weather cleared, and farming operations began. We had ample rains to produce and mature the most abundant crops that was ever grown in north western Kansas. Farmers can now busy themselves with their grain. Fall wheat at harvest time yielding was considered not worth cutting, is rewarding the farmers by yielding from 12 to 16 bushels per acre from it. There has been no hessian in our community this year we occasionally see a few passing over. Farmers are moving from North to South, with no signs of stopping with us. In fact everything looks prosperous for the husband at present. Good crops, new homes, our city of Beloit the county seat of Mitchell county, with a population of 2,000 souls, and many of the surrounding towns are in a flourishing condition. Our people are of the best class of Americans, and are from the New England States, and from Pennsylvania. Our county is free from debt, and has a population of 8,000 souls. Our county has a fine court house, and a jail that is a credit to the county. Our school system is unsurpassed by any in the State. We have a fine system of water works in the city of Beloit, which is a credit to the city. Our people are moral, and sustain the ordinances of the gospel. We have a fine Presbyterian church, and a Methodist church, and a Congregational church, and a Catholic church, and a Baptist church, and a Universalist church, and a Christian church, and a Lutheran church, and a Unitarian church, and a Swedenborgian church, and a Quaker church, and a Jewish church, and a Mormon church, and a Spiritualist church, and a Free Thinkers' church, and a Shakers' church, and a Mohammedan church, and a Buddhist church, and a Confucian church, and a Brahmin church, and a Parsee church, and a Fetish church, and a Shamanist church, and a Druidical church, and a Pantheistic church, and a Deistical church, and a Theistical church, and a Monotheistical church, and a Polytheistical church, and a Henotheistical church, and a Pagan church, and a Heathen church, and a Devil worshipping church, and a Hell fire church, and a Universal Salvation church, and a Total Depravity church, and a Predestination church, and a Free Will church, and a Free Grace church, and a Free Love church, and a Free Lunch church, and a Free Soil church, and a Free Trade church, and a Free Masonic church, and a Free Thinkers' church, and a Free Will Baptist church, and a Free Will Methodist church, and a Free Will Presbyterian church, and a Free Will Congregational church, and a Free Will Universalist church, and a Free Will Christian church, and a Free Will Lutheran church, and a Free Will Unitarian church, and a Free Will Swedenborgian church, and a Free Will Quaker church, and a Free Will Jewish church, and a Free Will Mormon church, and a Free Will Spiritualist church, and a Free Will Free Thinkers' church, and a Free Will Shakers' church, and a Free Will Mohammedan church, and a Free Will Buddhist church, and a Free Will Confucian church, and a Free Will Brahmin church, and a Free Will Parsee church, and a Free Will Fetish church, and a Free Will Shamanist church, and a Free Will Druidical church, and a Free Will Pantheistic church, and a Free Will Deistical church, and a Free Will Theistical church, and a Free Will Monotheistical church, and a Free Will Henotheistical church, and a Free Will

A WONDERFUL REFORM IN FANNING MILLS

MINROGAN & ELLIOTT

AND GET ONE OF THEIR

"FARMERS FRIEND."

They are the best and cheapest Fanning Mills in the Market, and clean from 80 to 100 bush. of Wheat, ready for the market, in an hour, and does not throw the large grain into the tailings. We have received a large number of Testimonials from different Farmers in the County who have used our Mills. They will speak for themselves:—

Greystock P.O., Otonabee, Mar. 12, 1877—

MOORE & MINORGAN:

Dear Sirs.—This is to certify that I have given the "Farmers Friend" Mill a fair trial, and have no hesitation in saying that in my opinion it is one of the best Mills now in use for cleaning grain for seed, or market.

Yours etc., J. SMITHSON.

Otonabee, March 31, 1877.

MOORE & MINORGAN:

Dear Sirs.—This is to certify that I have given your "Farmers Friend" Mill a fair trial, and have no hesitation in saying that in my opinion it is one of the best Mills now in use for cleaning grain for seed or market.

Yours etc., J. REDMOND.

Balsam Grove, Peterboro, March 13, 1877.

MOORE & MINORGAN:

Dear Sirs.—I have tested your "Farmers Friend" Mill and find that it works well, taking out all dirt and small seeds out of grain and making a good clean article for sale. I am sure that your machine will give good satisfaction among the farmers, that is if they want to take good clean grain to market, and get five cents per bushel more for it.

Yours etc., J. H. WALSON.

Smith, 5th March, 1877.

MOORE & MINORGAN:

Dear Sirs.—I take pleasure in recommending the "Farmers Friend" as being the best Mill I have ever had, and I have had several of what was called the Best Makes in Ontario.

JAS. ELLIOTT.

Peterboro, March 5th, 1877.

This is to certify that we have tested Moore & Minorgan's Mill and pronounce it to be the best we have ever seen cleaning, and it is the best Seperator we have ever seen.

JOHN DOBBIN.

I also endorse the above statement.

WM. DOBBIN.

TO THE RIGHT BE TRUE.

Mid life's conflict, do your duty,
Let thy heart be just and pure;
Wisdom's truth is one of beauty,
Truest is the path to joyous glory.
Though thy foes do heed o'erpass thee.
Taunting face with words of hate,
Great in the reward that waits thee
At the bright and golden gate.

He who wear'd in "the hard battle
Strive to earn an hero's name,
Must aim'd the death-shot's rattle
Fearlessly Right's cause proclaim;
Cheer on comrades, weary, fainting,
Onward toward the destined goal;
In proud colors bravely painting
Deeds of manhood's soul.

There are scorners, scoffers ever
Hurling round the path you tread,
Ready to cash dear life never,
Showing forth a hyena head;
Yet with brave determined spirit,
And with regard of honor bright,
The true man sees you inherit
They appeared will shrink from sight.

Let not fear cause thee to falter;
Be a man, why, be a man;
Never once thy true cause alter.
Nobly onward lead the van;
In the siege "on the token
That shall crown the victor's brow;
Game of love, for hearts broken,
For faith'ful unbroken vow.

Heaven will shield the brave defender;
Of the right 'gainst wrong and sin;
He who acts as a contender
'Gainst the many foes within.
Then as onward thou'rt pressing,
With a soul to dare and do,
If thrown you'll not expect a blessing,
Ever to the right be true.

THE FISHERIES COMMISSION.

The British and American Cases.

The cases as made by Great Britain claims:

1. That the difference between the concessions of the old convention of 1818, and the privileges conferred by the treaty of 1871, are subjects of compensation. 2. That these are the right to enter great bays like those of Fundy and Chaleur, within the lines drawn from headland to headland, for the purpose of fishing within the three mile limit from the shore, the use of the shore for drying and curing fish, the privilege of traffic for bait, supplies, &c., in the Dominion and Newfoundland ports, and the right of transhipment of fish from the same. 3. That the mackerel fisheries is of enormous value, is almost entirely confined within the three mile limit, and absolutely necessary to the United States as a supply of food, and the largest element of their shipping trade, and if retained exclusively by British subjects would give them a valuable monopoly and command of the American market, even with a heavy duty.

Valuing these claims according to certain British official returns and the testimony of the Dominion and Newfoundland fishermen engaged in that business, the British Government demands $14,280,000 for twelve years' lease of the advantages which the treaty offers to the citizens of the United States, which estimate is the alleged surplus value of British concessions over and above the advantages which were given by the United States to the British Government in opening American inshore fisheries to subjects of Her Britannic Majesty and making fish and fish oil free of duty.

The American counter case replies:

1. That the difference between the treaties of 1818 and 1871 is neither in fact nor by diplomatic construction of the just measure of the relative advantages secured by either Government under the treaty of 1871, the right to enter within the headlands of such bays as those of Funday and Chaleur was never surrendered by the treaty of 1813, was never claimed so as to be practically enforced by the British Government, and will always be maintained by the United States Government as an inalienable right; that the right of traffic for supplies and the right of transhipment were not conferred by the treaty of 1871, and are now only exercised permissively, and subjection to revocation by legislation of the Dominion, but that, even if granted by the treaty of 1871, it is simply a reciprocity in trade which benefits both buyer and seller, and cannot be supplemented by a money equivalent on either sides, and consequently that the value of the inshore fishery, with the increased facilities in the use of the coasts for drying and curing, are the only subjects of compensation to be considered. 3. That the value of the Mackeral fisheries is largely derived from their own shore fisheries and deep sea fishing, and that the proportion of the mackeral catch derived from the inshore fisheries, open to the citizens of the United States by the treaty of 1871, is so small that the statistics of trade prove that the American market could not be controlled by the British fisheries even without competition, 4. That the freedom of the United States inshore fisheries, the use of the menhaden fishery, which furnishes the necessary bate for the mackerel fishery, and which is exclusively within the American limits, and the freedom of entry into American ports of fish and fish oil, furnish ample and sufficient equivalent for any and all advantages derived from the treaty of 1871 by the citizens of the United States.

THE quantity of old iron rails loaned to four New Brunswick Railways was 4,159 tons, valued at $20 per ton. The policy of the Government in thus aiding such lines as would be feeders for the Intercolonial has proved to be a wise one.

A TRAPPIST MONASTERY.—Francisco Xavier, a Trappist monk, in perfecting arrangements for the establisment of a monastery for his order about three miles from Buffalo, N. Y. Among the hundred monks selected for the new mission a variety of trades are represented. The order does not exist on charity, and in its rules is the most ascetic of all the monastic orders. They sleep on the floor, rise to pray at midnight, go through the form of digging their own graves as a reminder of death preserve unbroke silence from year to year, and eat only vegetables, bread, and water.

An arrangement has been designed, and is now on trial by which water for domestic purposes can be carried through glass tubes with safety and speed, instead of iron or lead as is the case now. The tubes can be supplied at any measurement below four inches in diameter. The average thickness of the glass is from an eighth to a fourth of an inch, and its resisting capicity is calculated at about 400 pounds to the square inch. The pipes are generally about six feet in length and are coupled with rubber joints, with outer joints of a composite metal, making it very firm and tight. The pipe is guarded by four rods of the same metal, forming a square about the tube.—Boston Herald.

"HOME, SWEET HOME!"

They have become household words, clothed in the sweetest melody that singer ever sang. Yet to how many these words are only a mockery, and to how many hearts there is no responsive chord to their music.

The poet tells us that "some flowers of Eden we still inherit; but the trail of the serpent is over them all." The flowers of home are marked too often by the trail of the serpent, Temper. This is the blight that robs our household roses of their perfume and their bloom; this is the great dark shadow that rests heavily upon its pleasant places, and drives out the golden sunshine. This it is that mars the melody and produces only discord; this it is that makes a place of torture of what ought to be a pure Eden of happiness and peace.

Could we only take a look into all the homes of earth, we would see how true this is. It may be the father's violent temper that produces the discordant sounds which mar the music of home It may be the mother's scolding tongue that drops gall when it should drop only honey. It may be the son's harsh words and rude violence that sends its angry clamor through the house; or it may be the passionate tones of the willful daughter, who forgets what "an excellent thing in woman is a low voice."

The misery caused by this domestic demon, Temper, cannot be told. It breaks up homes, drives asunder those God has joined, sends sons and daughters on a weary pilgrimage through the world, seeking peace and finding it not. Men and women who have sworn before God to love and stay with each other until death parts them, are severed forever, unmindful of their vows, by this serpent, Temper. Daughters and sons are very often tempted to forsake their duties to parents by this destroyer of home happiness.

Read the divorce records if you wish to see the misery that Temper has caused. Look all over the world—you will see the trail of this serpent, even to the very gallows where the poor culprit confesses that though its promptings he committed the deed that brought him there.

Home can never be "sweet home" until peace prevails; and not until the demon Temper is rooted out of its every nook and corner can we truly call it "home, sweet home." God "setteth the solitary together in families," not to make discord, but to help and cheer; not to crush all the flowers of joy, but to tend and expand them into greater beauty, richer fragrance. Happier than any shining palace is that home over which nestles lovingly, with white wings outspread, the beautiful Angel of Peace; for beneath the shadow of its pinions only can home really be "sweet, sweet home."

ETIQUETTE.

If fine manners are naturally associated with rank, the supposition would be that the higher the rank the finer the manners. It would then follow that the guest of honor, who was also the stranger, would take precedence of all others. It is therefore bewildering to learn that when the Prince of Wales recently gave a dinner to Gen. Grant the distinguished visitor brought up the rear of the procession to the dining-room. We are but boors in etiquette; yet if the Prince of Wales had been the guest of honor of the President of the United States he would not have been permitted to close the march to dinner; and he would have preceded not as Prince, but as guest; for it would be equally true of untitled Mr. Bright or Mr. Gladstone as of a Prince. Courtesy is a poor thing if it cannot dispense, upon due occasion, with the rigidity of ceremonial forms. It is rumored that the American Minister in England was long absorbed in the task of arranging Gen. Grant's invitations, so that he should not be apparently insulted by being treated at entertainments given in his honor with less consideration to any other guest. This is hardly credible to an unsophisticated American, because he cannot comprehend either that an English gentleman should offer or an American gentleman accept such a situation. The rules of really good society whether titled or untitled, are everywhere the same in regard to certain essential points, and it is a pity if they are violated in the house of a Prince. To invite an untitled man into titled company, upon an occasion of pure ceremony, where titles determine precedence, is to invite him to go behind. If a Prince gives a dinner in honor of an untitled guest, he is bound to honor him chiefly, and he invites the company merely to help him render the honor. If, therefore, it is true that the Prince of Wales gave a dinner specially to Gen. Grant and permitted the greater part of the company to precede him to the table, Gen. Grant should quietly have left the house, and all the more if, as is constantly said, etiquette and forms are real things to European society, For if that be so, the significance of the situation was that an American without a title, however illustrious however honored at home, and the especial guest of the occasion, is not to be recognized as the equal of titled people. Probably if the story be true, Gen. Grant was not troubled; but if English gentlemen are required by etiquette to acquiesce in so flagrant a discourtesy they are greatly to be pitied.—Harper's Magazine.

MR. MCLAGAN, formerly of the Guelph Mercury, is writing his experiences of a trip to Manitoba in that paper. Speaking of Winnipeg, he says it is to be "the big city "of the west," and that, too, ere many years pass over us. Its past record is an extraordinary one. In 1871 the population was about 500; in 1872, 1,600; 1873, 3,500; 1874, 5,000; and now about 7,000. Were it not for the grasshopper plagues of 1874 and 1875 it is a certainty the population would have even doubled the figures I have given. This year's assessed value of city property is $2,987,000. The taxation about 1½ cents on the dollar. Real estate is high, ruling figures for choice properties on main street, near the centre of business Rents are excessively high, and buildings dear. Fifty dollars per month for an ordinary dwelling house in the current rate: $1,500 to $1,000 per annum the rent for small stores; while the common rents paid for cash hotels on the Pacific, Grand Central or the Davis are from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.

Practical Questions for Tories to Answer.

Suppose it was announced to the public to-morrow, and unquestionable evidence of the fact submitted, that Mr. Mackenzie had given the contract for the Welland canal improvements—the same for which he is now inviting tenders—to a company of American and Canadian capitalists on the condition that they contributed $300,000 to the Reform election fund—how many Reformers or "Clear Grits" among all his followers in Parliament and in the country would stand by him one day?

Or suppose it was shown that his Minister of Justice, Mr. Blake, had consented to accept from the Grand, Trunk Railway—now indebted to the Government in the sum of $15,142,633,33—a sum of $15,000 by way of contributing to a Blake testimonial, while the railway paid not one farthing of principal or interest on its debt, what would the people say of Mr. Blake?

Or, suppose it was shown that Mr. Mackenzie had, just previous to the recent elections in Ottawa and Lincoln, drawn upon the Grand Trunk railway treasury for $25,000 and checked out the full amount for the benefit of Messrs. Norris and Featherstone, what would the Reformers and Tories of Canada say?

Or suppose it was shown that Mr. Blake as Minister of Justice had employed the law firm of Blake, Kerr & Boyd in a number of very important suits before the Supreme and Exchequer Courts, paying for their services out of the public treasury at the rate of $5,000 a year, what would a discerning public think of the transaction?

Or suppose it was shown that the Grand Trunk railway, after contributing $15,000 to a Blake testimonial, $25,000 to the election expenses of Messrs. Norris and Featherstone, and say $200,000 more for the Beverley

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNORS IN POLITICS.

A good deal has of late been said of a rumor that a couple of Lieutenant-Governors intend at the expiration of their term of office seeking election to the House of Commons. There can be no doubt that the Conservative party needs men badly enough to draw them even from the gubernatorial chair. We can therefore readily understand that a party wish was father to the thought, which in turn brought forth the rumor; but we question much whether the original intention to enter active political life ever entered the minds of their Honors, if indeed they have any such intention even now that the hint has been dropped them. There seems to be no constitutional reason why a person who is appointed to represent the crown for a short term, should not at the expiration of that term become as any other citizen, being shorn of all the vice-regal functions that made him different from his fellow countrymen. The whole difficulty seems to be in the probable weakening of the essentially non partizan position a Lieutenant-Governor occupies whatever may have been his politics before his appointment to a gubernatorial position, he acts with the party which may for the time being hold the House and provide Ministers. These latter consult with him on all matters of policy. Were it known that he was likely in a short time to return to the House, in opposition mayhap to his advisers, the necessary familiarity between them and him would naturally be marred. It can readily be seen how a diffidence would arise, to the impediment of all matters of state. Both ministers and governor in such a case would feel themselves in an extremely awkward position; and would be glad to take steps to avoid it. Were it once understood that Lieutenant-Governors would go back into party warfare in aid of the party with which they were identified at the time of their appointment, means whereby the governor would go out with his party; or, more likely still, the occupant of Government House would resign immediately on a change of ministry. It is doubtful if so near an approach to the American system is advisable.

THE EASTERN END OF THE TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

A good evidence of the favour with which the Toronto and Ottawa Railway is received is the rivalry that exists between Perth and Carleton Place, as to whether by using the line of the Canada Central the traffic of the through line shall pass through Carleton Place, or whether an independent line be built further south, through Perth. The Canada Central authorities offer twenty-eight miles of ready built road, though not without expectation of a good rental. The inducement to use the existing line in preference to an independent one consists therefore in the saving that would be effected at the first by not having to build that much road. A correspondent in a late number of the Ottawa Citizen presents the case from the Perth point of view in a plain and pointed manner. He appeals first to the sectional interests of the city by showing that the building of an independent line will cause the expenditure near Ottawa of $250,000 or $300,000. He claims too that the local traffic of the Canada Central road would interfere with the through traffic, whereas by the building of a line through Perth, not only an annual rental would be saved, but a connection and trade with a good part of the country would be opened up. He then compares the face of the country to the south with that through which the Canada Central runs, much to the disadvantage of the latter, claiming that a large through business demands low gradients, instead of grades of from sixty to seventy feet, such as he declares are some of those on the Canada Central road. He claims too, in contradiction to other statements, that the southern route will be as short as the northern, if not shorter. Last, but not least, he considers the question of bonuses, stating that Lanark village and the northern group of townships have voted $100,000; and that for the southern route Perth has voted $75,000, and a by-law will be submitted at the next session of the County Council grouping the southern townships for another $75,000, making in all $150,000 for the Perth line.

The plain purpose of the letter to the Citizen is to enlist Ottawa on the side of the Perth route, which probably the city would prefer were all the circumstance favourable; for as the Perth Advocate puts it, "It will not injure Ottawa to have two roads running in to it." But what Ottawa looks for primarily is a trunk line, at as little a cost as possible; and therefore the whole problem, as far as the city is concerned, is whether she can afford a large enough bonus to induce the building of the independent line. Not only is it a question of dollars and cents with Ottawa, but with the Toronto and Ottawa Company as well. The Company no doubt would rather have a line they could entirely control, all the way from Toronto to Ottawa; but unless material assistance from municipalities directly interested be forthcoming they can hardly be expected to build thirty miles of road, when it can be avoided by using a road already in running order. The decision as to which of the two routes shall be chosen seems to rest on a basis of bonuses, and their extent.

THE CULTIVATION OF WHEAT.

It having been noticed in the southern portion of the County of Ontario, a section formerly noted for the wheat there grown, that the staple variety—the Fife—had very much deteriorated both in quality and quantity, it was deemed advisable to call a meeting of farmers and millers to discuss the matter. So important a question did not fail to bring together a goodly number, both of growers and grinders, the farmer in most cases bringing with them samples of grain, threshed and in the stalk; these included a number of varieties, fall and spring, bearded and bald. The discussion as to whether Fife wheat is exhausted as a seed brought forth a good deal of contradictory testimony, the bulk of it however going to prove that in the south Fife wheat has generally failed, though it seems to retain its excellency in the northern part of the county. The cause of the failure as a crop was somewhat of a puzzle, owing to the conflicting reports from various growers. One theory was that it was owing to exhaustion of the soil, another laid it to change of climate. A comparison of experience however, did not uphold either theory. There had been an entire failure of a crop in one case, on land that had never before been sown; also in another where the land had not been in wheat for eight years. One man again had an excellent crop after cultivating "Fife" for years, while another found it an utter failure. In the first instance, the wheat was grown near the lake shore. Another grower had got an excellent crop on an old grain farm from a new Fife seed. It would appear from these reports, from practical men, that the trouble does not lie in either exhaustion of soil or change of climate singly, though it may arise from a combination of these and other circumstances. The probabilities favor the view that the chief want is the sowing of seed brought from another locality.

Though the cause could not be determined, all the farmers were agreed as to the facts of poor crops of seed wheat; and the millers were unanimous in their testimony that the flour made from it is not nearly as good as it used to be. Formerly the flour made in that part of the country commanded a first place in the market; now it is driven out by that grown from western "hard wheat." The millers are therefore very much interested; as they must either induce the farmers to grow better flour-producing wheat, import grain for grinding, or be driven to shut up their mills. One miller expressed continued confidence in Fife wheat, which he declared was as good as ever in the back townships. He held the opinion that the weather of the last two years has, combined with the deterioration of the soil, caused the deterioration noticed. It may be, therefore, that the decline in the growth and quality is more local than general; hence it would be well for other sections of the country to organize meetings similar to that held at Oshawa, that there might be a comparison of notes over a wider extent of territory. In the experience of the Peterborough wheat growers, for instance, similar to that of the farmers of South or of North Ontario?

At the same meeting the advisability of a return to fall wheat cultivation was discussed; also the best variety of seed. A number of those present gave their experience in late growing of fall wheat, and it was encouraging. Diehl was found liable to winter-killing, and Egyptian to a lesser extent. Silver Chaff yielded well, and one grower preferred it before the Seneca, which is generally considered the most hardy. The millers present urged the cultivation of "hard wheat," as that makes the best flour; and after all, the trial test in grinding is what gives the grade and the value to the grain, as it is brought to market. A committee was appointed to ascertain where a good, pure seed could be obtained, to report at an adjourned meeting, to be held to-morrow afternoon, at which a discussion will take place on the several variety of seed that has been tried during the past year or two.

Though the notice is but short, perhaps some of the farmers or millers in this vicinity may be able to go to Oshawa to-morrow and attend the meeting. The presence of such visitors will no doubt be welcomed.

THE NEEBING HOTEL.

The latest scandal on which the Tory papers have been dilating is an accusation that the Government bought the Neebing Hotel property,—five acres and an unfinished building—on the Kaministiquia River, from Mr. Adam Oliver, and paid an outrageously extravagant price for it. As a reward for resigning a seat to make room for Hon. Oliver Mowat. The story is pretty far-fetched; but this does not hinder the Tories from rolling it as a sweet morsel under their tongues. Some of the journals have even gone to the trouble of presenting a picture of the structure in all its undeveloped deformity The price paid for the property, $5,029 was fixed by valuators, not by the seller or the buyer; and the best proof that it was not too much is furnished in an offer to buy it back at the same figure. The political aspect put upon the affair by zealous Tory scandal makers, it also, enters the region of absurdity, when it is known that Mr Oliver was not the owner of the property, he being simply the President of a company which acquired the land and built the hotel, with the very reasonable expectation of making money in furnishing accommodation to the many tourists who visit that section of the Province in summer. The cost of building in a place so remote from a lumber supply can readily be understood; and it will scarcely surprise even gentlemen of the Tory persuasion to learn that in the building, their party papers affect to so despise, there is $1,200 worth of lumber. Besides this there were other matters in connection with the building that had to be considered in the valuation; and after these had been disposed of, the cost of five acres of land in a thriving Village, must needs be calculated. So after all we can hardly understand that the company would not make such a bad bargain in buying the property back at the figures paid for it by the government.

THE St. Thomas Home Journal is growing in influence, libel suit.

THE Montreal Witness puts the general election fifteen months hence.

THE Licensed Victuallers Association of Bruce have decided not to oppose the passage of the Dunkin Act in that county.

QUERY! Why, are the gifted members for East and West Peterboro, never asked to air their oratory at any of the Tory Pic Nic's.

IN his Amherstburg oration, John A. laid down as his doctrine, "Canada for the Canadians." He forgot to add, "and Canadian Fisheries for the Americans."

JOHN A's greatest show on earth appeared in Lindsay yesterday. When is it going to appear here, this is a good show town. "Would to God I could catch him!" Eh?

THE Hamilton Times hits the nail neatly and squarely on the head when it says that Tory Protection does not want manufactured goods in a 25 per cent list, so much as they want their Chieftain in the $6,000 list.

IT is rumored that several of our Tory contemporaries have again been doing the scandal business to such an extent as to lead them into a prosecution for libel. We hear that the Bowmanville News, Port Hope Times and Lindsay Warder are among the number.

ADVERTISER!—The ex-Premier was never more unpopular in Ontario politically than he is to-day. He never possessed the confidence of a majority of the people of Upper Canada, and he never will. Socially, Sir John has always been a favorite, but politically he is as dead as a door-nail.

THE decision of the Chancellor, who holds that the assignment of the $500,000 stock held by the County of Hastings in the Grand Junction Railway to Charles McIntosh was invalid, is of great importance. Its effect is to place the parties in the position in which they stood previous to the sale, or assignment, thus rendering the County liable for the amount of the calls since made, with interest.

THE Free Grant Gazette, of Bracebridge, says:—Mr. Barnheart, agent for Mr. Boyd of Peterborough, came down the South Branch to see what the river was like for driving, as they purpose driving board and square timber on that branch next year. They operate on the head waters of the south branch of the South Muskoka River, near Hollow Lake, and used to drive to Peterborough,

THE Royal Canadian Insurance Company appears as plaintiff in some twenty-three suits entered in Montreal against stock-holders who have made default in the payment of their calls. The Stadacona Company is following a like course. This will no doubt bring discomfort to some of their shareholders, and disaster to others. Although severe, it is the only measure they can adopt.

A new way to pay old debts comes from the town of Ingersoll, Ontario. A tailor sued a customer for the price of a suit of clothes. The defendant put in an appearance at the Division Court clad in the garments concerning which the suit had arisen, and the judge was so impressed by their baggy, ill-fitting appearance, that he non-suited the plaintiff. This is a fearful warning to tailors, and a useful hint to purchasers.

TORONTO Telegram: There is one thing about Mr. Mackenzie's public utterances which do him credit at any rate. He may lack the polish of the orators of the gentlemen's party, and his Latin may not come as trippingly from the tongue; and, for that matter, his trousers may not have the U. E. Club cut; at the same time he has demonstrated that it is possible to discuss public questions without flying into a passion and using bad names to everybody who does not think as he may.

BRACON:—Mr. Thos. White, jr., is a contradictory mortal. In his paper at Montreal he has been telling the world that Canada was ruined by Free Trade, that our industries were paralysed, and that without "Protection" the country would infallibly go to the dogs. Yet at Millwaukee the other day, at the meeting of the National Board of Trade he assured that body that since the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty our trade with other countries had increased so much that we had suffered little or no disadvantage. Now which story are we to believe?

The Toronto correspondent of the Norwood Register misrepresents the attitude and language of the Ministers of the Gospel in relation to the Dunkin Act, adds to the cowardly scandal against Rev. Wm. Hunter; and plainly misrepresents the character of the Act, as he does its application along with the Crook's Act to the suppression of liquor selling. Late decisions in the County of Grey show that the two Acts work well together, even in the Country where a Vice-Councillor is said to have proved by practice that the Act is ineffectual. The Register's correspondent is evidently "up"—on only one side of the question.

THE Irish Canadian tells us that its knowledge of the names of the twenty Manitoban's, implicated in the contemplated Fenian raid that Professor O'Donoghue planned is private. That being the case we must say it displays very bad taste on the part of the Irish Canadian to be making repeated public allusions to a matter confided to its Editor privately. Such attempts at conjuring without any names at all is surely a breech of faith, if a bold announcement of indentification would be. The reference to the Minister of Justice as being in possession of the names, seems to show that the late blusterer of the Irish Canadian is based on some hope of scaring the Minister into granting full amanesty to O'Donoghue, sooner than that the threat of the Irish Canadian, to divulge the names of other conspirators be carried out. Does the Irish Canadian think it is thus doing any good to the exiled O'Donoghue? It looks more like an attempt to manufacture a little political clap-trap at the expense of the banished one for whom so much concern is affected.

QUEBEC timber and lumber advices, to the close of last month, are to the effect that the timber was rather more enquired for at that date; a good many vessels having reached port within the preceeding ten days; but as the trade continued to be depressed in the most important home markets, there was no improvement in prices. White pine of good quality was in good demand and twelve Ottawa rafts of it changed hands at fair prices. In red pine, inferior is not wanted, but fresh and good quality commands fair sale. The deal market is quiet, but there have been limited sales. Oak and elm are moving slowly. The reports of the supervisors of cullers shows the quantity of lumber, staves, spars, etc., measured at Quebec thus far this year, to be greater than 1876 or 1875 in white pine, oak, elm, and staves, but less in the article of red pine, ash, tamarac, birch and maple. Spars too are much less numerous.

M. KNOWLTON.

M. Knowlton, Esq., P. G. W. C. T. has resolved to devote himself to the temperance work, and has for the past three weeks been labouring hard, with great success, on behalf of the Dunkin Bill movement in Peterborough, Cobourg and Port Hope. He is a man of great energy, very fluent and a popular speaker, and has had personal experience of the deplorable effects of intemperance. The following letters have just been sent him by two of his co-laborers and by two men who are at the head of affairs in Canada:—

(From Hon A. Vidal, Senator.)

"SARNIA, August 4th, 1877.

"DEAR SIR:—I have learned with great pleasure that you are going into the lecture field for the Good Templars. Permit me to offer my sincere congratulations on your entering upon a duty for which you are so well qualified, and in discharge of which I feel assured you will achieve a large measure of success in extending and deepening the already widespread interest in the great cause of temperance, and in educating the public mind up to demanding from the Legislature an effective prohibitory law.

"Should you ever find it desirable to ask me for any testimonial of your special fitness for the work—although you are so well known I can hardly think it would ever be necessary—I shall be most happy to furnish it. I merely mention this because I am President of the Dominion Alliance, and suppose that official position might give it value. With cordial wishes for your success I remain,

"Yours, &c.,
"A. VIDAL."

(From the leader of prohibition in the House of Commons.)

"STRATHROY, August 13th, 1877.

"MY DEAR KNOWLTON:—I have heard with extreme pleasure that you intend entering the lecture field in behalf of the temperance cause. Your minute acquaintance with all the details of this great movement, together with your experience at the head of the I. O. G. T., will make your services invaluable. I trust you will find the work congenial, as I know your abilities as a speaker will find ample scope in the advocacy of one of the most important and most meritorious reforms of the present century. With kind regards I remain, Yours, &c.,

"G. W. ROSS."

LINDSAY.

From the Post.

GUN ACCIDENT.—Whilst out on a couple of days' pleasure about four miles up McLaren's Creek on Thursday afternoon last, Master Thos. Douglass, aged 17 years, son of Mr. John Douglass, of this town, met with a very painful accident, which should be a warning to parents not to allow their children free use of dangerous weapons. He and another lad of about the same age were engaged in duck shooting. Douglass was standing on a stump when he espied the object of their search, and in his haste to secure his gun from the canoe allowed the hammer to come in contact with the side of the boat and an explosion followed with fortunately no more serious result than the loss of the forefinger of the lad's right hand. The wound was very painful and the pain was considerably increased by the delay in getting surgical attendance. He was paddled home by his comrade, where the finger was removed and the wound properly dressed.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION.—We understand the Secretary of the Central Exhibition Committee has communicated with all the railways interested with the view of securing special trains and other facilities for the accommodation of visitors to the Central Exhibition to be held here. The attendance will no doubt be very large, and it will be to the interest of the different railways to make such arrangements and connections as will be most convenient to the public. We have no doubt this will be done.

THE DAVEY CASE.—Albert Davey, who has been in jail for some time on remand for a criminal assault on Alice Timms, a young girl of 14 years of age, was up before the Police Magistrates on Tuesday and committed to stand his trial. The assault was committed while the little girl was picking berries in a wood west of the town.

MRS. KENT MASON had a crowded house Wednesday night, and her lecture is highly spoken of as one of the most eloquent temperance addresses that have been delivered in town. Mr. J. Nesbitt occupied the chair. Mrs. Mason lectured in the Bible Christian Church last night.

A LUCKY MAN.—Mr. William Lee, a former resident of London township, but more recently of Port Perry, has fallen heir to the sung little fortune of $10,000 by the death of his aunt in Scotland. Many years since, his father, while en route to Great Britain, to see about this legacy, was shipwrecked in the ill-fated steamship Canadian.

THE STURGEON POINT HOTEL.—The cold weather of the latter part of last week had the effect of nearly clearing this resort of visitors, but with the return of sunshine the house was again comfortably filled. The number of guests have been very large, including some of the most influential men in this province and their families, and they express general approval of the house and its management. The manager has won a good name for himself and the house that will be lasting.

Education Report.

ADVANCE sheets of the report of Hon. MR. CROOKS, Minister of Education for Ontario, afford interesting reading. A more faithful and painstaking worker than the member for South Oxford never presided over the Education Department. Not only has he laboured faithfully at home, but he has visited nearly every portion of the Province, meeting the teachers and other friends of education, and eliciting information of the greatest value. From the report it appears that the amount of money raised last year for school purposes footed up a total of $3,394,656, an increase of $28,901 over the previous year. Of this sum $1,553,374 was raised by school taxes levied by trustees, $793,161 by municipal school assessment, $270,576 by legislature grant, and the balance from various other sources. The amount expended for public school purposes during the year was $3,006,456, a net increase of $13,375 over 1875. Of this sum, $1,838,322 was spent in paying teachers' salaries, the increase on this item being $60,521. There was a decrease of of $72,984, in new school buildings, which is owing to the fact that most portions of the Province are now well provided with school accommodation, and the number of new buildings required is annually becoming smaller. The total school population was 502,250, an increase of 11,167, while the number attending school was 436 537, an increase of 16,396, showing that the compulsory clauses of the School Act have some effect. The attendance was not by any means regular, and only 20,921 attended over 200 days; 94,943 between 150 and 200; 108,122 between 100 and 150; 128,455 between 50 100; 91,012 between 20 and 50; and the large number of 46,474 less than 20 days. The latter receive little or no benefit from their schooling. The average daily attendance for the year was 212,483, considerably less than 50 per cent, of the registered attendance, but showing an increase of 13,909. The average time for which the schools were kept open was eleven months and fourteen days. The number of teachers employed during the year was 6,185, an increase of 157. The number of schools was 5,042, increase of 206. The highest salary paid a male teacher was $1,000, and the average $533, the latter being an increase of $7. while average salary of female teachers was $268, an increase of $8. Of the 6,185 certificates held by teachers 271 were first class Provincial, 1,201 second-class Provincial; 382 old first-class Country Board, 139 old Country Board seconds, 51 old Country Board thirds, 3,688 new country board thirds and 493 interim certificates.

AN EARNEST APPEAL.

Citizens of Peterborough, I would earnestly appeal to your generosity to lend a helping hand in the great battle that is now going on in our Young Dominion. This work is now thoroughly and happily inaugurated in this town, and I really believe that never since the settlement of this place no such feeling has existed as at present for the reclimation of the fallen, and to save the young from falling. This is a work which commends itself to every christian heart, and I would suggest that as this work has, by Gods grace, been so well begun that you, as a people, see that those who sign are looked after and kept from temptation: no nobler mission on earth can you have than this. I shall in my future work look to Peterborough as among my happiest recollections of labor. and I can assure you that nothing would give me greater pain than to hear that those who have been received should be left alone to return to their cups. If I have in my feeble efforts been the means of doing any good among you, you can pay me no higher tribute than to gather these rescued ones together, and by your kind words and noble example lead them step by step to that position in society that will make them happy in their homes, useful as citizens, and an honor to the country that gives them protection.

If I should hear from time to time that this was being done, I shall consider and feel that my work here was not in vain.

Hoping those who read this may feel it a privilege to see that this work is done.

I subscribe myself with pleasure,

Yours truly,

M. KNOWLTON.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—In reading over the REAMER of Sept. 6th, my attention has been attracted to two letters, viz:—"Voices of the People," and the second letter signed "a Councillor," charging the School Board with extravagance and autocratic proceedings. If these charges made were passed without notice by the members of that Board, it might convey a double impression on the minds of the public, either thereby confessing guilt, or the writer might charge the Board with treatment of contempt in not answering it. I am, I must confess but a poor writer in the language of an adopted country, but as I have intended always to work and live by economical principles, and feel stung by such a sweeping assertion, hence take up the gadgel. Passing over your correspondents remarks about living under the British flag, and the authority of the CZAR of Russia, your correspondent awakens to the painful truth that one-third of the taxes spent for School purposes is money thrown away for which no value is given, and charges the ratepayers to take a greater interest in School matters, of which he seems to have cared very little, and hence the charge to the ratepayers. Is it possible that men sitting on the Board well know, who pay annually between $50 and $60 for school purposes as the writer does, and some members perhaps more, that they should be so regardless of spending their own money? Is it even possible for men who are saving and economizing in their own affairs should not practice the same virtue in public affairs? As to the propriety of building the Ward School, the writer as well as some other members of the Board opposed the same this year, and objected to the last also, which fact your correspondent should be aware of, if he paid any attention to school matters, and what would your correspondent advise us to do? It is not natural that the larger a family grows more accommodation is necessary, and must entail increased expense. Your correspondents [illegible] to dissolve the School Board I will not [illegible] do, and have to say that a Council [illegible] as the evening. The [illegible] not let us have our pleasure.

But when that request is made for the School Board to hold their meetings in the Council Chamber for the better attendance of the ratepayers, I must come to the conclusion that your correspondent has been a school "schemer" when a boy, otherwise the school would be to him far more attractive than the council chamber. Is there any better accommodation in the council chamber, except for the Mayor and Councillors than our school rooms afford? Every ratepayer willing to attend will have a seat and desk, and if necessary paper and ink to write observations—but no tobacco chewing. In conclusion I am sorry to say, and I say it without hesitation, that but very few people pay that attention to school matters which they deserve, as evinced by occasions such as examinations, where the ratepayer should see for himself whether his money is wasted away or not. How discouraging it must be for the hard working honest teacher to look at the indifference shown by the ratepayers who pay them their money and think they are doing all, and a great deal too much, when they ought to reward them with their presence, which must be to the honest teacher more flattering and encouraging than money. I cannot close without making a remark how far different examinations pass off in Russia, that for want of room, examinations are held in churches to afford the people an opportunity to witness the same, and if your correspondent had only one chance to see such a sight his grumbling would find a bulwark he could not get over. Thanking you Mr. Editor for your kindness in giving this an insertion.

Yours,

W. LECH.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—In dealing with the second letter, signed "A Councillor" I observe with pain that dignity seems to him of more importance than duty, or the action of the School Board could not have offended him, and thereby wanting to divert public attention from the Council Chamber to the School Board by crying, "Stop, Thief!"

A great deal of repairing necessary on the school buildings had this year to be left over for want of funds. Look how miserable the grounds are looking around the school, which must have an injurious effect on the buildings where money had been better spent there to make public buildings more attractive than money spent on streets in the South Ward: take for instance Rubidge Street! Four Councillors gets alarmed over an expenditure in establishing a Model School. I would like to know how a Councillor would get over this: if Peterborough is not the place, where is the place to be? Would it be Buckhorn or Buckram? Mr. Editor I do not like to throw any insinuations that "a Councillor" is not doing his duty honestly: yet I would feel myself under an obligation to him for answering me a few questions, viz:—

1. What amount of revenue flows in the Town Treasury from the Pounds erected last Spring for such vagrants as pigs and geese, and for which a salary is paid? The droves of pigs marching on our streets makes it an imperative duty to construct not only pounds but breeding and boarding establishments. I think a company could be formed if a liberal bonus would be forthcoming;

2. How this official can demonstrate that if he neglects his duty as to look after the pigs that he thereby neglects his office as Health Inspector as well. Nothing but cleanliness will lessen the chances for disease;

How is it that this same official made a great fuss about my one-storey brick building, and others can construct them of wood in the same locality, I think, after all, we do not all live under the British flag. I fear if a Councillor takes the lantern of Diogenes in his hand he will discover much Chaos in his own state which will take up his spare time.

Thanking you, Mr Editor, for your indulgence,

I remain yours,

W. LECH.

INSURANCE RATES.

(From the Toronto Monetary Times of August 24th, 1877.)

Some months have elapsed since the great fire in St John depleted the coffers of insurance companies to the extent of six millions of dollars, yet no general action has been taken in the direction of recouping the heavy losses thus sustained. The same ruinous rates that prevailed before the large fires of the early part of the year are still accepted, as if they were amply sufficient to meet every emergency that might arise. The entire business for 1877, of the companies which reported to the Dominion Government, so far from yielding profit has resulted in loss. Yet a knowledge of this fact appears to have no influence in bringing about a better condition of business. The dearly bought lessons of past experience are of no avail. The same happy-go-lucky state of affairs is continued from week to week and from month to month, without any appearance of reform. We often wonder why stockholders permit their money to be risked in this manner without fair remuneration for their investment. Depressed as stocks are, as a class, there are none so hazardous, and not any that pay so small a dividend as insurance stocks.

We know that managers of stock companies say, and not entirely without reason, that the Mutual insurance companies are chiefly responsible for the present demoralization of rates. That, in extending their business into cities, the Mutuals depart from the original idea of their promoters, and this being so—the result of which is best known to those interested—it was felt necessary for stock companies to assume the defensive. We are not now going to stop to discuss this matter. What is of most importance now is the question whether something cannot be done to bring about a healthier condition of business. With some of the Mutual insurance companies their existence is only a question of time, while the beggarly rates they seem satisfied with continue. Unless a reform is instituted, the time is certainly not far distant when some will be unable to re-insure their business if called upon to do so.

Would it not be well, and becoming, for these companies to take the initiatory step towards satisfactory rates? This would do much to remove the censure cast, justly or unjustly, upon them. Why not, during the next four weeks, make preparation for a meeting of the representatives of companies doing business, largely, in the isolated class of buildings, say in London, during the week of the Provincial Fair; and let each delegate be authorised and prepared to do something, either in improving a plan or in adopting the most feasible one suggested. There should be, for example, a harmonious determination to fix the rates on a three years' risk on isolated dwellings in Ontario, say at one per cent., instead of about an average of two-thirds this sum, which has been the prevalent rate for some time past. We know that to endeavoring to do this the fiercest opposition will come from a few week kneed agents. These will fear to lose their business. Better lose it than continue to ruin the company they are supposed to honestly represent. The experience of some of the largest companies, doing an isolated business, is that it costs seventy-five cents to carry a three years' risk. Yet they frequently insure that class of buildings for less money. It is time that this class of underwriting should cease. Our latest insurance failure, that of the Provincial, which continued to do business at less than cost, is not so remote that it need be forgotten. Let there be a determination to fix upon an adequate rate, and let it be honestly carried out. When insurers understand what is an equitable price, they will be quite willing to pay it.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 6, 1877.

Don't let your advertisement run to seed. Keep it changed.

All the Provinces are coming into line for November 22nd as Thanksgiving Day.

"Turn in the mild September," must have been intended for some southern clime.

Are you getting anything ready for the County show, or Central Exhibition at Lindsay.

"John A's Greatest Show on Earth" will hold an exhibition at Millbrook, on Friday 21st of September next, under the auspices of the Conservatives of Durham and Peterborough counties.

Printing for the Show.—Those who require anything in this line for agricultural shows should hand in their orders now to the EXAMINER office. Fine work and the lowest rates in town.

Successful.—The harvest home from Lakefield and surroundings on Friday last was a decided success. The weather was beautiful; the attendance was large and everything passed off splendidly.

Excursion.—The cheap excursion to Montreal on Tuesday of last week was a great success as far as numbers was concerned, but there was very little comfort, the three trains being greatly overcrowded.

Personal.—C. D. McDonald, Esq., our obliging and efficient town clerk, is at present on leave of absence for his summer holidays. We hope he will enjoy himself, and return home safely, pleased and prefited.

The third rate sheet of Peterborough attempts to criticise one or two of our locals. Oh, Pshaw! The days of Payne and Voltaire are long past. We would advise the editor to change his ways and not wait like the above men until it is too late.

The Members of No. 1 Company, 57th Battalion are requested to meet at their armory next Friday evening, at 7.30 p.m., for the purpose of receiving clothing and orders concerning their annual drill, which is to commence next Wednesday morning, 19th inst., at the hour of 9 o'clock. A few smart active recruits required.

Remember the Blue Ribbon Temperance Club will meet this evening in the Good Templars Hall, at 8 o'clock, when the propriety of Sunday afternoon temperance meetings will be discussed. Mr. Knowlton will be present to show those who require a badge and take orders from any who may require such. Those who have taken the "Ribbon" are requested to attend.

Foot Ball.—At a meeting of the Peterboro' Foot Ball Club, held in the Huffman House, on Monday evening, the following officers were elected: Mr. Lewis, President; Mr. Geo. Rogers, Captain; Mr. Braithwaite, Sec. and Treas.; Messrs. G. Dennistoun, W. Sherwood and W. A. Stratton, Committee. Regular practice days are held in the afternoons of Wednesday and Saturday.

Ventriloquism.—There was a company performed in the Opera House on Friday evening last, to a thin house. Their motto was: "Pre-eminent we stand alone." They had better look out or they will be left stand alone. We would advise them on their next appearance to ask the audience to render the piece that was played in the Royal Opera House, Toronto, on the same evening, entitled "Help." Enough said!

Church Opening.—On Sunday week the 23rd instant, the opening services will be held in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham. At 11 o'clock a.m., the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Arthur H. Baldwin, of All Saints Church, Toronto. At 3 o'clock p.m., there will be a confirmation held, at which the Bishop of Toronto will address the candidates, and at 7 in the evening the Rev Rural Dean Allen has kindly consented to be the preacher. At each of these services there will be a collection taken up on behalf of the building fund. Seats free. All are cordially invited.

Another Sudden Death.—Mr. John Clark, of Ashburnham, tanner, died on Tuesday morning about 8 o'clock, after an illness of very short duration. He had, we understand, complained of a pain in the region of the liver for a few days previously, but no fears were entertained of any serious consequences until Friday last, when Dr. O'Sullivan was called in and found him suffering from obstruction of the bowls. The Dr. applied all his skill to remove it, but in vain. On Monday Dr. Harvey was called in to advise, but both gentlemen held out no hopes of a successful removal of the disease, and he succumbed on Tuesday morning, after an illness of not longer than three days. Surely in the midst of life we are in death.

Removal.—By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that Long Bros., confectioners, have removed to the premises lately occupied by Haggart Bros., adjoining Mr. Kemp's drug store, and opposite Mr. Cluxton's dry good store. The shop has been nicely refitted up with every convenience for their trade, making it one of the most handsome shops in town. The lunch room, which will accommodate over sixty, will give those who patronize them plenty of room, and with the delicacies which the Messrs. Long have fresh every morning, will make these rooms very convenient for those requiring anything in this line. Messrs. Long invite the public to inspect their new shop and to favor them with a share of their patronage. Read their advertisement.

Peterborough Cavalry Troop.—This splendid troop of cavalry completed their annual drill on Tuesday and were reviewed yesterday. An exhibition of swordsmanship, both mounted and dismounted, took place in the Drill Shed on Tuesday evening, forming the attractive feature of a promenade concert under the patronage of the troop. The exercises were well performed, eliciting frequent bursts of applause from the audience. Prizes were awarded to 3 competitors; Sergents Sanderson and Stothard, and trooper Montcrief. The troop is under the command of Lieut. Colonel Rogers, whose abilities as a cavalry officer are too well known to need comment. He has doubtless received valuable assistance from Capt. Bridgewater, whose services were available during the drill. The Captain formerly belonged to that gallant corps of British Hussars known as the 8th Royal Irish. Colonel Rogers has good reason to be proud of his excellent troop We hear the conduct of the men has been most exemplary, not a single instance of insubordination occuring during the drill.

The Excursion to Sturgeon Point.—The Excursion of the Musical Society on Thursday last to Sturgeon Point was in every respect a decided success. A large and select number of music lovers left town at 8 a.m., per stage for Bridgenorth, while quite a number went by private conveyance. The trip to the Point was made per steamer "Ontario," Capt. Bottom. A stoppage of half an hour at Bobcaygeon enabled the excursionists to stroll through that noted village, after which, resuming the journey the point was reached in due time. There one of the pleasantest and enjoyable concerts of the society, assisted by our favorite lady vocalist, Miss Haultain, was given in the large dancing hall, adjoining the hotel. This was attended by a large number of excursionists from Lindsay and Fenelon, by the boarders at the hotel as well as by our party, and passed off most pleasantly. Miss Haultain deservedly received an encore, and throughout did the justice which we know she can do to the part assigned her upon the programme. The hall, however, being in an unfinished state greatly detracted from the effect. The society was somewhat weak, owing to the unavoidable absence of Messrs. F. Hall and J. Chambers, second violin and flute, but the pieces were nevertheless extremely well rendered. The steamers "Vanderbilt," for Lindsay, and "Ontario," for Bridgenorth, both left the Point for the return about 5 p.m. Dancing, which commenced shortly after words, on board the "Ontario," was kept up until Bridgenorth was sighted, with other amusements and pastimes of various descriptions, made the return trip most enjoyable and pleasant. Home was reached before the witching hour, and all unite in pronouncing this the excursion of the season for this society.

A Medical Squabble.—The doctors do not appear to be in full accord in all subjects as will be seen by reading the police report of to day. The cause belli is not fully known, but the opportunity arose out of a case of accouchement, to which Dr. O'Sullivan was lately called. A young woman from the neighborhood of South Monaghan stayed for a while at Mr. D. Wheeler's Hotel, Simcoe street, and, as we have learned, required medical advice or medicine. Dr. Kincaid was consulted by her and prescribed for her, for a cancer on the leg. Wednesday evening last she became more seriously ill, and sent for a doctor, when Dr. O'Sullivan was brought to her, and she was delivered of a premature birth. As is reported Dr. O'Sullivan immediately revealed his secret to Dr. Harvey, who as prosecutor under the Medical Act, who swore out a criminal information against Dr. Kincaid for procuring, or aiding in procuring, an abortion. The next day the girl packed up her traps and left, and is said to be in the land of Hearty. The case came up for hearing in the police court on Saturday, but was adjourned till Monday, as a constable had been sent to Hale's Bridge to find her. On Monday the case was dismissed without a hearing. Mr. Dumble, the council for the prosecution, stating that on the evidence he had, he could not hope for a conviction. Public opinion in this, as in other matters, will take opposite views, some will say there must be something in it, to induce the fraternity to take action. And others will be cruel enough to believe that it looks like personal animosity against Dr. Kincaid. We are ignorant of the real state of the case, and without the fullest evidence believe it our duty to consider the accused innocent until proved guilty. We are inclined to this side of the case, because we have heard rumors of similar cases, not against the same individual, and the Drs. must have heard of these cases before the press, and as no action was then taken, we are supposed to attribute this action as much to the will as any desire to purge the profession from malpractice.

The Blue Ribbon Movement.—During the week M. Knowlton, Esq., of London, has been addressing crowded houses here, on the Temperance question, and with very marked success. On Monday evening Bradburn's Hall was crowded to hear him, untill there was scarcely standing room. His address on this occasion was a masterly effort and expose of the evils of the rum traffic, and the direful consequences to the community, in degrading humanity, destroying home happiness, ruining the mental and physical constitution of all drinkers (moderate as well as confirmed) and families of homes, sustenance and clothing. He showed in the plainest and most pathetic terms, the terrible ravages of the traffic on homes of affluence and luxury, and he robbing widowed mothers of the darlings of their lives, and stay and supporter old age. He displayed vividly the effect of the traffic in making criminals, filling jails and penitentiaries, and in bringing men to the gallows, and in truthful, though strong language, denounced the Legislature for licensing a traffic that was fraught with so much evil to our race, that was the source of so much crime and that if persisted in must ruin men body and soul, by sending them to perdition. The audience listened with rapt attention to the address, which was of more than an hours duration, marked all through by clearness and terseness of language, and sound reasoning. Several clergymen were on the platform. He had also a noted drinker, well known here, whom he had induced to sign the pledge, and who is now in his right mind. After the address 266 persons came forward and signed the pledge, under the auspices of the Blue Ribbon Club. He will again deliver an address in the same hall on Friday (to-morrow) evening, when we trust a full house will again greet him. On Tuesday he addressed a full meeting in Bethel Church, Otonabee, when 37 signed the pledge, but very many of these were Good Templars. Last night he held a meeting in the Bible Christian Church, Ashburnham; but going to press before its conclusion, we cannot give particulars this week. Every one in town should hear Mr. Knowlton. He has few equals on the temperance platform.

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The special committee appointed to inquire into the application of Wm. Davidson for the purchase of a portion of McDonel Street, whereon he has partially erected a dwelling house, reported as follows:—

The committee appointed to consider the application of Mr. Wm. Davidson for leave to purchase that part of McDonel street east of the east side of Dickson street beg to report:—

That they have examined into the matter and find that by the Crow deed granting the Dickson mill reserve, McDonel street extends 229 feet, or the depth of two lots, east of Dickson street. The quantity of land is 66 x 228 feet, or 15,048 feet, a little more than one quarter of an acre.

Your Committee have valued the land at $900.

Your Committee ascertained that all parties owning land in the neighborhood are satisfied that that portion of the street may be disposed of, and as Mr. Davidson has the walls of a valuable brick dwelling already erected on the street, your Committee recommend that the Council do pass a By-law for closing the street and selling it to Mr. Davidson.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman

Attached to the report was a petition from a large number of the ratepayers in the locality interested, praying that the request of Mr. Davidson be complied with.

Councilor Dumble moved for the adoption of the report. He thought the town was disposing of the property—which was of no use—for a good price.

Councillor Smith favored the adoption of the report. The people he thought without exception in that locality were favorable to the selling of the street.

Councillor Rutherford objected to the adoption of the report; not as to the question whether we should sell the street but the price named, $900, the amount named in the report was not the amount taxed by your Committee, as at the last committee meeting your committee agreed that $1,000 was a fair price. He did not wish to throw any obstacles in Mr. Davidson's way, but he could not sit in the Council and see the people's interests sacrificed without protesting against it. This property if put up by auction would bring from $1,500 to $2,000, as it was one of the best sites in the town. Mr. Davidson was willing to pay $1,000 for it. He would therefore move in amendment that the report be amended by fixing the sum at $1,000.

Councillor Cahill thought that disposing of property like this for $4,000 as were was doing very well. The lot formerly purchased by Mr. Davidson from the Dickson Estate for $1,200 had a greater frontage than this lot. No doubt it was a fine site, but he thought $900 a big price for it. If Mr. Davidson was in an awkward position we should not take advantage of it.

Councillor Smith said the taxes we received on this street for the last ten years amounted to about $300, which added to $900 would give $1,200—a very high price he thought for the property.

Councillor Dumble thought it was a big price, and quoted other property which had lately been sold, in support of his statement. He denied that the report had been changed or altered.

Councillor Paterson said from what he had heard on the streets he thought the general opinion was that $1,200 was what was offered for the street: however that might be too high but he thought $1,000 little enough, and he would therefore second the amendment.

Councillor McBain would not go for selling streets unless petitioned by all the residents of the locality named.

Councillor Rutherford again charged Councillor Dumble with changing the figures in the report, and stated it was not the report of the Committee.

The Mayor thought that $1,000 was a good price for the property, and instanced the revenue which would be derived from the purchase money and the taxes on the house.

Councillor Cahill said he would hear Mr. Dumble out in the statement that the report was the real one of the committee. He was afraid Mr. Rutherford was fast falling into the belief as he had done last year, that he, Mr. Rutherford, constituted all committees of which he was a member.

The amendment was put and carried, and the original motion declared lost.

Moved by Councillor Dumble, seconded by Councillor Rutherford,—That the Clerk be instructed to give the necessary notice for the sale of the property.—Carried.

FINANCE REPORT.

Councillor Cahill, chairman of the Finance Committee, read the following report:—

The Finance Committee beg leave to recommend the payment of the following accounts, viz:—

R. Romaine	$39 25
Henry Best	18 60
T. Hay	8 00
H. Owens	11 00

Your committee recommend that the taxes returned against part of Lot No. 1 west of George street and north of Antrim street be struck off. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to pay the account of the Canada Rubber Company of Montreal provided they allow a discount of five per cent off. If not that he shall sign the note sent by them and pay the same when it becomes due.

Your committee also recommend that the Clerk be authorized to obtain such information from the Registry offices as may be required for assessment purposes, and also that the Treasurer be requested to assist the Collector in making out the tax bills.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Councillor Cahill moved the adoption of the report.

Councillor McBain wanted to know why it was that accounts were continually coming in from the Review Office when the EXAMINER Office had the contract for printing. He should like to know what this account was for, as well as Owen's account for a pump.

Councillor Rutherford would vote against the adoption of the report. He was a member of the Finance Committe. but he had not seen these accounts brought up for approval. He thought business was done in a loose manner.

The motion for the adoption of the report was then put and lost.

The Mayor thought it was a rather strange procedure on the part of the Council to vote down a report of the Finance Committee simply because one or two accounts were not known in detail. He thought it was putting very little confidence in the members of the Committee. If accounts had to be taken up item by item before the Council there was no use in having a Finance Committee. In regard to Owen's account he had ordered the pump, after several of the Councillors concurring in the suggestion.

Councillor Dumble suggested that Mr. Romaine's account be read over item by item. He himself had wondered how their printing costs so much, and in looking over this account it reminded him of a lawyer's bill, which soon runs up.

Councillor Smith—That is casting reflections. (Laughter.)

Councillor Dumble—The items were mostly for stationery and books for the Police Court records which we could not do without, and although the price seemed large, still the work was good. He had tried to reduce some of the items but could not.

The Clerk then read the items of the account, and certified to their correctness.

Councillor Rutherford said he noticed in hearing the account read that envelopes and other stationery had been purchased very frequently and in very small quantities, and thought the Clerk should use economy and buy in larger quantities, as he would be able to get them cheaper.

The Clerk explained that the items Mr. Rutherford referred to were the papers used in the voting which took place on the By-laws which were submitted. Very few of these were needed, and with due regard to economy he had purchased small quantities but still enough to last for several years. The book for the Police Court had been ordered by the Minister of Justice.

On motion the report was reconsidered, and after some further discussion it was moved by Councillor Baptie, seconded by Councillor Patterson, —That the report be adopted.

WATER STREET OPENING.

Councillor McBain wanted to know if any report was going to be handed in in reference to the Water Street opening.

Councillor Smith said the report would be presented next meeting. Mr. Haggart's absence caused the delay.

WATERING STREETS.

A By-law authorizing the levying of a rate to provide for the payment of watering the streets was read a first, second, and third time and passed.

SCHOOL BOARD VACANCY.

Moved by Councillor Patterson, seconded by Councillor Rutherford,—That a vacancy having occurred in the School Board caused by the death of Alexander Smith, Esq., Mr. George Edmison be appointed to fill the vacancy.

In amendment moved by Councillor Smith, seconded by Councillor Dumble.—That the vacancy be filled by Mr. S. W. Errett.

The amendment was put and declared lost, and the original motion carried.

STREET REPAIRS.

Moved by Councillor Baptie, seconded by Councillor Rutherford.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to continue the sidewalk on the west side of George Street as far north as the old Methodist Church, and also that the crossings be put down on the corner of George and Brock streets, and that the crossings be made of stone if such material can conveniently be got; if not, made of plank as heretofore.

Councillor Rountree raised a point of order as the resolution involved an expenditure of money, and should have to lay over as a notice of motion.

The Mayor sustained the objection.

The resolution was then given as a notice of motion.

PAYING AN ACCOUNT.

Moved by Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor Patterson,—That the account of J. R. Stratton be referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.—Carried.

THE STARRING CASE.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Patterson,—That the Mayor and Clerk be and are hereby instructed to sign the petition in favor of the reprieve of Mr. W. H. Walsh, and that the corporate seal be attached thereto.

Mr. Jas. L. Hughes addressed the Council on behalf of the petition.

After some discussion the resolution was withdrawn, the Council agreeing to sign individually but not as a body.

The Council then adjourned till Monday, 24th of September,—Review.

Schools in the Outlying Districts.

From the following circular, issued by Dr. Hodgins, Deputy Minister of Education, we learn that in it proposed to hold a conference of Public School Inspectors at Belleville on the 19th inst., to take into consideration the questions of schools in the outlying districts of the Province. A good deal already been done for these schools, but it is proposed still further to promote their extension and efficiency:—

"I have the honor to state that I have been authorised by the Honorable Mr. Hardy, pro-Minister of Education, to call a special meeting of the Inspectors concerned in the oversight of public schools in the new and remote townships of the Province. The object of the conference will be to make suggestions to the Minister of Education on the following subjects:—

"1. Division of territory lying between Georgian Bay and the Upper Ottawa river into new districts for inspection purposes, as authorized by law.

"2. The qualifications of Inspectors for these districts, and their special duties.

"3. Regulations for the formation of school sections, appeals, and special grants to schools.

"4. Examination of public school teachers in these new townships.

"5. Other matters relating to the welfare of schools in these outlying districts which may be suggested by the Inspectors, of the result of their experience.

"It is proposed that the conference be held at Belleville, to commence at 2 o'clock p.m., on Wednesday, the 16th of September. Friday will be devoted to a special School Institute meeting, and addresses, at the suggestion and under the direction of John Johnston, Esq., School Inspector of South Hastings. J. A. MacCabe, Esq., M. A., Principal of the Ottawa Normal School, will deliver an address and take part in the Institute.

"You are invited to be present and take part in the proceedings. Your expenses will be paid by the Department.

The following Inspectors have been invited to be present at the proposed Conference:

J. C. Morgan, M. A., School Inspector, North Simcoe; H. Reazin, School Inspector, West Victoria; J. H. Wright, School Inspector, Haliburton; J. C. Brown, School Inspector, Peterborough; John Agnew, M. D., School Inspector, Frontenac; Rev. E. A. Jenkins, M. A., School Inspector, Renfrew; R. Little, School Inspector, Algoma District; J. R. Miller, School Inspector, Perry Sound; W. Mackintosh School Inspector, North Hastings; Fred Burrors, School Inspector, Lennox, etc.

THE WAR.

The Fate of Plevna Still Uncertain.

Two Hundred Thousand Troops Engaged in the Battle.

Russians Confident of Victory.

Osman Pasha Said to be Retreating.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Turkish representative furnishes despatches from Suleiman Pasha showing further cruelties practised by Cossacks in different villages occupied by Russians and Bulgarians. At Ichehauls 120 villagers were massacred.

VIENNA, Sept. 10.—A dispatch from Cettinje asserts that Nicsics has capitulated.

VIENNA, Sept. 10—The Russians, who seem to have thought little of any danger which might threaten them from Rustchuk and Rasgard, are, it appears, beginning to take a different view. We hear from Bucharest that all reinforcements passing through there are directed in great haste towards Gurigevo to cross over the bridges at Cyrzos. The first detachment of the guards' corps and a division of the Wilna army corps have taken that direction.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Times Ostrog special says the future movements of the Montenegrin army are uncertian. No definite plan has been decided on. According to the last news the Albanian tribes waited for the capture of Nicsics to rise. It is probable the movements in that direction may influence the plan of the campaign.

The reports that Germany is urging Servia to participate in the war are discredited here.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 10.—A special to the Guardian from Shumla on the 8th, states there was serious fighting on Thursday. The right of the Rasgrad army was engaged all day. The losses were many on both sides. The Russians retreated beyond the upper Lom. The Rasgrad army now occupies Ablava. In consequence Popkoi and the whole region between Karasan and Osman Bazar was hurriedly evacuated by the Russians on Friday. The field of battle now lies between Biela and Ablava. There have been heavy rains.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A despatch from Poredin says that the fighting at Plevna continues. Two hundred thousand troops are engaged on both sides. The Russians are confident of victory. The Czarewitch has expressed his determination to hold the line on the Jantra river, near Billa at all hazards.

LONDON, Sept 10.—A despatch from Constantinople denies the reported capture of Plevna by the Russians. The battle is still going on.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 19.—The whole of Suleiman Pasha's army has passed north of the Balkans.

ADRIANOPLE, Sept. 10.—Large forces are passing through here to take a position between Sofia and the Servian frontier.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A correspondent with the army of the Czarewitch at Banitza, a few miles east of Biela, on Friday evening describes the Turkish occupation of Ablava on Wednesday, the gallant attack of the Russians, retreat of the Turks across the Lom, and the re-occupation of Ablava by the Russians with this loss of 1,000. There was an armistice on Thursday for burial of the dead. The Russians and Turks fraternised when they met during the armistice. In the evening the Russians evacuated Ablava, finding it untenable, reaching Banitza, where they bivouacked on Saturday. The Russians marched to Biela, where the Czarewith was expected that afternoon. Biela is full of troops.

ATHENS, Sept. 10.—A council of Ministers during the last few days has been discussing the Russian cabinet's proposals for common action for the protection of the Christians in Turkey. It may now be considered certain that a definite agreement has been reached between Greece and Russia.

VIENNA, Sept. 10.—A Varna letter accuses the Circassians of atrocities in eleven villages of Eastern Bulgaria. In one village inhabited by Greeks 150 houses were burnt and three hundred people massacred. One hundred corpses of women were found at Sequala.

The movements of the Roumanians from the north and of the Lovats column from the south leave no doubt the Russians are preparing a Sedan for Osman Pasha, and he will probably have to extricate himself. Meanwhile Ali and Shakmun Pashs are probably too far off to spoil him.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—[illegible] keep watch [illegible] Turkish forces on the frontier have been ordered to entrench immediately, if she takes part in the war.

VIENNA, Sept. 10.—It is rumoured Osman Pasha is retreating from Plevna. No trustworthy information on this point.

TURKEY.

The Murdered Consuls—Remonstrances from Germany and France—The Egyptian Slave Convention—Excavations at Nineveh.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10.—The German and French ambassadors have presented remonstrances to the Porte against the release of the persons condemned to five years penal servitude for the murder of German and French consulsat Salonica in May last year. The French note demands that the sentences be carried out. The German note declares the continuance of the present aspect of this affair might force Germany to other measures.

The Porte contests the Khedive's authority to grant the article of the slave trade convention with England giving the latter the right of Search in Ottoman waters.

Mr. Layard, British representative, has received a firman from the Sultan authorizing excavations at Nineveh.

The Old and New Style.

The present Government are very careful in making important appointments to select the ablest and best qualified men that can be made available. The death of the late Hon. Judge Sanborn left a vacancy in the Court of Queen's Bench, which more than one legal luminary had his eye on as a rich prize. It often happens that political hacks have such a hold on their party, that it is impossible to refuse them the first position in their gift, however deficient they may be in the necessary qualifications. In Sir John's day, it was not an uncommon thing to see these worn ont politicians put upon the Bench to get rid of them and their importunities. It is easy to understand how appointments of that kind would detract from, instead of add to, the dignity of the Bench, and seriously interfere with the correct administration of justice. Now, with Mr. Mackenzie, a very different course is pursued. He selects the men best qualified, without regard to their claims on the party as having been influential politicians and supporters. The appointment of Mr. Cross, Q. C., as successor to the late Judge Sanborn, is an instance. Mr. Cross has devoted his life to his profession, and for years been one of the first juris-consults in Canada. He was no politician, and his appointment is admitted to be a good one by such strong party organs as the Montreal Gazette, that seldom admit anything that may reflect credit on their opponents. In matters of this kind it is not hard to see the advantage of having an honest and fearless Government at the head of affairs.

From T. H. Kendall, M. D., of Boston.

Dear Sirs:—I have been afflicted for many years with a chronic inflammation, or morbid state of the liver, together with the long train of complaints which are well known to attend such cases, viz., constipation of the bowels, impaired digestion, cold extremities, shooting pains in the side, extending toward the sternum, &c., so that for many months I have not been able to lie upon one side, nor upon either side without pain. I was about submitting myself to the usual mercurial course of treatment (whereby I hoped to obtain relief, but did not expect to be cured), when you happened to communicate to me some of the remarkable cures effected by the PERUVIAN SYRUP; and (although I am slow to believe in the efficacy of new remedies) having had the pleasure of your acquaintance for a long time, and of course perfect confidence in the correctness of your statements, I was induced to give it a trial. I commenced taking it on Monday, the 6th of March. The following Wednesday night I found, to my surprise, that I could rest comfortably lying upon either side. Friday, March 10, not the slightest pain; rested as comfortably as I ever did; and now, in one week, after having taken one bottle of the Syrup, I consider myself cured. But as I find the medicine so pleasant, I shall continue to take it without any interruption to business, I shall continue it a few days longer. Sold by all druggists.

Farmers, Merchants, and all people who appreciate the value of keeping a memorandum of business transactions, daily events, and items of interest or importance, for future reference, should call on their druggists and get Dr. Pierce's Memorandum book free. The Doctor's Grand invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, which costs, when finished, two hundred thousand dollars, will be opened early in June next, for the reception of patients afflicted with chronic diseases and deformities. It will afford the most perfect facilities for the cure of such affections, and its Faculty of physicians and surgeons will embrace graduates from both American and European Medical Schools who have become distinguished for their skill. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, a work of over nine hundred large pages, illustrated hundred and eighty-two engravings, and elegantly bound in cloth and gilt, is sent to any address by the Author on receipt of one dollar and fifty cents. Almost one hundred thousand copies have already been sold.

S. A. CRAIG, Esq., druggist, of West Alexander, Pa., says: "I sell more of Dr. Pierce's preparations than all others combined. They give satisfaction in every case and I can cheerfully recommend them to the public." 37-2ins.

HER MAJESTY the Queen has been pleased to confer the order of Knighthood on Hon. W. B. Richards, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Hon. A. A. Dorion, Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, to the Province of Quebec and Hon. Chief Justice Robinson.

SENSIBLE ADVICE.—You are asked every day through the columns of newspapers and by your Druggist to use something for your Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint that you know nothing about you get discouraged spending money with but little success. D. Tully, Druggist and get a Sample Bottle of GRIMM'S AUGUST FLOWER for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.

A GOOD USE OF P's.—One of our exchanges indulges in the use of P's to express what it may be healthful to all subscribers to newspapers to read, meditate and inwardly digest. It says: "Persons who patronize papers should pay promptly, for the pecuniary prospects of the press have peculiar power in pushing forward public prosperity. If the printer is paid promptly and his pocket-book kept plethoric by prompt-paying patrons, he puts his pen to paper in peace; he paints his pictures of passing events in more pleasing colors, and the perusal of his paper is of more pleasure to his people. Paste this piece of proverbial philosophy in some place where all persons can perceive it. Be pleased also to ponder it thyself, patiently and perseveringly and profitably, and persistently practice its precepts perpetually. Readers of the EXAMINER in arrears are respectfully requested to "ponder," and put the above suggestions into practice as soon as possible.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and misery which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. Ergowora and Old Chronic Sores, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PETTIT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery Salve, have changed the trade marke Eye-cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS!"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, G. W. Gregroy, Fred Pagel and L. D. F. Poore, Centennia Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best Sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W. the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Hutson R. Tarsan, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "it is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person, interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly; I can also willing, to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from 1 of an inch thick down to gauze and lawns on variety work free. All parties interested in the W & W, will be honored by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and perfectly understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings, at a very low rate, and I am working for first class Companies.

A NOBLE LIFE.

What is a noble life? Lo, some men scheme
To gather wealth till life is but a dream
Of riches. Estes-like their touch behold,
Transmitting every greener thing to gold!
Their clutch grows closer as their hoards increase.

And only with their breath their labors cease.
They die! Their fellow men some splendid gain
From these vast treasures hope, but hope in vain!
Their memories shall be consigned to this line,
They lived, waxed rich, but died, and made no sign!

What is a noble life? Some men toil
To conquer fame, in many a battle broil;
Shed blood, waste treasures, deal in wounds and death.

Build sudden empires, scattered with a breath;
Or fix a despot firmer on his throne;
Or hurl one thence and mount it as their own;
Or fire man's hearts with cries of specious sound;
Till with their brother's blood they stain the ground;
And these, too, die; and after many days
The senseless marble speaks their only praise!

What is a noble life? Some men grow pale
In learning's quest. Till their strained senses fail,
They struggle with strange lore, and heap annals,
Marvels of wisdom in their wearied brain;
Astonishing aye, vast treasures in the mind,
The hidden meaning of all things they find.
Or seek to find as they deeper go,
Keep still a jealous guard on all they know,
Till, fallen with the weight of knowledge in the race,
They wither like the leaf and leave no trace.

Wisdom and Wealth and Fame are glorious things,
And each may grace a life to which it brings
Its treasures to be shared—not garnered pelf—
No life is noble, with a god of self!
Whose on earth a noble life would live
Must toil to aid, and gather still to give,
Succour the weakening, soothe the rugged ways
And with wise bounty sweeten all the days
He hath with man; so, laying down his staff,
A noble life, shall be his epitaph.

STRENGTH FOR TO-DAY.

Strength for to-day is all that we need,
As their never will be a to-morrow;
For to-morrow will prove but another to-day,
With its measures of joy and sorrow.

Then why forecast the trials of life
With such sad and grave persistance,
And watch and wait for a crowd of ills
That as yet have no existence!

Strength to-day, what a precious boon
For the earnest soul who labor,
For the willing hands that minister
To the needy friend or neighbour.

Strength for to-day—that the weary hearts
In the battle for right may quail not,
And the eyes bedimmed with bitter tears
In their search for light may fail not.

Strength for to-day, on the downhill track,
For the travellers near the valley,
That up, far up, the other side
Ere long they may safely rally.

Strength for to-day—in house and home,
To practice forbearance sweetly;
To scatter kind words and loving deeds,
St'll trusting in God completely.

PERTINENT QUERIES.

The Cobourg World says the following questions were actually put in the hands of Sir John Macdonald at the late demonstration there:

1. Why he swore by his oath of office, to Lord Dufferin, that the charges against him of selling or giving the charter for building the Pacific Railway to Sir Hugh Allan for money to carry the elections were entirely false and untrue.

2. Why, when the same charges were made in the House of Commons by the Hon. L. S. Huntington, the Chieftain called upon his Maker to witness that the charges were entirely false and untrue, "and that there was not one word of truth in them."

3. If the Chieftain is not still bound to "recoup" Sir Hugh Allan out of the public moneys of the Dominion, $360,000, which Sir Hugh advanced to him and his colleagues to carry the elections in 1872, and whether he would not do so if he could again get his hands (clean hands) into the public chest.

4. How much of that money was paid to defray the expenses of the Tory candidates in East Northumberland, East Durham, and South and North Ontario, and whether he will give a detailed account of the distribution of Sir Hugh Allan's money.

5. The Chieftain will also explain when he intends to pay back the balance of the Secret Service money.

6. Why he in Parliament refused a confidential audit of the Secret Service money.

7. How much of the money he actually spent in watching the Fenians, and how much of it he divided among his poor and needy followers, for party purposes.

8. Whether he still holds to the doctrine that he propounded at St. Thomas that when a Government were defeated and went out of office they had a right to take all the Secret Service money at their credit and spend it for party and political purposes."

9. The Chieftain will also explain why he has not paid back to the Government the $2,500 which Senator McPherson procured from the Northern Railway Company and gave him.

10. When he intends to pay it back.

11. When the Chieftain intends to pay back the $1,000 which he took from the Northern Railway funds, and gave Sir Francis Hincks, to buy up the electors of Renfrew.

12. Why the Chieftain under false pretenses, took upwards of $500 from the poor settlers on ordinance lands, and why he refuses to pay it back

13. Why he violated the Independence of Parliament Act by his contract as Attorney and Solicitor with his own Government, and why he does not resign his seat for that cause.

14. Why he instructed the Mail newspaper to oppose the Dunkin Act in Toronto, and why he left Murray Bay and returned to Toronto to assist in opposing the Act throughout the whole of the voting.

15. Why he does not present himself to be sworn as a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council.

16. Why the Chieftain at Peterborough called upon God to witness his anxiety to catch Riel, when only a few days before he had with his own clean hands sent $4,000 of Government money to be given Riel to leave the country.

17. Why the Chieftain, calling himself a Protectionist, reduced the tariff from 20 to 15 per cent. when in office.

We clip the following from the Irish Canadian of last week in reference to the Irish Catholic Benevolent Associations in Peterborough:—

No. 3. PETERBOROUGH.

Branch No. 3 was organized September, 1871. To Mr. M. Donovan, its first President, Mr. Jos. Griffin, 1st Vice President; Mr. John Corkery, Secretary; Mr. Edw. Williams, Financial Secretary; Mr. J. O'Brien, Treasurer, is due chiefly the credit of its establishment It was affiliated with the Union in 1873. The President now is Mr. John Corkery, who is also Secretary of the Union. He is assisted in the business of this Branch by Mr. Joseph Gallin as 1st Vice President, and Mr. John O'Brien as Secretary. The condition of No. 3 is indicated in these facts:—

Number of members.....90
Average annual receipts....$480
Balance in bank.....103
Value of property.....470

A Literary and Debating Society is connected with this Branch, and assists very effectually in giving a higher direction to the excellent service of No. 3 as a training school for our young men in Peterborough. This Society is represented in the present Grand Council by Mr. Thomas Dolan and Mr. John Corkery.

No. 6, PETERBOROUGH.

Branch No. 6 was formed in October 1873. To Mr. T. Sullivan, its first President; Mr. W. Ball, 1st Vice President; Mr. J. Theobald, Secretary; Mr. John Duigvan, Fin-Secretary, and Mr. R. H. Carew, Treasurer, belongs the honor of its establishment. It was affiliated with the Union in December, 1873. The present presiding officer is Mr. R. Carew, who is assisted in the administration of its affairs by Mr. Wm. Ball as Vice-President, Mr. John Barner as Secretary, Mr. F. Larren as Financial Secretary, and Mr. T. Dorace as Treasurer. The following shews its strength and finances:—

Number of members.....79
Average annual receipts.....$340
Balance in bank.....75
Value of property.....300

A younger Society than No. 3, this is not so full in membership nor so ample in resources. Its President and officers are however made of the stuff to keep in on the move onwards, and have a fine field for their work of usefulness in generous rivalry with its competor amongst the bright Irish Canadian Catholic youth of Peterborough. It is an ambitious body. It has leased a fine suite of apartments over the (Peterborough) Bank of Commerce.

THE FUTURE OF CANADA.

Canada has a longer memory for things that immediately concern her welfare, and her public men are continually talking of the future of the Dominion. Some of them are firm in their belief that the welfare of Canada will only be maintained by remaining an integral portion of the British Empire; but the shrewdest and most thoughtful of colonists see their country's reward in perfect freedom, or annexation to the United States. Still at the bottom of all thought and speculation as to the future there is a strong layer of old English sentiment. Outside the Province of Quebec the great pioneers of Canada, the English and Scotch, look across the broad waters of the Atlantic and think of home. They feel proud of the flag which is not only to them a national cymbol, but a link between the far off settlement and the churchyard where their forefathers sleep beyond the sea. Year by year, however, this impulse of patriotism is being transferred to the adopted land; and unless the natural association and influence of her great neighbour sucks her up like a sponge, absorbs her as the larger flood absorbs the smaller, Canada must ere long govern herself entirely under her own flag, stimulated by the music of her own hymn, and made strong by those dangers and sacrifices which belong to the common growth of great and independent nations. There is something almost pathetic in Toronto's recent offer to England of a battery of artillery for service in the East, should we unfortunately find it necessary to engage in the war which is now exciting the ambition of certain European nations and agitating the whole world. If Europe were true to the faith that is in her, she would put down the barbarism of Russia and Turkey with a high hand. But each power has its own game to play, and it is convenient for the chief agressor to operate under the sacred name of Christianity, the first principles of which it outrages and blasphemes. Canada thinks she sees much trouble ahead for England, and she offers to the mother country her money and her blood. America has sufficient on her hands just now in the management of her already vast and growing population. Her ambition finds its outlook in the West. She never coveted Canada; and she would care less than ever at this moment to have such an additional responsibility thrust upon her as the great British colony would be. It is sufficient for the Government of Washington to consolidate the union; to weld together the factions of North and South; to work out the great problem of races which she has undertaken to solve on the field and in the Senate; and to bring into social, political, and commercial harmony the varied and contrary forces of that grand Republic which is a glory and an honor to an English speaking people of the world. Now is the time for Canada to emulate the example of America, warned by her mistakes, encouraged by her wisdom; or to lay in the foundations of her new life on the model of our English constitution, which combines republican freedom with monarchial strength and dignity. Let the Dominion take a king from the English princes and join the great family of nations.—Joseph Hatton in Tinsley's Magazine.

TO MAKE A FASHIONABLE WOMAN.

Take ninety-nine pounds of flesh and bone—but chiefly bones—wash clean, bore holes in the ears, and cut off the toes; bend the back to conform to the Grecian Bend, the Boston Dip, the Kangaroo Droop, the Saratoga Slope, or the Bullfrog Break, as the taste in clines; then add three yards of ruffles and seventy five yards of edging, eighteen yards of dimity, one pair of silk or cotton hose with patent hip attachments, one pair of false calves, six yards of flannel (embroided), one pair balmoral boots with heels three inches high, four pounds whalebone in strips, seventeen hundred and sixty yards of steel wire, three-quarters of a mile of tape, ten pounds of raw cotton or two wire hemispheres,) one wire basket to hold a bustel, four copies of the New York Herald (triple sheet), one hundred and fifty yards of silk or other drum goods, five hundred yards point lace, fourteen hundred yards fringe and other trimmings, twelve gross buttons, one box pearl powder, one ounce carmine and an old hoop skirt, one bushel of false hair fetzzled and frotted a la stravagus, one bundle Japanese tornadoes, with such odds and ends of other varnishes; one pail of hair pins, one less handkerchief than twelve square, with patent holder. Perfume with ottar of roses, or sprinkle with nine drops of the "Blessed Baby" or "West End." Stuff the head with fashionable novels, ball tickets, play bills and wedding cards, some scandal, a great deal of lost time, and a very little sage; add half a grain of commodicum of modesty. Season with vanity affectation and folly. Garnish with ear-rings, breastpins, chains, bracelets, feathers and flowers to suit the taste. Pearls and diamonds may be thrown in if you have them. If not paste and pinchbacks from the dollar store will do.

Whirl all around in a fashionable circle, and stew by gaslight for six hours.

Great care should be taken that the thing is not overdone.

If it does not rise sufficiently, add more copies of the Herald.

This dish is highly ornamental, and will do to put at the head of your table on grand occasions, but is not suitable for every-day use at home, being very expensive and indigestible. It sometimes gives men the heart-burn and causes them to break, and is certain death to children.

If you have not the ingredients at hand, you can buy the article ready-made in any of our large cities—if you have money enough.

POLITICAL DRY NURSES.

The Tory papers don't like to hear reciprocity discussed, lest it should be an offsett to their protectionist pother. If that were all the object of the talk on reciprocity in the United States and Canada, it were indeed a useless expenditure of force in a something that effects itself. It would be like firing an Armstrong gun to kill a fly. So solicitous are the Tory prints for their poor weakling they call protection, and which they are trying to nurse into favourable notice, that they fear the slightest wind that may blow upon their delicate baby, lest it should be puffed out of existence. The poor political nurses are simply killing the brat by their own treatment; and some of the shrewdest of them are now looking about for a plausible excuse for its death. It would never do to acknowledge that they had worried what little life it had. They have all along been blaming others for the sickly condition of their poor patient; and now they cast about for some way in which they can also lay on others "the deep damnation of its taking off." They see approaching reciprocity, a comely youth, and one whose presence they must acknowledge would be beneficial. But in any favor that to the lad may be shown these old dames that sit like ravens over the dying baby, body of protection see a withdrawl of pity and patronage from their shadowy charge; hence they croak out against even a courteous word being given the lusty boy the country fain would have. The protest against his reception in the interest of the little rickety wretch they try to make believe a healty, vigorous infant; and if the lad is looked to by the spectators the old crones with them avoid themselves of the chance to say that such attention to the robust bow reciprocity, was the neglect which kille d the puny babe protection. They are arrant deceivers, those old females; and wise withal in selfish expedients whereby their ignorance may be excused.

In proof of the correctness of the picture we have painted, and of its faithfulness to the original, we have not far to look. One Tory journal not a thousand miles from home declares the unlikelihood of the present movement towards reciprocity between the United States and Canada amounting to anything; and yet the same sheet is bound to acknowledge before these sentences are written that "there is pretty good ground for belief that there is a strong feeling among the leading commercial men of both countries for a return to the old order of things when a reciprocity treaty was in force." If the feeling be as strong as thus represented surely it will make itself felt; yet the fearful old woman to which we have alluded—one of the nurses of protection—would have the subject, popular as it is, tabooed as one it is useless to discuss. The real object, however, of such discouragement to the consideration of a question that has created a strong feeling among the leading commercial men is seen cropping up in the fear expressed, that "it would make a very good election cry for the Grits." No matter then how strong the feeling may be in the leading commercial minds, that feeling must be subordinated to political considerations of a party nature, and buried out of sight as inopportune and inconvenient. Strange that this should be the position of those who pretended to have such a lively interest in the commercial depression, so long as they could blame the Grits for it! Nevertheless it is true that these same papers that evinced such a lively politico-commercial feeling now depricate discussion of a matter on which "there is a strong feeling among the leading commercial minds." We had and have an idea that it was the province of the press to notice just such questions, and to elicit the maximum of truth respecting them, but it would seem that all our journalists are not of such an unsophisticated opinion. Some of them it is plain would exclude even the most important topics in order that favorite hobbies and pet political doctrines might be paraded. We live to learn.

At Napanee Sir John very candidly remarked that "he would not have blamed Mr. Cartwright for deserting him if he had waited until the Pacific Scandal had come up." It is a point gained to have the chief culprit's admission, that his supporters were justified in abandoning him on the charges preferred by Mr. Huntington. In other words, Sir John admits the justice of his sentence and the truth of the accusation.

MR. SCOTT'S SPEECH AT LINDSAY.

One of the speakers at the Conservative gathering at Lindsay last week was the member for West Peterborough in the Ontario House. Mr. Scott is not among the worst speakers in the Tory ranks, and to him does the Opposition in the Legislative Assembly look for a great part of that respectability in which its older members lack. Perhaps it is Mr. Scott's maiden freshness, as far as the crowd with which he is there connected goes, that ensures him this badge of respectability, the more noticeable in comparison with such men as William Macdougall, Alfred Boultbee and others of that ilk. There is a fear therefore that evil communications will corrupt the good manners of Mr. Scott, and that he may become spoiled by the contact with which he is subjected. However this may be, he is as yet to be preferred to the best of them; and hence they seem to fear him. During the late session of the Ontario House we had occasion to notice the way in which Mr. Scott was put forward to introduce a buncome resolution, some of the ridicule attachable to which must fall on its mover. We then expressed the suspicion that he was thus thrust forward with a view to lessening the certain personal influence he must inspire in comparison with his companions of the Opposition who stand above him in their party, and who feared in him a probable supplanter. We have since then seen no reason to change our suspicion on this point; and they are by no means weakened when we find Mr. Scott at Lindsay sandwiched between Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin and Mr. Plumb. Here was an unmistakable classifying of the member for West Peterborough with the lesser lights. Why, if not for the reason spoken of, is Mr Scott systematically and persistently put down? He does not belong to the place assigned him; for we can safely say of West Peterborough if it did not send a Reform representative to Toronto it did the next best thing in sending one of whom the Conservative party has no reason to feel ashamed, which is more than can be said of the great majority of the Opposition members.

With his usual candour—which, by the by, is a quality foreign to the trained Tory politician—Mr. Scott acknowledged that he went to Parliament prejudiced against the Mowat Administration; and considering the political company he keeps, it is hardly to be wondered at that this prejudice has not been weakened. We hardly think Mr. Scott gives his mind a fair chance for a perfectly judical decision on the merits of the two parties in the House, of which he is a member, or of the fitness for office of the present ministers as compared with the leaders he is supposed to follow. It would be very hard, we fancy, for Mr. Scott himself to name members from his own party whom he would see in the various ministerial positions in preference to the men now there. Mr. Cameron and Mr. Scott are by no means such gentlemen as would be pointed out as models for ministerial responsibilities; and after them we cannot turn to one member of the Opposition deserving of consideration as probable members of a Cabinet.

Neither was Mr. Scott fair in his comparison of the Provincial expenditure of 1871 and 1876. It can be very easily understood by even the unobservant in politics, that it costs more to keep the public institutions of the country in good running order than it did five years ago, to say nothing of the well-known penuriousness of the late John Sandfield Macdonald, whereby savings were effected at the expense of thorough administration of affairs. So far from the Government apologyzing for its expenditures as individually small, as Mr. Scott inferred, it justifies them on the ground of their necessity for the public welfare. Probably the most questionable increase within the time mentioned by Mr. Scott was that whereby the addition was made to the sessional allowance of members; but Mr. Scott could hardly have desired to make reference to that increase, as he was himself a consenting party to it. If Mr. Scott or any of his colleagues desires to fairly criticize the expenditure of the last five years, they must name the items to which they object, and show wherein they might have been saved with advantage. Let the critic show his sincerity by going over the list of items against which the Opposition raised their voices at the time they came up in Committee of Supply, and try and sustain their objections, if they can, in the light of subsequent facts. This Mr. Scott would have undoubtedly done had he been able; for thereby he would have had a basis for a good speech, which he is capable of making with the necessary material at command. That he was unable to pursue this, the natural course, and be forced to satisfy himself with ignoring the different circumstances of the country at times five years apart, is pretty conclusive proof that his course was a decidedly weak one, and that he knew it to be so. For this reason he was reduced to the poor alternation of loose special pleading, and the raising the old and worn out bug-bear of "direct taxation," that has so often done duty for the hard-pressed demagogue when all other cries failed him.

Mr. Scott's objections to the Farmers' Sons' Franchise we leave to the consideration of those whom it directly affects, merely remarking that the Bill simply gives with legal directness that which was very frequently obtained before by fradulent leases; and that the Measure places farmers' sons on an equality as regards the franchise with other young men on whom it is conferred by the statutory enactment in respect to the taxation of incomes, and the extension of the sufferage thereto pertaining.

Toronto Telegram: Mr. Blake will have no difficulty in finding subjects to speak upon when he takes the stump. Some of the Tory organs pretend to be very anxious to hear him, and are chaffing at the delay. But this is a mild way of whistling to keep their courage up. Mr. Blake's health has very much improved of late, and when he takes the platform he will go armed with an indictment long enough and strong enough to make every Tory in the land feel miserable.

"Says the Toronto Telegram: We are beginning to get to the bottom of the vexing question of protection at last. Sir John Macdonald, who has taken the suffering industries of the country under his wing, in the hope of being helped back to power, says he would be content with a reciprocal tariff, an increase of the customs duties to 20 per cent., being a raise of 2½ per cent., will satisfy. It would be a terrible affliction to Sir John and knock his rosy expectations higher than a kite, if the present Government should anticipate the general election by raising the tariff just that much.

THE WAR.

The news from the seat of war remains contradictory, but if anything favourable to the Turks. Fighting in the neighborhood of the Shipka Pass, the Russians have repulsed them, but with great loss to themselves. In other places along the frontier and toward the Balkans the Turks have been successful in inflicting severe defeats on their opponents, but nothing to such an extent as to warrant a cessation of the contest. In Asia the Turks have been able to repel the attacks of the invaders and to threaten an invasion of Russian Armenia. Peace rumors are declared without foundation. A plot to assassinate the Czar has been detected at St. Petersburg, and the conspirators will receive their reward in due time no doubt.

Newspapers are careful at present not to give too much publicity to the latest telegrams, as too often the next news contradicts that of the previous day, and the source of information is not reliable, favoring Turkey or Russia, as it may come through the respective channels. There is all likelihood that the Russians will go into winter quarters before they reach Constantinople.

DEVLISH DOCTRINES.

We publish in another column an article from the Bobcaygeon Independent on the late medical squabble and abortive prosecution in this town. With the first [illegible] paragraphs of the Independent's article we quite agree; but we must enter our strong protest against any sympathy whatever with the Malthusianism manifested in the remaining portion of our usually level-headed contemporary's remarks on this occasion. Indeed the Independents common comprehensiveness of view, as shown in the pithy paragraphs published by him from week to week, make more painful the feeling with which we observe the endorsation of the horribly barbarous thoughts suggested in the minds of some of those who theorize on a higher civilization, and which show how very near the savage are the most cultivated of the race. We were aware that what are generally known as the doctrines of Malthus had obtained some adherents in the more thickly populated countries of Europe; but had not supposed that any persons would presume to propound such views in so roomy a region as that in which the Bobcaygeon Independent is published, whatever theoretic basis there may be for them can never be seen in the wide expanse of territory, where place could be found for the present generation were it many times multiplied. The common sense the Independent professes to invoke would have taught the entire uselessness and positive evil of raising such questions amid so incongruous surroundings; and would also have forbidden the confession of the writer to the possession of such knowledge as he claims for himself as regards the crime of abortion. We hope for his sake and the sake of humanity that he lies; and we believe he must and does when he professes to know that abortion is universally practiced, and that very few doctors exclude it from their practice. We hold too that it cannot save sorrow and disgrace; for as sure as it is murder, the sin will find out the perpetrators, and pay him or her the orthodox wages. Sorrow can never be saved by the doing of a diabolical wrong; degradation of mind is the natural off-shoot; and what is that but disgrace! and disgrace within the conscience soon leads to disgrace of the natural man among his fellows. These being our views, we find no difficulty in answering the Independent's questions with a decided 'yes.' We will merely add that if there be any excuse for the murder of an unborn child through fear that it may be an evil to society, there is certainly the same excuse for the prompt strangulation of the person who wrote the last two paragraphs of the Bobcaygeon Independent's article on "procuring abortion."

A NOBLE SACRIFICE.

Our readers must have learned with pleasure of the great temperance movement in Peterboro' during the past two weeks, and of the remarkable success attending the labours of M. Knowlton Esq., who [illegible] here on this mission of aiding in ridding the Town and County of the terrible curse of strong drink. Already about 1400 to 1500 persons have signed the pledge, and enrolled themselves on the side of right, and sobriety, with a view to aid in removing the temptation out of the way of those who cannot abstain. The labours of Mr. Knowlton have been very successful, a spirit that never pervaded the people before has manifested itself in a remarkable degree. But in no case has that success been so noted as in inducing Mr. John Moloney of the Caisse House to sign the pledge. And to Mr. Moloney's credit, be it said, no sooner did he sign the pledge, than he locked up the "Bar" and turned his hotel into a Temperance House. This is nobleness triumphing over selfishness and pecuniary gain to any extent that has seldom been witnessed. Mr. Moloney is well known in this town and county, as he has been engaged in the grocery and liquor trade for nearly 25 years, about a year ago he rented the Caisse House and refitted it in a state of magnificence. His patronage was becoming large and his business remunerative. But notwithstadding this he sacrificed it all on Saturday, through a sense of duty, and of the evil of the traffic in which he was engaged. This was a noble sacrifice; one that will redound to his honor for ever, and we trust to his happiness and pleasure through life.

THE DUTY OF TEMPERANCE MEN.

If ever there were times when the duty of temperance was doubtful this is not one of them, Mr. Moloney has made a financial sacrifice that few men can calculate, and has had to pass through a crisis in his own history that none but himself could delineate, and is it not the duty of all men who love true manliness to come forward and encourage it in this case. To the temperance men in this county he can appeal in this matter, and they should not be slow to show their sympathy with him in this effort to aid in their work.

His house is fitted up in the very best style, second to none in the Dominion. His yard and stabling commodious and well attended to, he can therefore appeal to them to remember that they have a duty to perform to him, and they should not fail to perform it when it cannot but be of mutual advantage to all. Mr. Moloney is well known to all, many of whom have been dealing with him for years. He is courteous and obliging. In his house they will find all the accommodation and comfort to be found at any hotel To temperance men he appeals and we trust that the appeal will not be in vain.

THE CONFLICT OF RIGHT AGAINST WRONG.

To the People of the Town and County of Peterborough.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—

Feeling confident that almost all of you are long aware of the position I have taken during 14 or 15 years in this county in reference to the Liquor Traffic, I make bold to address you at this particular juncture in the discussion of this question.

All admit that drunkenness is a crime, condemned by God, and deplored by man.

It is held to be injurious to man's temporal and spiritual well being. It is admitted that it destroys the intellect and defaces the impress of divinity in the creature created after the image of God. It is well known that it robs the home it enters of happiness, the community where practiced of prosperity and peace, and the heart of sympathy and affection.

It is not denied that it has filled our penitentiaries and jails with criminals, and that it is filling many graves with those of whom it is said, none can enter Heaven.

No one can tell or would attempt to enumerate the woes, sighes, cries, tears sadness, and anguish it is now causing in every town, village and hamlet in this our young Dominion.

With its terrible evils before us and staring us everywhere in the face and the fearful consequences pressing upon every soul, I venture to appeal to you, and earnestly, and affectionately, and prayerfully, ask you to come forward now and make one determined effort to get the evil removed from this County and Town. Right thinking people are about to ask your County and Town Councils to submit for your adoption the Temperance Act, better known as the Dunkin Act. I am anxious that it should be carried by unmistakeable majorities. I am also desirous that a County in which I have spent the best part of my life should not be the last to declare itself on this great reform, and hence my appeal to you. The temperance people too have elected me the President of this great movement, and hence my anxiety that no negligence on my part should endanger their life's work.

We therefore entreat the Ministers of the Gospel and temperance men to meet at as early a day as possible to arrange all particulars so that there may be no delays. It is peculiarly a Christian work to rid the world of evil, but it is not sectarian. We request therefore that denominationalism be set aside and that there be a great forgetfulness of sectarian selfishness, producing a united moral effort to purge our cosmon country of the sin and shame of licensing a traffic that is so immoral in its tendencies and so terrible in its results.

The evil has so strengthened itself, cherished as it has been by christian hypocricy, that it has assailed and put to shame every church in the land, by denuding many professors of all that is Christ like and transforming them into the image of demons. Anaconda like it has enwrapped in its coils the best and noblest of all nationalities and sexes, and Briarius like, enfolded in its one hundred arms all political parties, and degraded them by its use and abuse at elections, to their shame be it said to the dust. Should not all therefore rise in their might as one church, one people, one party, and by one effort, remove the Hydraheaded monster from the country. Can not the churches drop their denominational work for a month, and the people their classiness? Cannot parties drop their politics for a short time while they unite to wipe out this common enemy of church, state and people from Canadian soil, and leaving done this may adopt their old religious and party lines again. The Ruler of all the earth is cognizant of our petty selfishness and will not, nay, cannot acknowledge other services while the land groans with the burden of transgression and is stained with the blood of 4 000 victims annually sacrificed to this infernal traffic.

Let me therefore urge you to awaken to a sense of duty and come forward to the help of the cause against this mighty enemy of all that is good in mankind.

Let me entreat you to immediate action. The fields are white to the harvest, but where are the labourers?

One month's earnest, determined, prayerful work is all that is needed; and shame on the man, be he minister, layman or demagogue, who refuses one month's work to purge our County from a curse worse than any of the plagues of Egypt; because it not only takes the first born, but ruins mercilessly the whole household, without respect to age or position.

Let the county lodge of Good Templars take immediate action in appointing a time and place of meeting.

Trusting that my appeal may not be in vain in this noble work,

I am
Your servant,
J. STRATTON,
Sept. 17th, 1877. Pres. B. B. C.

THE SCHOOL BOARD AND ITS CHAMPION MR. LECH.

My dear Mr. Editor.

On looking over the columns of your valuable paper I see that Mr. Lech has volunteered to champion the Board and assumes to answer a communication in which I criticised the action of the Board in refusing to furnish to the Council details of the estimates on which the excessive demand for school purposes was based? The extravagance of the Board and its readiness to rush into further expenditure in establishing a model school without caring to ascertain the wishes of those whose money it so lavishly expends, and concluded by enquiring whether you could not suggest a remedy. I say Mr. L. assumes to answer, for instead of furnishing the desired information or suggesting a remedy for the present extravagance, he begins with the statement that a great deal of necessary repairs had this year to be left over for want of funds, (a sort of apology in advance, I assume, for a contemplated expenditure next year still more excessive) and then puts a question that "if Peterborough is not the "place for a model school where is the place "to be, Peterborough or elsewhere." My reply to this query is, that it is not and never has been the desire of the majority of the ratepayers that a model school should be established in Peterborough, the prevailing opinion being that it is neither necessary nor expedient, and that there is ample scope for the developement of all the latent energies of the Board if it will only apply itself to the improvement of the junior classes and making them what they should be, classes in which the younger children will have an opportunity afforded for acquiring a rudimentary education equal to that supplied in our ordinary country common schools. Now, as Mr. Lech's letter is no answer to my communication, I again ask cannot you or some one of your many readers suggest some method by which we can secure to our children a fair opportunity to acquire a common school education at a cost not so excessive as to be burdensome. I regret to have to say that from the tenor of Mr. Lech's letter it is apparent that he neither appreciates properly the gravity of the question under consideration, nor his responsibility as newly elected Trustee, and therefore I think it unfortunate that he should have aspired to a position of such grave responsibility, and still more unfortunate that he should have assumed the position of champion of it's Board.

Had Mr. Lech fully realised the importance of the subject with which he pretends to deal in such a cavilier manner, he surely would not have introduced such irrevelant matters as pigs, geese, and personal grievances into a discussion on the question as how the best interests of our children can be properly cared for and the school expenditure kept within reasonable limits. Mr. Lech having referred to outside matters and submitted certain questions for me to answer, for his information I would say that the Council has no officer whose aspect duty is to pound pigs &c., the pounds are open for Mr. L. or any other party to pound pigs, geese, ducks or chickens. Should it be Mr. L.'s desire that the Council appoint an official pig pounder, and be present to the Council at its next meeting a petition to that effect, respectably signed, I pledge myself that the matter will be considered, and if, as I infer, Mr. L. has any personal grievance and thinks that he has been hardly used by a town official, I can promise him that if he addresses a letter to the Mayor or our Clerk giving the particulars of his complaint, that his communication will be received with courtesy that he will not be referred to the By-laws or reports of committees of the town for redress, but that an impartial investigation will be afforded and if possible any injustice done him remedied.

Yours &c.,
A COUNCILLOR

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—The Times of last Saturday contained an article in reference to your Police Court report of a case that I had against the proprietors of that sheet. I think it but justice to you to state that it was settled in the Police court the morning it was to have come off by the defendants paying me my account against them with costs, it being understood that the case was not to appear before the public. As far as I am concerned I did not mention the matter, and how it got published I do not know or care as there was nothing to be ashamed of in the part I took. As for their having a contra claim against me I defy them to substantiate any, and as to their being able to make the results of their pushing their claim "unfortunate as well as unpleasant" to me, they know they have no grounds to work on and that the item referred to was only written in malice to try and injure me because I made them pay what was justly due.

Yours &c.,
C. SARNEY.

AN EXPLANATION.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—As I have learned that my going after the girl Margaret Wright to South Monaghan and Fraserville has given rise to rumors affecting the character of the daughters of Mr. Wright near Fraserville, I beg to state that the family of Mr. Wright, Fraserville, was in no way implicated in the abortion case for which I was sent to obtain evidence. The Margaret Wright after whom I was sent was a servant girl in the house of a Mr. Robinson, South Monaghan, but on going there I was directed astray, and afterwards found out my mistake; and I take this opportunity of correcting the mistake through the columns of your widely circulated paper. The girl referred to, is, I learn now in the United States, and as Mr. Wright's daughters are all at home with him, and were when I was at his place; your readers will at once feel satisfied in regard to their innocence, and I am sure no one regrets more than I do that my going to their house by mistake, should be the cause of unfounded rumours to their injury.

I am yours truly,
JOHN CRAIG.

Smelsberry.—The Review claims to have "a wealthier class of readers than any other (paper) in the county." Probably on the principle that none but the wealthy can afford to spend money on such twaddle.

The Reform Demonstration at Orangeville was a grand success, over 5,000 persons being present to hear the leaders of the Government. Addresses were presented to Mr. Mackenzie and also to Mr. Mowat—who was present.

Mrs. Youmans, a lady of great note as a temperance speaker, will address a grand mass meeting in Bradburn's Hall this (Thursday) evening, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Knowlton, who has just left here, agsures us that she has no equal as a temperance advocate in the Dominion.

Attempted Suicide.—Weldon, who is imprisoned in the Cobourg jail, charged with the murder of Alberta Wade, attempted to hang himself a short time ago. He had twisted his shirt into a rope for the purpose, but he was detected by the jailor before he was enabled to effect his object.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column in reference to the registration of births, deaths and marriages. The Dominion Registrar, who is Mr. C. D. Macdonald, Town Clerk, is determined to enforce the law on those who neglect attending to this matter.

A Mistake.—A correspondent informs us that a constable was up through Smith, summoning parties to appear before the judge, and get their names put on the voters list, in the Conservative interest. Our correspondent was mistaken, as we learn it was Mr. John Rogers, and not a constable that was serving the summonses.

Complication with Peru.—The London Times says peremptory orders have been received at Portsmouth for the plated steam ships Triumph and Hercules to be got ready for sea, to proceed to the Pacific Ocean owing to some complications with Peru, arising out of the attack of the British ships Shah and Amethyst on the Huascar.

Social.—Mrs. Dr. Ormond has very kindly offered the use of her residence to the Ashburnham Ladies' Aid Society for the purpose of holding a social on Tuesday evening next, the 25th inst. No tickets will be issued, but a general invitation is extended to all, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance. Admission twenty-five cents. Proceeds in aid of St. Luke's Church.

Complimentary.—Mr. John Jack, of Smith, wishes us to say that the sale of his stock &c., by Mr. J. Haggart, was well conducted, and was managed in such a way as to exceed his utmost expectations, and recommends his brother farmers who are about calling sales to give Mr. Haggart an opportunity, as he is capable of conducting any sale to the satisfaction of the party who may engage him for the purpose.

Sank.—As the steamer "Whistle-Wing" was proceeding from the locks to the wharf to take the passengers of the "Golden-Eye," which was unable to run on account of the low water, owing to the fog she struck against a low pier and immediately sank. Mr. Calcutt at once set about to raise her and repair damages and we hope to see the "Whistle-Wing" on her regular trips in a few days. The "Golden-Eye" is still able to run, notwithstanding the low water.

Danger in the Mouth.—Many people while using a led pencil in writing have a habit of putting the point in their mouths after writing a few words, under the impression, perhaps, that it makes the chirographic look plainer and blacker. It is well to suggest to such persons that every time they touch the pencil to their tongues they seriously endanger their health. Cases have occurred where the system has been so badly poisoned that paralysis and death have resulted from this practice.

Dead-Heading.—An exchange correctly says: "Newspaper proprietors are now besieged by the energetic man who wishes a tender for a dollar's worth of some kind of society printing, and who, after receiving an estimate, goes to a one-horse job office and by showing the estimate saves half a dollar, and then returns to the newspaper office to get five dollars worth of free notices for his society. This man belongs to a very clever class, probably, but he don't get the notices all the same.

CUT THIS OUT—IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.—There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this county from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to J. D. Tully Druggist, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, will be formally opened for Divine service on Sunday next, September the 23rd. The following services will be held on that day: At 11 a.m. Morning Prayer and celebration of the Holy Communion. The Bishop of Toronto will be the preacher. At 3 p.m. the rite of confirmation will be administered to a large number of candidates, and the Bishop will address the confirmed. At 7 p.m. Evening Prayer and sermon by Rev. Rural Dean Allen, M. A. There will be a collection taken up at each of the services in behalf of the building fund. Seats free. All are cordially invited.

To the Travelling Public.—The Caisse House, in the Town of Peterborough, long known as one of the best conducted houses in Ontario, has been fitted up in the most magnificent manner by Mr. Maloney, its present proprietor. There is every accommodation in it that can be obtained in the best regulated houses. The rooms are splendidly furnished, the table supplied with all the delicacies of the season, and the utmost attention paid to guests. It is in the centre of the business part of the town, and a "bus" runs regularly to and from all trains. Mr. Maloney is courteous and obliging, and will spare no pains to make his guests comfortable. It is in in all respects a first class house, as all who patronize it will testify.

The citizens of Lakefield and surrounding country are advised that Mr. W. J. Wallace has returned from the Montreal market where he has been for the past week purchasing his Fall and winter stock. The stock is larger than at any former season and has been bought at the closest figures from the best wholesale houses in the trade, and I am now fully prepared to give those who patronize me the very best value for their money. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38-3in.

The Dunkin Bill.—The necessary requisition &c. to the Council for the submission of the Dunkin Act, or Temperance Act of 1864, is obtained, and fully signed, and will be presented to the Council at its first meeting. It will be submitted to the people as soon as perfect arrangements can be made to that end, and the people will then have an opportunity of deciding as to its adoption. The time has fully come when this great moral question shall be discussed in a more business like manner than heretofore, and we trust that the discussion will end favorably to morality and sobriety. As soon as the vote shall be taken in town we learn that the Bill will be submitted to the county in order to afford the entire community an opportunity of doing away unitedly with the temptations and influences of strong drink. It is thought best to submit it to the town first as it is believed the county will assuredly carry it at any time it is submitted to them.

Mr. Knowlton's Temperance Work.—Mr. Marvin Knowlton, of London, Ontario, has concluded one weeks work in advocacy of temperance, and so great has been his success that about 1,200 signed the pledge at his meetings. He is the most earnest and eloquent advocate of this cause that has ever visited us, and his labours have been acknowledged by all as pre-eminently great. He has rare orational powers, a fluent and pleasing address, can appeal in the most affectionate and tender language to his hearers, so as to melt many to tears. He left here on Monday evening for Toronto to attend a temperance or prohibitory league convention, but we are glad to be able to say will return in about a week to render more assistance in the temperance reform now progressing. On his return he will visit Lakefield and other places if arrangements can be made for meetings. He has an innumerable host of friends in Peterborough, many of whom are ardent admirers. He has no equal in Ontario in this great and noble work, and as he has almost devoted himself to the work until prohibition be consummated, county and town organizations, where hard and earnest work is required, should at once secure his services. He will be an able speaker and earnest advocate, warm and unanswerable in debate, while a perfect gentleman towards all, even his strongest opponents. His address is London, Ontario. Any communication for him forwarded to the EXAMINER office will be transmitted to him without delay.

THE Musselman has got decidedly the better of the Muscovite this campaign; and the picture of the three-headed Russian eagle is not so erroneous after all, the third head having been put on him by the Turk.

THE Review accuses Mr. McCarthy, one of Sir John's Lieutenants, as being "destined to make an unenviable mark in the public affairs of Canada." And this too, while it is complaining that Grit prints are abusing the gentle "Simcoe Boy." Shouldn't wonder, however, if the Review's prophecy isn't literally fulfilled some day.

The Belleville Ontario is delighted with Conservative poetry, particularly this stanza—Thou brave Macdonald! Thy heart ne'er quails; You have shown their frauds And the steel rails. Where, asks the Ontario, did the poet get his inspiration? We believe we violate no confidence when we say that there is a very large distillery in operation near Windsor.

OSMAN PASHA is not Marshal Bazaine, nor yet Robert Clay Crawford, the ex-Mexican general; neither is he a Frenchman, Scotchman or Irishman denationalized, but simply a Musselman. In view of the discussion over his indentity, the Turkish Minister at Washington has deemed it his duty to state distinctly that Osman Pasha is a Turk by birth and education.

THUS sings the Toronto Telegram: One interesting thing about these Conservative pic-nics is the fact that wherever an address is presented to Sir John Macdonald he takes great pains to refer to the people thereabouts as being "educated and intelligent," and altogether lovely. And he invariably assures them that he has been making the most desperate efforts for the last twenty-five years to pay a visit to that particular locality—that, in fact, the one grand object of his life has been to take them by the hand and talk to them. But they are beginning to suspect him.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

From the Perth Expositor.

As announced in our last, great progress has been made in the procuring of bonuses for this road, and it has now come to a decided issue for the people of South Lanark, as to whether they shall have the road through Beckwith, Drummond, Bathurst and South Sherbrooke, or through Lanark, Dalhousie, and North Sherbrooke. Mr. Scott's visit to Ottawa, and the favorable reception which he has received there, leave it no longer in doubt that he will obtain the bonus asked for, $200,000, from the city, no matter which way the road will be built; whether by Carleton Place or by the southern route. This amount, with $300,000 from Toronto, will also complete his bonuses to $6500 per mile from Toronto to Carleton Place, and establishes the certainty of the road being built.

The people of Ottawa would, however, much prefer that an independent line should be built by way of Perth, and, while determined to have the road, have agreed to certain propositions of Mr. Scott, by which it will be left to the people of the Southern route to decide whether they shall have the Railway or not. The proposition is substantially as follows, viz; That Perth and the southern townships of Carleton and Lanark shall raise $240.000, which would be put against the $100,000 of North Lanark, and $5,000 per mile of the 28 miles of the Canada Central which would have to be built. This amount is at present distributed as $75,000, from Perth, $75,000 from Lanark Townships, and $90,000 from Carleton County Townships.

THE TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

(Toronto National.)

Mr. W. H. Scott, of Peterborough, is working hard at Ottawa and the Counties en route from Toronto thither, to secure the success of this exceedingly deserving enterprize. To this moment, it has been a matter of regret that there is no direct line of communication between the Capital of the Dominion and the West. A railway strike, as actually happened not so long ago, may cut it off entirely from connection with the rest of the country; at the best of times, there is no way of reaching it except by traversing two sides of a triangle instead of the third side. By Prescott or Brockville one must go to get there, in place of directly by Peterborough and Perth or Carleton Place. Then again, the monopoly of the Grand Trunk with its discriminating tariff for freight, is a direct obstacle to the progress of the back country and especially of the Ottawa valley.

The people on the line of the proposed railway are alive to its great importance and have already subscribed more than a fourth of the cost in bonuses alone. From Ottawa $200,000 is asked,—a moderate sum certainly, considering the immense value the line will be to the City and the region about it. But, although the people of the Capital are exceedingly desirous to have it constructed, the proposed bonus will pinch them somewhat. Its responsibilities and the expenditure resulting from them were thrust prematurely upon Ottawa, and the consequence is an accumulation of liabilities which weigh heavily. We can sympathise, therefore, with the people of that City, when they hesitate to add to them. Still we have no doubt the by-law will carry by a large majority; to suppose otherwise would be to imagine the rate-payers blind to their own interests, present and prospective. With the Ottawa bonus, and some others not yet granted, the Company will be in a position to ask for Government aid under the Railway Act.

It is sincerely to be hoped that our Toronto people will strengthen Mr. Scott's hands and forward the enterprize he is pushing with so much energy. We shall not be so greatly the gainers as Ottawa perhaps; still our stake in the matter is by no means a small one. To make Toronto the focus, for the West, of the rapidly growing trade and wealth of farm wood and mine in the Ottawa valley, cannot fail to be of the greatest value to this City.

Procuring Abortion.

From the Bobcaygeon Independent.

A case of considerable public interest, and one which illustrates the peculiar condition of modern civilization, has occurred in the neighbouring town of Peterborough. Throughout this district few persons are better known than Dr. Kincaid: his genial manners, his fast driving, his readiness to take part in any public movement having a good object in view, and his awful and tremendous eminence as an Everlasting and Perpetual Grand Master of all the Knight Templars, have made him known to most persons within a day's journey of Peterborough, whilst his abilities as a M. D. have gained for him a large practice. But the genial doctor has a will of his own, and this brings him occasionally into unpleasant collision with persons and things. So much is this the case that he has had even the temerity to fall foul of the press, and on one occasion closed the Coroner's Court he was holding against an obnoxious reporter,—to say the least of it an injudicious and impolitic proceeding. Well, the doctor though he has many friends has also some enemies, and even among his professional brethren there are those who, it is to be feared, regard him with other feelings than those of friendship. This feeling brought about a crisis on Monday, when the Doctor appeared before the magistrates to answer to a charge of endeavouring to procure abortion on the person of a girl who declined to be present to prosecute. The parties to the prosecution were Dr. Harvey, and, we say it with sorrow, Dr. O'Sullivan, M.P.P. The girl, it seems, had a miscarriage; she was, as we have been told is usual on such occasions, in some pain, and a doctor was sent for. Dr. O'Sullivan, went to the patient, who refused at first to receive him, saying she wanted Dr. Kincaid. Dr O'Sullivan arrived at the conclusion that the miscarriage had been procured by artificial and improper means, and at his instigation Dr. Harvey, who seems to have played a very contemptible part in the proceedings, laid an information against Dr. Kincaid. The charge utterly broke down, and Dr. Kincaid was the recipient of a somewhat uproarious demonstration of the public satisfaction. Thus the matter ends, so far as Dr. Kincaid is concerned, but some serious reflection naturally occur,

In the first place, it is evident all such proceedings as these should be conducted by the Crown prosecutor, for when left to the hands of a private prosecutor other interests than those of justice are certain to be consulted. Dr O'Sullivan and Dr. Harvey may declare that their motives in proceeding against a brother practitioner were purely conscientious, but will any intelligent person believe them? We think not. Private prosecutions should be abandoned, and the Crown in all cases should be the prosecutor. This would prevent the occurrence of such discreditable prosecutions as the one in question.

In the next place, it cannot fail to force itself upon the public mind that the law regarding the procuring of abortion requires to be thoroughly remodelled. Let us look at this matter from a common sense point of view:—We know that abortion is universally practised by all classes; we know that very few doctors exclude it from their practice; we know moreover, that in many instances it saves great sorrow and disgrace, and in still more numerous cases it is a blessing to a family that no more children should be born. This being the case is it wise? it is politic? is it desirable? to preserve laws on the statute book which visit on abortionists the extreme penalty of death?

Lastly and this consideration we approach with great hesitation:—where we find a practice so universal as is this of procuring abortion; where a social system exists which renders the maintenance of large families a labour entailing great privation and sacrifice; where a civilization is in force which raises labourers in excess of the demand for labour:—is it really wrong that artifical means should be adopted to check the too rapid increase of population?

The "So-Called" Pacific Scandal.

(Certain Speeches at the Cobourg Pic-Nic simplified.)

Hon. Matt. C.: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, you all know I am a moral man; a strictly pure man politically and otherwise. You know, for I have frequently told you, that I am a conscientious person, who would not willingly do or abet anything which was of a questionable character, and let me add, this profession of purity is not hypocritical as it would be were I a Grit; it is made in sincerity and in truth. With these few preparatory remarks, I wish to say a word on the much talked-of Pacific Scandal. Scandal. That is what they call it, and I must confess that legally and technically speaking, Scandal is the proper word. As a lawyer, and a somewhat distinguished and esteemed lawyer too, I am obliged to say that the evidence submitted to the court and fully established in connection with the conduct of my Right Honorable friend John A. in the matter of the Pacific Railway Charter, quite justifies the use of the word Scandal. Legally speaking it cannot be called a Slander—for that would imply that the charge had never been proved, which as, you are all aware it unfortunately was. But, Sir, while I say all this, I by no means deem it my duty as a pure person, as aforesaid to join with those who condemn my Right Honorable friend for his conduct in the premises. As a moralist—a practical moralist—I do not deem it my duty to withdraw my allegiance from him until he expresses contrition for his offence. By no means. Yet, mark, you, I do not seek to pronounce him guiltless. But I stand by him, as such pure and moral politician afore said, and I ask you ladies and gentlemen as pure persons to stand by him, on the ground that the Grits are just as bad, and have done just as wicked deeds. I have not time just now to point these out, but will make way for the Right Honorable gentleman himself.

Sir John A. Macdonald, K. C. B. P. D. Q., of Spain, &c.—I am not in the habit of making professions of purity. I never was. (Hear Hear!) The Conservative Party of Canada never did and does not now make any such house-top professions. (Cheers.) We leave that for the Grits. (Laughter.) My friend Mr. Cameron acts in the capacity of professing purist for the rest of us, and the rest of us feel free to do a good deal as we please. (Renewed Laughter.)—I don't profess to be immaculate. I may have made mistakes, in fact, I'm sure I've made mistakes. There was the Washington Treaty about the fisheries, for example, and the North West Rebellion; and the Northern Railway affair and the Pacific Scandal. Sir, I beg pardon, I meant Slander. I am sorry to have to differ with so good and learned a man as Mr. Cameron, but I object to his calling that affair a Scandal, Sir, it was a vile calumny got up by the Grits for the purpose of paring obloquy upon me. Sir, there was not a word of truth in any part of it that imputed corrupt motives to me. (A Voice—What about your evidence before the Commission?) I don't care a cent for my own evidence or any other man. I want to get back to power again and I think that whole Pacific business is far enough out of the public mind now to make it safe for me to put on a cheek of brass and declare as I now do declare, that the whole thing was a fraud and a gross libel on myself and my colleagues. It was a Slander, Sir. Mr. Cameron, ladies and gentlemen, it was an infernal slander! I will call upon my honorable friend, Mr. McDougall to corroborate these few remarks.

Hon. William.—Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: It gives me extreme pain to be obliged to differ in opinion from my trusted and generous leader, Sir John. I call him generous, because on one occasion I know he threw $8,000,000 into the sea. In fact, I am sorry to say, that on this Pacific Scandal subject, I must differ from both the previous speakers. My own view of it is, that it was neither a slander nor a scandal, but the baseless fabric of a vision. It was a mere fiction, invented in the Globe office. If never did have any foundation in fact. There never was a man named Sir Hugh Allen, who contributed money to a person named Macdonald, because he was a good party man and wanted to help the elections. The whole thing is a myth and one of the clumsy jokes of the Grit party. I would counsel the electorate of the country to act accordingly. Act as if no such thing ever existed. That's the way I do myself, and I can truly say I never felt more happy and comfortable. (Great Applause.)—Grip.

SELWYN.

SABBATH SCHOOL TEA MEETING.—On Tuesday the 4th inst., the Anniversary Tea Meeting in connection with the Selwyn Baptist Sabbath School was held. On the Sabbath pre-ceding a sermon to the young was preached by the Pastor of the Church. On Tuesday at 3 P.M., a very excellent tea was served first to the children and then to the whole company assembled on the the occasion. The remainder of the evening from seven to ten was occupied by the recital of well selected pieces in the form of dialogues, readings, and recitations from the young people, these exercises being interspersed with the singing of select Sabbath School Songs by the choir, and brief addresses from the Ministers and a brother who had considerable experience in Sabbath School work. At the beginning of the year fears were entertained of the success of this school, on account of the removal of the superintendent Mr. Crook from our midst; but through the perseverence and Christian zeal of several of the younger female members of the Church the interest and efficency of the school has been fully maintained, and under the continued blessing of God we look for a continuance of the same.—COM.

It will afford the most perfect facilities for the cure of such affections, and its Faculty of physicians and surgeons will embrace graduates from both American and European Medical Schools who have become distinguished for their skill. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, by Dr. R. V. Almost one hundred thousand copies have already been sold. 37-2ins

From Rev. H. L. Gilman, of Glover, Vt.

"I have been troubled for several years with a difficulty of the heart and lungs, have applied to several physicians for help, and have tried almost every remedy recommended without receiving any assistance; but had been growing weaker and weaker until, hearing of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY about a year since, I commenced using it, with immediate relief. It has not long restoried my lungs to a sound state, but I am entirely relieved of the difficulty or disease of the heart. I have no hesitation in saying that it is the best lung medicine before the public; and I cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it to all persons suffering from pulmonary complaints." 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by dealers generally.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. RINGWORM and OLD CHRONIC SORES, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE-SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PETTIT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters,

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS"

Ternan, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Paterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others use numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W. "It is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from ¼ of an inch thick down in gauge, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W, will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

OUR SAVIOR'S PARTING WORDS.

"Go ye therefore and teach all nations, &c. Matt. XXVIII. 19."—
(WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER.)
Soft-whispering with tremulous voice.
The words of dying one.
We rest not till each cherished wish
And last request is done.
Then how should we esteem the words,
How dearly should we prize,
Our Savior's latest words, ere He
Ascended to the skies.
Now listen to His voice He says
"Go preach to nations all."
That every creature on the earth
May hear the gospel call.
O, if we love our Savior we
Will hasten to fulfill,
His last command, and count it joy
To do His holy will.
If closer we would keep beside,
The bleeding Lamb of God,
His dying love would us constrain,
To seek the path we trod.
Who spent His life in "doing good,"
Who died that we might live,
Surely our all, yea, even ourselves,
We in return should give.
And shall we still refuse to hear,
And slit with folded hands,
When urgent calls to us, for help,
Is heard from heathen lands,
Once when a herald of the truth,
Was leaving distant shore—
(Where he had told of Jesus love)
To bring more labrers o'er,
Imploring him to stay methinks,
I hear the converts cry,
"Before you can return with them
We'll die, we'll surely die."
O, glorious work, no joys of earth,
With this can once compare,
That we to poor benighted souls,
A Savior may declare.
"This honor hath the saints" that they,
Should workers with Him be,
In hasting that blest time when all
To God shall bow the knee.
When kings and princes of the earth,
To him shall bring their gold,
And all the distant isles afar,
God's glory shall behold.
Hail blessed time when Christ shall come,
And we shall reign with Him.
As kings and priests to God within,
The New Jerusalem.

LAKEFIELD.

ACCIDENT.—At Young's Point on Thursday last, Mr. J. Scrimager, superintendent of the new saw and grist mill now in course of erection at that place, had the misfortune to cut his foot with a broad axe while hewing a stick of timber. Mr. Jas. Chalmers brought him to this village and Dr. Bell dressed the wound, a severe one about four inches in length which literally split his foot from the root of the big toe up to the instep. The wounded member is progressing favorably and Mr. S; will soon be able to resume work again.
GOOD SPORT.—On Saturday last Mr. Jos. A. Stabler and five other gentlemen returned from the upper lakes where they had been enjoying a week's hunt. As they succeeded in securing thirteen deer it seems almost unnecessary to say that they were well pleased with the result of their trip.—News.

NORWOOD.

A TRUMPED UP CHARGE.—We are sorry to notice that there is a disposition on the part of a few in the Town of Peterborough to bring into disrepute a gentleman who has, by extraordinary ability, energy and pluck, attained the top wrung in the ladder of his profession, viz. Dr. Kincaid of that town. The latest effort was made at the instance of a brother medico, who, at the beck of another of the medical profession, arranged the Doctor before a magistrate on a charge of administering medicine to procure an abortion Competent legal aid was obtained to secure the ends of the prosecutor, and the neighbourhood was ransacked for witnesses to sustain the charge. But all was of no avil, and the trumped up case wes, as it deserved to be, summarily dismissed.
Dr. Kincaid is too well known, and his reputation as a gentleman of honor and probity too thoroughly relied upon, to allow such a charge to dwell in the minds of his many friends for a moment, and will only exist in the minds of those who are professionally opposed to him; and we believe the charge emanated rather from a spirit of jealousy, than a desire to meet the ends of justice. We might here mention that, at the conclusion of the trial, the people in the court room manifested their pleasure on the result by ethusiastically cheering Dr. Kincaid; and many of the leading ladies and gentlemen of Peterboro' have since congratulated him upon the issue of the trumped up case. We also congratulate the Doctor upon the happy result, and trust that he may long continue to hold the popularity, personally and professionally, he has for many years enjoyed.—Register.

LINDSAY.

BODY FOUND.—John McCreight, a wealthy and very respectable farmer living in the township of Brock, near Wick station, left his house during Tuesday night or Wednesday morning of last week. When the family got up on Wednesday morning he was missing. The alarm was immediately given and over two hundred persons have been on the search for him daily ever since. His body was found in the Nonquon river, about seven miles from his own residence by two men from Port Perry, who were duck shooting. McCreight is supposed to have been insane.
DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—Last Thursday night about 11 o'clock a fire broke out in the outbuildings adjoining the brick residence of Hon. S. C. Wood, at the head of Waverly Avenue. The flames rapidly spread to the house which was totally consumed, the walls, however, are still standing. At one time the Central Exhibition buildings and the residence of Mr. D. T. Houghton were in great danger, and it was only with great exertion that they were saved. A good deal of furniture was removed but in a badly damaged condition. One horse was severly burnt, the other escaped uninjured. The flames were so rapid in their progress, that the ladies had barely time to dress themselves. They sought refuge for the night at the residence of Mr. D. J. McIntyre and and Mrs. Jas. Smith. Mr. Wood was absent from town at the time. The rumour that the skeleton of a human being had been found in the vicinity of the stables the following day, had no foundation in fact.—Warder.

MANGOES.—Take green muskmelons and squash peppers before they become red; take out the seeds and put them in salt and water over night; then fill them with onions chopped fine, horseradish scraped fine, mustard seed and cloves; sew them up and put them into vinegar.

USEFUL RECEIPT.

CRISP BISCUITS.—One pound of flour, the yelk of one egg, milk. Mix the flour and the yelk of the egg with sufficient milk to make the whole into a very stiff paste; beat it well, and knead it until it is perfectly smooth. Roll the paste out very thin; with a round cutter shape it into small biscuits and bake them a nice brown in a slow oven from twelve to eighteen minutes.
GERMAN PUFFS.—Two ounces of flour, two eggs, half pint of new milk, two ounces of melted butter, little salt and nutmeg. Let two eggs be well beaten, then mix all the ingredients well together, and beat them up just before they are put into little cups half full for baking. Bake for a quarter of an hour in a hot oven till the puffs are of a nice brown; turn out on a flat dish rub a little butter over each puff, and dust on it powdered sugar.
BAKED PUDDING PUDDING.—One and a half pint of milk, four tablespoontuls of flour, two ounces of butter, four eggs a little salt. Mix the flour with a small quantity of cold milk; make the remainder hot, and pour it on to the flour, keeping the mixture well stirred; add the butter, eggs and salt: beat the whole well, and put the pudding into a buttered pie-dish; bake for three quarters of an hour, and serve with sweet sauce, wine sauce, or stewed fruit. Baked in small cups, very pretty little puddings may be made; they should be eaten with the same accompaniments as above.
PRESERVED QUINCES.—Pare and quarter the quinces; boil in

PREACHING vs. PRACTICE.

The Tory prints are fond of sympathizing (apparently) with all those petty manufacturing concerns which die from mismanagement and totally internal causes, and declaring that their failure is due to the need of Protection. Those who have failed are ready at any and all times to blame any one but themselves; and are as eager to catch at the cry as are politico-protectionists to throw the bait. The gudgeons grab eagerly; and the greater the folly which has led a man to a failure in his undertaking, the more ready he is to still further prove his folly by joining in the cry for Protection. Thus we see that the greater number of Protectionists are those who are trying to lay the cause of their inaptness on some one else; those who are playing a political game; or both. The successful men, of whom there are many in Canada, in all branches of business, are not found crying rabidly for Protection. They have no glaring frailties as managers to hide, and no political cards to play. Therefore we see few, if any, really prominent manufacturers indulging in a demand for Protection.

We are frequently told that the "Free Trade policy" of the present Government has killed certain business ventures, the exact counterparts (barring management) of which continue to flourish without any outcry for Protection further than that which is given by the present 17½ per cent. tariff. Factories over the suspension of which in the season of depression the Protectionists seem to rejoice, as furnishing them material for their "grievances, have revived again under the genial influence of "better times," come and coming. In spite of the protective tariff of the United States the manufacturies of that country are languishing, while those of Canada are comparatively brisk, and their stability is proved by a visible increase of activity all round, while the protected factories of the United States are declining.

Just now politico-protectionist publications are recounting a story of a stereotype foundary started on a small scale at Arnprior; after a time removed to Brockville: and which is now to be removed into the United States. This last move is said to be owing to the American tariff preventing sales in the United States. We happen to know something of this stereotyping firm, and the work it turned out; and from our knowledge we can safely say it does not much matter where it locates, for so long as its work is rough and copied from very old styles it cannot expect, nor does it deserve, to do any but a sort of two-penny half-penny trade. Its principal business seemed to be the supply of very badly executed copies of old cuts, and of stereotyped miscellaneous matter to the poorest papers in the country. For instance, a newspaper man, say the proprietor of the Port Hope Times, would get stereotyped plates of a story or of short anecdotes or sketches, instead of carefully and with judgment selecting suitable matter for his paper, to be put into type by printers in his own office. Thus some of these very protectionist papers which were crying out for the support of home industries were all along carrying out a system of sending from home for what might better be obtained at home. We notice that one paper which makes use of this stereotype foundry story has one side printed somewhere else than in its own office, thus, according to its own theories, depriving the village of the wages that would be paid to printers who would otherwise be employed to do the extra amount of work, now done in some distant city! A queer advocate, truly!

The Toronto Leader is another of those sheets which are continually descanting on the duties of Protection. Yet this champion of home manufacturies is also a practical apostate from the doctrine it preaches. A short time ago it appeared in a new dress—that is: set from new type; and though type is manufactured in Canada this "Protectionist," gets his new dress from New York. The Mail, too, which almost every day has an article of the most pronounced and rabid Protectionist stamp, got the type from which it is printed from a foreign manufactrurer. On the other hand, the Globe, the so-called Free Trade organ, got its new type from a Montreal foundry. So much for the sincerity of Protectionist preachers.

CANADA'S GOVERNOR.—A rumor from England is to the effect that our present popular Governor General, whose term shortly expires, will be succeeded by the Marquis of Lorne, the husband of Princess Louise. This may have been given rise to the statement the Marquis intended a visit to Nova Scotia on a sporting expedition. Another rumor states that Prince Leopold is about to take holy orders in the Church of England.—Free Press.

THE G. J. R.—Work on that portion of the road west of Stirling began on Monday morning. Twenty-five men are now employed in ballasting the track so as to make it ready for the reception of the rails.

SUCCUMBED.—The Collingwood Enterprise has suspended publication. The proprietor bids his newspaper readers "a long and sad farewell." After having conducted a newspaper twenty-three years in Collingwood, and nearly thirty in the county, he is forced to succumb to the times.

THE ruling passion strong in life. A man in Dundas last week bought a dollar and a half's worth of sugar from a grocer on credit, and sold it again to a neighbor for a dollar, in order to get money to take himself and his wife to O'Brien's circus. We trust the grocer who credited, has received a lesson that will close at least one account in his books.

THE scrutiny in the Lincoln election case is closed at last, after long delays and no little cost. Notwithstanding the stolen ballots Mr. Neelon is still some 20 votes in the majority. The final judgement in the case will be given shortly by Mr. Justice Patterson and Mr. V. C. Blake. We hope the outside world has heard the last of Mr. Charles Rykert and his peculiar doings.

FRUIT.—A contemporary truly says:—"Fruit is the natural remedy for keeping the digestive track in good working order Generally speaking, people are fast coming to a realizing sense of the benefit of a bountiful fruit diet. Certainly, the substitute of the melon, apple, the luscious peach, and the juicy pear for the formerly almost universal blue pill, is very agreeable."

SAYS a contemporrary: There is something touchingly pathetic in the verses which picture the Tory leaders at the wheel of the ship of State, which walks the waters like a thing of life, the men at the wheel guiding it carefully into the peaceful waters of the Pacific Scandal instead of allowing it to be run upon the rocks and breakers of good government and honest disposition of public funds.

ON Saturday morning John Williams of Weston, a brick maker in a drunken fit seized an axe and split his wife's head open, killing her instantly. The murderer, who has been arrested, has lived in Weston for sixteen years and is the father of fourteen children. The murder took place in his own house. Williams had heretofore borne a good character, and although not a man habitually given to drink was very violent and quarrlesome when in liquor.

THE Ottawa Free Press thus pulls up the slanderous Mail with a sudden jerk: The Toronto Mail informs its readers that Hon. Mr. Huntington is an open advocate of annexation to the United States, that his sentiments are shared by Mr. Laflamme and that both of them are consequently very dangerous and disloyal men. Now, will the Mail favor its readers with some quotations from a speech of Mr. Huntington in which he ever at anytime advocated annexation? It cannot do it.

THE Kaministiquia scandal is "playing out" pretty fast. It has been shown not only that the up river location is far preferable to Prince Arthur's Landing for a harbor, but that the latter is next to impracticable. Even the Neebing Hotel story is becoming very thin; so much so in fact that the Thunder Bay Sentinel from which the Tory sheets have been wont to draw inspiration, has been led to remark on the merly local application o what it calls its "hits." For instance in its issue of the 6th inst, it says:—It is true many hard things have been published respecting the outrageous "Neebing Hotel Job;" there has been nothing to prove that the Premier acted corruptly. And again:—We do not accuse even the Day Book Clique of 'swindling;' we have published some unwholesome "hits.,, After this admission of their chief witness the Tory party had better "let up', on this collapsed "grievance."

THE Hamilton Times says: Sir John Macdonald, whose party would have hanged Mr. Robert Baldwin when he was in power, now lauds that gentleman as a pure and honest statesman. He was pure and honest, and therefore was as bitterly detested during his life by Sir John and his friends as Messrs. Mackenzie and Blake are now. The same Sir John is now also claiming that it was he who secularized the Clergy Reserves. He and his party fought against that secularization until the very last, held that the Episcopal Church should be dominant in Canada, and denounced all dissenters and secularizers as radical and disloyal. When the battle fought by the Reformers for the secularization of the Reserves had reached the point of victory, Sir John did step in, swallow all his previous principles, and turn traitor to his whole record. But not until then did he favor Secularization, and he only did it then for the same purpose which made him sell a charter to Sir Hugh Allan—to enable him to hold on to office.

AN indignant denial is given our late paragraph concerning the rumoured prosecution of several Tory papers for a libel. The Port Hope Times says our statement is a "malicious falsehood." This is rather strong language even for a prospective defendant in a libel suit. We presume that our contemporary intends to deny that it has been sued for libel; but that does not alter the fact that the rumour of his being about to become a defendant of such an action was circulated. Indeed we have seen mention made of it in other journals with which the Times exchanges, and we also have heard further confirmation from very good authority. We learn, too, that the Tory paper in this Town is numbered among the offenders in this particular instance. The Times and its companions in affliction can possess their souls in patience; there is time enough for them to learn their fate after a criminal information has been laid against them. Meantime the Times may as well keep cool; as there will be time enough to retract when it is asked. Certainly it need not at any rate pretend a disdain for a tacitly acknowledged superior, or to sneer at what is saintly and superior. It is very foolish of it, too, to be so self-condemnatory as to say anything at all of those "commoner 'scandal mongers' of whom no notice is taken." Keep cool friend Times, and discipline yourself for the apology you will probably make before very long.

East Riding Show.—The annual fall show of the East Riding Agricultural Society, will be held on the agricultural show grounds, Warsaw, on Thursday and Friday, the 11th and 12th of October. The list of prizes is a liberal one, and we hope to see a large turn out of the farmers of the townships, and the display larger than usual.

REGATTA.

The regatta on Wednesday and Thursday last was witnessed by a large number of spectators, who seemed to take a lively interest in all the contests. The days were very propitious, enabling the ladies of Peterborough to be present and they availed themselves of the opportunity freely.

The prizes were the free offerings of the members of the Boating Club, and to them the success of this regatta is mainly due. The committee of management deserve praise for the manner in which everything was conducted. The judges were the Hon. R. Hamilton, Judge Dennistoun, Major Boulton, and Mr. H. C. Rogers, starter, and they discharged the duties assigned to them so satisfactorily as to leave no room for a single word of complaint.

The following is the prize list:—

In the evening after the races the members of the Boating Club held a social assembly which passed off very nicely and was well attended by those who were favored with an invitation. There were from sixty to seventy present.

On Saturday evening those who were successful at the races met in the room of the club, where Mrs. R. Hamilton awarded the prizes with appropriate remarks, which were duly acknowledged by the recipients.

OPENING OF St. LUKE'S CHURCH, ASHBURNHAM.

The formal opening of this beautiful edifice for Divine Worship, took place on Sunday last the 23rd Instant. The day broke bright and beautiful, and the excellent weather added much to the pleasure and comfort of the day. We hail it as a happy omen of future success.

Before giving an account of the opening services, it might be interesting to our readers to give a short sketch of the progress of this parish, and a description of the building itself.

Many years ago the subject of commencing church services in this Village was first considered, but no decisive step was taken until very lately, when a plan was devised by the Rev. Mark Burnham to form a new parish. This was to consist of St. Mark's Otonabee, then under his pastoral care, the Village of Ashburnham, and the district lying on the Eastern bank of the River Otonabee. This was accomplished with little or no delay about the 1st of June, 1876, and then the question presented itself, "where will the services be held?" Mr. Burnham at once generously presented an excellent site, gave a large donation to the erection of a temporary building, which would in future answer for school purposes, and pushed the matter with God's vigour and alacrity that the building was opened for Divine Service only, one short month from its erection began, viz: on the 9th of July, 1876. Capable as it was of holding nearly 200 persons, it was thought it would easily accommodate the worshippers for many years to come, but so great was the success which crowned the efforts of the people, and their pastor, that the congregation soon outgrew the room provided for them, and the intsrest at the end of six months seemed not one whit abated.

During the winter season, material was procured for the erection of a church; early in the spring the contract was let; on the 10th of May last the foundation stone was laid with appropriate cermonies, and on Sunday last all was carried to a successful issue, and the church entirely completed, fitted; and furnished was opened to the public.

The building is of white brick in the plan, unadorned, yet beautiful Gothic Style of Architecture, so appropriate for God's temple and conveying to the beholder the idea of a sacred structure. It consists of porch near chancel and vestry, and being in a commanding site presents from all sides a very neat finished appearance. Its extreme length including porch and chancel is one hundred feet. The ceiling shows the principal rafters, and is 23 feet from the floor. The seats are very neat in design, being plain benches finished in oak, as are all the interior fittings. The church is heated by one of Gurney & Co's hot air furnaces, and is to be lighted with gas—the main pipes being all laid throughout both church and schoolroom. The contractors were, for the brick work, Mr. Joseph Phillips; for carpenter work, painting, etc, Mr. W. J. Rombough; chancel fittings, Mr. Courtney; the Superintending Architect was J. E. Belcher, Esq., C. E., Peterborough. The work reflects great credit on all concerned in it, being well done, in good taste and thoroughly executed.

The gifts which the Church has received deserves more than a passing notice. First appears a richly stained glass window in the church, being a memorial of the late Rev. M. Burnham, the father and founder of the parish, and the gift of a friend of the family. The design is very appropriate and consists of the three Evangelists, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John, being the names of the three churches in this locality with which Mr. Burnham had connections. Then the Ladies' Aid Society presented a beautiful font costing $40, and all the fittings, cushions, etc. for the church, with the exception of the carpet, the cost of which was undertaken conjointly by a lady from Peterborough and one in Ashburnham. The pulpit—which is a perfect gem—is the gift and workmanship of a member of the congregation: a tradesmen, who devoted his spare hours for months to this good work. The Sunday School children presented the Bell—manufactured by Meneely & Co., Troy, and bearing a suitable inscription.

And now with this long introduction let us set before our readers an account of the opening services. At the early hour of nine o'clock the Incumbent joined in Holy Matrimony two members of his flock, and afterwards in accordance with a time honored custom presented the bride and bridegroom with a well bound and excellent copy of the Holy Bible—this being the first marriage solemnized in the church. At 9.30 a. m. the rite of Baptism was administered to five infants and one adult, and one person was publicly received into the church. At 11 the usual morning prayer was said by the Incumbent, the Anti-Communion Service by the Rev. V. Clementi and a sermon eloquent and appropriate was preached by the Bishop of Toronto. The vast congregation—numbering about five hundred—listened with great attention to the earnest and impressive words and important lessons which His Lordship delivered from the text. "My house shall be called the house of prayer." Afterwards many remained to partake of the Holy Eucharist, and with full hearts joined in singing for the first time within these sacred walls the 'Gloria in Excelsis. At 3 p. m. a Confirmation Service was held at which thirty-seven persons received 'the laying on of hands,' and solemnly confessed Christ before men in the Scriptural and Apostolic way. They were addressed in fervent words by the Bishop, who expressed his high gratification at finding so many presenting themselves for that holy ordinance, although only eleven months had passed since the same rite had been administered to an equal number. Nearly all of the newly confirmed remained for their first communion, making a total of one hundred communicants throughout the day. At 7 p. m. evening prayer was said by the Rev. W. C. Allen, the Lessons read by the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Incumbent, and a sermon preached by Rural Dean Allen. The masterly manner in which for over three-quarters of an hour the preacher riveted the attention of the vast audience, the clear and ready utterance of every word, the apt arguments and illustrations, the fluent forcible language—all proved Mr. Allen to be a preacher of more than ordinary abilities, and made some few regret that his subject was not a more interesting and practical one At all three services the Church was crowded, over fifteen hundred persons having been present throughout the day. The collections on behalf of the building fund amounted to over $85. Thus ended a day which will long be remembered in the Village of Ashburnham. We heartily congratulate the Clergyman and his people on their success.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—In looking over the EXAMINER of September 22nd, my attention was drawn to the letter headed "The School Board and its champion Mr. Lech, designed as an answer to my letter of Sept. 13th, in which your correspondent "a Councillor" charges me with not having answered his questions. If I have omitted anything it is with regard to the Model School, with which "a Councillor" seems to be disgusted and would make the public believe that this has added another burden of expense to the already high tax. That this is only a trial for the remainder of the year with no additional expense, as no extra teacher has been employed, nor salary raised "a Councillor" must be aware of. The same Model School will be discontinued after that is perceived, if the same is obnoxious to the public, or should prove unsatisfactory for what it was intended. Your correspondent "a Councillor has acted with imprudence and rather bad taste, when he uplifts a man with no pretension for ambition to such an elevated position as to proclaim him champion of the School Board! I feel, I must confess, rather a little flattered that the Board will recognize my services as such and vote at the next meeting a mark of distinction for me, and if this is the beginning for a newly elected School Trustee, no doubt a bright future is yet in store for me. If I am groping in the dark only with a Councillor, I must recognize some qualities of his, that he is something like the Russians in Turkey, who make up the fare without their hosts, and well can he display boldness behind his three story mountain "a Councillor," but the mere boldness of a dog who tries to bite and goes bitten out of the fight deserves no pity! Plain facts will always go for the best proofs against assertions of an ignoramus, as my expressed views in the local papers, as well as in the Toronto Globe has found universal favour with the public. If "a Councillor" has any recollection I will remind him of an article over my own signature, and addressed to the Editor of the Review, Dr. Poole, subject: "Compulsory School Education," explaining how beneficent a problem it has worked out in the schools in Prussia, which system has since become law for this country. As another proof I will refer "a Councillor" to another letter of more recent date, some four years ago, and appearing in the Review over my own signature and headed "Results of nine years teaching in our Public Schools." I do not know by what evidence "a Councillor" arrives at the conclusion, that "Mr. Lech as a newly elected Trustee can hardly appreciate the gravity of his posit on:. Is it that the writer neglects the education of his own large family! If not, what then? What further proof would "a Councillor" require whether I do or do not appreciate the gravity of my position as a School Trustee, but something I do not fully comprehend and this is my assigned position as champion of the School Board, and a few lessons would not be amiss, if they would be had by "a Councillor." But alas, where am I to land now?

I will fall foul with a Councillor if I mix up school matters with such irrevalent stuff as pigs and geese! What is the use in waxing warm over a subject so natural, and of such importance. Is it so unimportant as rather not refer to such matters at all! When one body of men elected assumes the duties in the education of the children, and another body elected assumes the duties of passing By-laws on such irrevalent matters as pigs and geese, and the general welfare of the town, I say the latter, no matter how irrevalent they may appear, are as important as the former, and the public has a right to demand that their By-laws are something for what they were intended, and not so much waste paper for which the ratespayers bear the expenditure. Now if that is the solution of the questions I raised in my last letter, that a Councillor can give the public—"that the pounds are there, and the public may drive in the pigs themselves." You may just as well dismiss the police and all connected with it. Why! Is it not enough to build gaols! Let every one on whom the crime is committed arrest the criminal and bring him to gaol. I am almost inclined to believe that "a Councillor" fattens a few pigs on the commons at the public expense, hence his advice to the public. The charge against me comes home to roost that "a Councillor" hardly comprehends the gravity of his own position, or else he would not insault the public with such an advice. Has he really pondered over his situation? Suppose "a Councillor" would set us an example to drive pigs to the pound, and the owner of the pigs would come up, tap him on the shoulder, and say, "Hollos, Mr. Councillor, are you going to steal my pigs?" The sequel of the matter would be, if "a Councillor" would not desist in his attempt he might be punished himself, not by the pig, but by its owner. What an absurdity of advice to get up a respectable petition signed to enforce the by-laws. There are plenty of men idle, and who receive charity in winter, and plenty of pigs on our streets, where out of the proceeds of impounding, two men could have a handsome salary. What about my other questions, where an officer is appointed and his duties are neglected?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in inserting this letter,

I remain yours,
W. LECH

Central Exhibition.—At Lindsay, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 2nd, 3rd and 4th. ($3,50) offered in premiums.

Selling Liquor after Hours.—J. B. Dunn, of Ennismore, was fined $20.00 and costs, for selling liquor after hours, on the 8th inst.

If "Ditto" will call and explain two or three little matters in reference to his communication we may publish it in our next issue.

We are always thankful for local news, and those in possession of facts suitable for this department are invited to send them in at any time.

Theatrical.—The Lindsay Opera House has been engaged by Mrs. Morrison of the Grand Opera House, Toronto, during the Central Exhibition there.

Why is it that so few men have handsome chins? Is it because they give all their time and attention to the cultivation of cheek? Hence Dr. O'Sullivan's cheeky effusion in last weeks Review.

His Worship the Mayor may be expected to issue a proclamation at any time, calling in all straw hats until next may; and remember that Mr. S. Hyman is still in the hat business, with all the latest at less.

The Weather.—Now is the time when anyone can get a first-class cold at slight expense, one that will take months to get rid of. Proper attention to clothing will at this season save heavy Doctor's bills.

Boating Club.—The Peterborough Boating Club hold their regular monthly meeting on Monday next, at the Boat House, at 7.30 p.m., when, among other business, the report of the Regatta Committee will be read.

A Convention.—A Convention will be held in the Good Templars' Hall, Peterborough, on Saturday 29th inst., to discuss the time of submitting the Dunkin Act in the county. A large number of delegates are expected to be present.

Mrs. Youmans will return to Peterborough in a short time and spend a week in town and several places in the county. She has promised if possible to visit Norwood, Keene, Nassau and Lakefield. Due notice of the time of each will be given.

By keeping your attention fixed on the advertisements in our columns you will learn what merchants carry on their business in the right style, and sell the best goods. If a man has a good stock he is sure to let the public know something about it.

Sudden Death.—About two weeks ago Mr Joseph J. Sproule, son of Joseph Sproule, Esq., was taken ill of Typhoid Fever, up to Tuesday his physician considered him improving, but contrary to expectations, he died yesterday morning. The funeral takes place to-day at three o'clock.

Postponement.—Owing to the death of Mr. J. J. Sproule, who has been a member of Friendship Temple, I. O. G. T., the entertainment advertised for this evening, in the Good Templars' Hall, has been postponed until Wednesday, the 3rd October, at the same place and hour. Tickets already purchased will be good for the latter date.

Rifle Match.—The Peterborough Rifle Association match will take place on the range on Monday and Tuesday, the 8th and 9th of October. There will be prizes to the amount of $300 given. This is open to every person in the county, both for the match and the one of the range during the year for those who become members of the Association. Members fee $1.00.

"What everybody says must be true," is an old adage of respectable antiquity. Similarly one would think that what everybody knows need not be told. Yet it has been stated that Dr. O'Sullivan "had a tonic" and had not entirely recovered when he penned so many misstatements as appeared over his signature in last weeks Review. Never mind, Doctor, we won't tell anybody.

Sabbath School Association. The fourteenth provincial convention for Ontario and Quebec will be held in the Norfolk st. Methodist church, Guelph, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 9th, 10th, and 11th October. Every School of 50 scholars, or under, is entitled to send one delegate, and an additional delegate for every fifty scholars above that number, but not to exceed four from any school.

Assessment. The Toronto Telegram says: "The incomes of all Dominion officials, including the judiciary, are being assessed this year, right to assess being based on the recent decision of Chief Justice Richards. This, it is expected, will increase the tax revenue of the city by some $1,500." How is it in this town? If Judge Ross's judgement is sustained it will make quite a difference in the assessment returns of the country.

A Theatrical Company bearing the high sounding title of the "Royal Star Dramatic Co." and putting forth the distinguished English tragedienne, Miss Sophie Miller, as the principal attraction, played at Port Hope two nights a short time ago, and decamped on Sunday, in a very mean manner, without paying any of their bills. The Port Hope Times says: the manager of the Company is J. R. Spackman, and he is no doubt a "bona beat," worthy of a place in any rogue's gallery.

The citizens of Lakefield and surrounding country are advised that Mr. W. J. Wallace has returned from the Montreal market where he has been for the past week purchasing his Fall and winter stock. The stock is larger than at any former season and has been bought at the closest figures from the best wholesale houses in the trade, and I am now fully prepared to give those who patronize me the very best value for their money. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38-2in.

Court News.—County court term commences on Monday, October 1st. County court sittings, trial of causes without a jury, commences on Monday at 11 a.m. The December sittings of the County Court will be held on the first Tuesday of December instead of the second Tuesday as formerly. Court of Assize commences on Tuesday, 4th of October, before his Hon. Mr. Justice Wynne. Those concerned would do well to make a note of it, as the law has been changed and a proclamation issued.

Chancery Sittings.—(Before Hon. Vice-Chancellor Proudfoot.) This court opened on Friday last. There were only two cases settled.

DUNBAR vs. CONSUMERS PETROLEUM AND MARMORA RAILWAY AND MINING COMPANY.—Plaintiff claimed recompense for land taken up by railway. Judgment reserved.

BURNHAM vs. GORHAM.—This case arose out of an ejectment suit brought by the plaintiff against the defendant. Judge decreed to be deferred to the master to find out the amount due to the plaintiff, with leave for the defendant to pay inside of six months.

Auction Sales.—Haggart Bros. will sell at the following places, and on the days mentioned:

ON MONDAY, the 24th of October, the entire Farm Stock, Implements, Household Furniture, &c., of A. Fazzitt, lot No. 2, in the 1st Con. of Dummer, at the hour of 1 o'clock. Sale without reserve.

On the Market Square, on Saturday, the 29th September, the Farm Stock, &c., of Mr. Patrick Kane, of Otonabee. Sale at 11 a.m. sharp.

ON MONDAY the 12th of October, the house and lot belonging to Mr. John Rickerby, on Sherbrook street, in the town of Peterborough. Sale on the premises at 2 p.m.

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a Womens' Temperance Union, was held in the Good Templars' Hall, at 3 p.m. on Saturday, the 22nd inst., when the following officers were appointed: President, Mrs. Flavelle; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Stratton and Mrs. Fitzgerald; Treasurer, Mrs. Maxwell Hall; Secretary, pro tem, Mrs. Spencer Jones; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Paxton; Executive Committee, Mrs. Heathrs and Mrs. Nesbitt. The association purpose holding its meetings weekly, at 3.30 p.m. on Wednesday in the Good Templars' Hall. All ladies interested in the progress of the temperance cause are most cordially invited to attend.

Temperance.—Temperance meetings have been held in town every evening for a week except Monday evening, Mrs. Youmans addressing the people each evening. Bradburn's large hall was crowded every night, and on Tuesday evening several hundred people had to go away for want of even standing room. Her addresses were of the very highest order, convincing and unanswerable, and strongly marked by a truly Christian spirit. Mrs. Youmans is undoubtedly without an equal in this work. Already over 2,700 persons have signed the pledge, and the interest in the meetings is daily increasing—as is evident from the numbers who flock to them.

Forestalling.—The following from the Kingston Whig is applicable to this town:—The fun in official circles now-a-days is confined to the market square, where the hucksters and police and special detective forces spend their time in dodging one another, and indulging in acts of expertness. It is not a matter of what is or is not law—indeed it would baffle old Kniok to tell what is law, so far as it is contained in the musty records of the Corporation; but the matter has resolved into a question of which is the smartest, the violators or the defenders of the the regulations as they stand, and we shall calmly contemplate the result, ready to bet our little all that the hucksters will win."

C. T. A. U. of Ontario. The attention of the various Catholic temperance organisations is invited to the fact that the fourth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Ontario, to be held in Cobourg, on Tuesday, the 9th day of October next. The holding of such convention in so noble a cause should induce a largely increased representation at its sitting, and not leave as heretofore the burden of advancing the cause of temperance on the several societies already affiliated. We trust the organizations throughout Ontario will take the matter in hand at once and send notice of their intention to be represented to the Secretary. All communications to his address, Box 809, Toronto P. O., will, without doubt, receive his prompt attention.

Beautiful Show Windows.—An exchange has the following: "There is considerable custom gaining in popularity among our business men of beautifying show windows. Elegant and unique specimens of workmanship and other articles are so displayed as to heighten the attraction of stores, and arrest the attention of passers-by. This fashion serves to please the eye and cultivate the taste, and is referred to in the belief that it will be more generally adopted. The more inviting an establishment looks from the sidewalk, the more likely the spectator is to enter it. Again handsome arrays of things of interest in show windows produce a favourable impression upon strangers, who almost insensibly form a higher opinion of the people of the town than they otherwise would.

The 57th Battalion of Volunteers.—This fine body of men have just completed their annual drill and were reviewed on Tuesday last. The men although deficient in some companies as regards numbers, nevertheless presented a soldierlike appearance. The manner they went through the review exercises was creditable to both officers and men. Lieut.-Colonel Poole, an able and efficient officer, was in command. We are glad to notice that, following the example set by the cavalry, the batallion attended divine service at the English Church en masse on Sunday last. Mr. Croft supplied the officers mess during the drill, and was complimented by Lieut.-Colonel Strausbenzie for the very efficient manner he performed this duty.

T. Dolan & Co. By referring to our advertizing columns it will be seen that this popular establishment is making preparations for doing a heavy Fall and Winter business. The gentlemen composing the firm are well known in and around Peterborough, and have always been noted for their strict attention to the wants of their patrons, and for their gentlemanly and affable manner with all who have come in contact with them. Mr. Dolan when in Montreal found goods so wonderfully cheap this season that he was induced to purchase a much larger stock than usual, consequently bargains will be the order of the day. The gents' furnishing department is complete, and it is their intention to keep in this establishment all the the latest novelties of the season, and replenish from week to week to keep up with the styles, so that gents purchasing can be assured of obtaining the most recent additions to the world of fashion. Purchasers would find it to their advantage to call and see for themselves, and read their advertisement in another column.

The Grand Auld Songs O' Scotland. The celebrated Fairbairn Family, Scotish vocalists, who appeared in some seven years ago in the Music Hall, and received such a grand reception, will give another of their entertainments in the Opera House, on Monday and Tuesday evenings next, 1st and 2nd of October. The programme is an excellent one, and those who delight to hear the "Bonny Songs o' Scotland," with historical descriptions, can spend a pleasant evening by patronizing the Fairbairn family. The Gouverneur Times of New York says: The concert by the Fairbairn Family Scotch vocalists, at Academy Hall, last evening, gave satisfaction and delight to all present. It was evident from the warm applause given to nearly every feature of the performance. The charming airs and quaint songs of Scotland were rendered in a spirited manner, and the singing was excellent. Mr. Fairbairn appeared in Highland dress, and introduced each song with historical descriptions that were very instructive, and also related many incidents and anecdotes of Scottish life that were interesting and amusing. The entertainment was in every respect a pleasing one, and deserving of liberal patronage

Excursion to Toronto. The excursion from Montreal to Toronto and Niagara Falls, on Tuesday, October 2nd, arranged by W. S. Williams, under the auspices of the I. O. of Good Templars, presents opportunities to all classes of combining business and pleasure. The Central Fairs meet on the 2nd October and continue one week at the City of Hamilton and Town of Guelph. The proportions of these fairs rank next, if they do not equal, the Provincial Exhibition, and a visit will assuredly prove valuable to every agriculturist. Merchants can at a small cost visit the trade sales in Toronto during the first week in October. Others can visit friends or otherwise amuse themselves in and around Toronto, where the attractions are always great. The excursion train is timed to leave Port Hope at 4.15 p.m., arriving in Toronto at 7 p.m. Those desiring to visit Niagara Falls can take the steamers "City of Toronto," or "Southern Belle," at 7 a.m. on Wednesday morning, the 3rd October. For full particulars we refer our readers to the advertisement on the 2nd page. Tickets good for 10 days, for sale at T. Menzies. Fare from Peterborough to Toronto and return $3.70; to Niagara Falls and return $3.70.

Capt. George Wright, of Port Hope, has received the following letter from Messrs. Calvin & Breck, the extensive ship builders and merchants of Kingston. The lesson it contains is suggestive:

GARDEN ISLAND, Ont.,
Sept. 19th, 1877.

Capt. Geo. Wright, Port Hope, Ont.:

DEAR SIR.—In reply to your favour of the 7th inst., we would say we have done business here for the past 40 years, and during this period have never allowed a glass of liquor to be sold here. This is an incorporated village, population a little over 1,000; and we flatter ourselves that our people are in as comfortable circumstances as any village in Canada. We have never had to send anybody to the Poor House, Gaol or Penitentiary and we attribute our good luck in this respect entirely to enforcing of the temperance or prohibition law, which our Mr. Calvin inaugurated on his first commencing business here. We have no policemen, and even a constable—their services not being required. There are some 65 vessels trading here, besides several steamers, and notwithstanding this, we have had very few accidents and the few we have had happened principally by drowning when the poor fellows were on the way from Kingston or Wolf Island, where grog could be obtained. We wish you success in your attempt to put away the temptation from your people.

Yours truly,
CALVIN & BRECK.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening. His Worship the Mayor in the chair, and all the Councillors present.

MINUTES CONFIRMED.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From E. Green, asking the Council to attend to the case appealed from the Police Magistrate by Mr. C. Stapleton for breach of the market by-law.—Referred to the Finance Committee with power to advise.

From Miss Isabella Roger, Secretary of the Protestant Home, stating that they could not keep the Valois boy's any longer; the Council having promised to pay their board, which had not been done.—Received.

From W. H. Moore and others, asking to have the sidewalk raised opposite Mrs. Hutchinson's and lowered opposite Mr. Bakewell's.—Referred to the Street Inspector.

From the widow of the late T. Sullivan, aged 87, asking for a small weekly allowance.—Referred to the Charity Committee to act.

From T. Bradburn, asking the Council to strike a grade on the corner of London and Stewart street, as he was about erecting buildings on the corner of the same; and also drawing the attention of the Council to the drainage of Stewart street.—Referred to the Street Inspector.

From Geo. A. Cox, asking the Council to continue the sidewalk on Park street to Charlotte street.—Referred to the Street Inspector.

From E. McCarthy, asking for a license to sell meat on Park street.—Granted.

From W. W. Johnston, Secretary of St. Paul's Church, asking on behalf of that body for the widening of the sidewalk about three feet, south and west of the church.—Referred to the Street Inspector.

ACCOUNTS.

An account from the Convent for $25.46 was referred to the Finance Committee.

DUNKIN BILL.

Mr. Stratton addressed the Council in reference to the Dunkin Bill, and stated that it was not his intention to petition the Council to submit the By-law, as the Statute allowed the Clerk to publish it if signed by the necessary number of ratepayers.

GRAVELLING REID STREET.

Moved by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That the Street Inspector be instructed to gravel Reid street in rear of St. Andrew's church.—Carried.

WATER STREET OPENING.

Mr. Dumble, Chairman of the committee appointed to investigate the Water st. opening, reported as follows:

The Committee appointed to consider the application of Leon Dion and others for the opening of Water street south of King street beg leave to report, that after careful examination of the original plan of Peterborough and the discription in the Patent from the corner of the John Brown Mill reserve, they are of opinion that there is a road reservation along the bank of the river between Wolf and King streets; your committee are unable to say as to what extent this reserve has been washed away by the river; they therefore recommend that the Council direct a Surveyor to measure and stake off the reservation before any action be taken in the matter.

Mr. Smith moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Cahill,—That the following words be added to the report:—"That a surveyor be instructed to stake out the reservation along the Otonabee River from Hunter Street to King Street: expense not to exceed ten dollars."

The point of order was raised by Mr. Rutherford to the amendment as it entailed an expenditure of money.

From Edmison & Wood, Solicitors for Mr. H. Calcutt, offering $3,000 for the portion of Water street now occupied by Mr. Romaine.

After a lengthy discussion in which Messrs. Cahill, Smith and Dumble took part, the report was received and adopted.

SURVEYING WATER STREET.

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Millar,—That Mr. Stewart be instructed to survey and stake off the reservation or road along the edge of the River Otonabee from King Street to Smith Street.

Mr. Rutherford raised the point of order and the motion was not put before the Council.

REFUNDING OF $2.00.

Moved by Mr. Baptie, seconded by Mr Dumble,—That the application of Messrs Edmison & Wood, for a refund of $2.00 be complied with, and that the Treasurer be directed to pay them two dollars.—Lost.

GAS LAMPS.

Moved by Mr. Baptie, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That the petition of J. F. Dennistoun and others and C. Ormond and others, asking for gas lamps, be and is hereby granted, that the committee of Fire, Water and Gas be instructed to locate said lamps.

Mr. Cahill raised the point of order. The motion was not put.

VALOIS BOYS.

Moved by Mr. Paterson, seconded by Mr. Rountree,—That the keeping of the Valois boys be paid to the Peterborough Protestant Home, and that Mr. Beavis get a suitable stopping place for them to board in the future.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill gave notice that he would move at the next meeting to give effect to a resolution of the Council passed on the 30th day of December, 1875, in reference to the roadway around the Little Lake.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Paterson,—That the Clerk request the Midland Railway Company to pay the interest or damages past due to parties on Bethune street.—Carried.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Dumble,—That whereas the School Trustees have recently determined to establish a Model School in connection with our present school system, and whereas in order to effectually carry out the provisions of the By-law regulating the same, additional expenditure will necessarily be entailed, and add considerably to a taxation already so heavy as to be felt by many to be onerous, and whereas the amount expended for high school purposes appears to be large as compared with the expenditure for the same purpose in other towns of like population. Be it therefore resolved that a special committee be appointed with instructions to consider the whole matter as regards school taxation, the relative proportion of the High and Common school tax, the cost of the proposed Model School, and how and upon whom the same is to be levied, and to make such recommendations as the said committee think proper as to the propriety of separating the two school boards, the limiting of the cost of the high school to amount necessary to be provided by statute and such other suggestions as may seem advisable to the said committee; committee to consist of Messrs Cahill, Dumble and Rutherford.—Carried.

Mr. McLeod addressed the Council in reference to a case that he had with the Market Clerk: viz., wanting to charge him tolls for the putting of Implements on the sidewalk in rear of his shop in Mr. Bradburn's Block.

The Council were of the opinion that the Clerk could do so under the Market By-law and the agreement between the Commissioners and Mr. Bradburn.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

The Text-Book for the Campaign.

"An Appeal to the Christian Public against the Liquor Traffic, and in behalf of the Dunkin Act."—We refer to this pamphlet again, because of the present temperance movement in our midst. We believe the author brings the whole case fairly and forcibly before the public. Upwards of two thousand copies have already been circulated throughout Ontario; and its distribution doubtless in a great measure contributed to the large majority for the Act in the Counties of Northumberland and Durham. It has been most favorably received by the Press, both Dunkin and Anti-Dunkin. The Toronto Globe says:—"This Pamphlet contains an admirable and complete discussion of the ground covered by the Dunkin Act controversy. Its circulation cannot fail to do good here, (in Toronto,) where the contest is now at its hottest. The prosecutors of the by-law cannot do better than assist in circulating a work so well calculated to aid them in the conflict." The Woodstock Review, (Anti-Dunkin,) says:—"Mr. McKay makes a strong case. He puts his points very fairly, and the pamphlet will be found valuable to those who wish to inquire thoroughly into the vexed question of the Dunkin Bill."—Single copies of this Appeal may be procured from the bookstores, Peterborough.

LAKEFIELD "NEWS" vs. REV. R. B. ROWE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Will you favor by inserting the enclosed in your valuable journal:—

To the Hon. Editor of the News.

SIR,—a. You must be a vain man to have your name in print as editor if you depend on No. 4 for editorials.

b. If your late correspondent said nothing what made you so mad as to foam at the mouth like that? You ignored the rules of common decency. Ah! John Barleycorn often blows the cork. Dame rumor says that John served a Parson very bad a few days ago at a certain nuptial feast.

c. Very likely Mr. R. never expected by protest or anything else to change your opinion, and circumstances prove that argument is thrown away sometimes, as is the case of the old Quaker—said he:—"Thine arguments are good, but convince me that I don't like it." Liking it must be a powerful motive. Surely it was no harm to state that at least a portion of the people could not swallow such a dose of Temperance (?) without remarking on its secular taste. Tertaliomie—terrae.

d. You say that "loud and sanguine are important words in Mr. R's vocabulary." Well, he evidently says what he means and means what he says, "publicly and fearlessly."

e. What you call "the moral and spiritual standard" as taught by Scriptures on the question at issue is a libel on the Word of God. In the Bible there are 130 warnings against wine as an unmixed evil—as a dreadful curse, and as A FITTING EMBLEM OF THE WRATH OF GOD. If the Bible said nothing about who had woe, &c., (see PROV. XXIII, 29 32) surely observation and experience ought to be sufficient testimony against the traffic of strong drink. You advocate the traffic, and yet in your effort of advocacy you contradict yourself, while the entire policy resembles the dog in the manger.

f. "Those articles sheltered by the wing of the sanctum" led you to confess your difficulty, viz:—"What this means it is difficult to say." This is a touching passage and appealing to one's sympathy. It is not fair we know to strike one man for another, but then if parties are agreed to have it in that way there is no help for it.

g. Your magnifying over the letter "m" may have arisen from a mistake of yours, and supposing it was otherwise, you very evidently strained at a gnat and in the cause of your advocate swallowed a camel.

h. You testify against yourself by saying repeatedly that "Mr. Rowe failed to say anything," and then confessed how tangible his remarks were. You made their pungency the ground of your apology in doing your voracious "level best"—as the Yankees say—to slaughter right off. But there your mistakes may have arisen from "an uncultivated and beclouded brain."

i. Should your offender "take the repo or river for the purpose of suicide" we advise you to pass on with your important liturgical duties without noticing his demise. You might give the wrong name—or sex—or circumstance, and so mislead the public, as blunders worse than that occur in the local department of the "News."

Perhaps your late correspondent is more concerned over the sobriety and salvation of his people than about the technicalities of Syntax, and if so he then deserves commendation. As to your remark about people being "compelled to hear him, you tempt your readers to infer from it that you are far more familiar with "bar-room habits" than church going.—that you don't know bett.r.

k. Your being "tempted to tighten the string around his neck" adviseth you to seek counsel from the history of Haman. (See ESTHER VII. 10.)

Respectfully submitted,
INDEPENDENT.

TOWN COUNCIL VS. SCHOOL BOARD.

A Councillor vs. Mr. Loch—Pigs vs. Pounds.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—The above captions cover, I think, the ground of the controversy now waging between "a Councillor" and "Mr. Lech," and although I am in accord with my colleague, and endorse his sentiments on school matters, I deem it only a matter of justice to Mr. Lech and the Council to state that "Councillor" is misinformed as to the position of pigs, the Council in relation to the pigs, and in order that the public mind may be properly enlightened on this important subject. I request the favour of your publishing the enclosed by-law. "Councillor's" ignorance of the existence of this by-law shows that he is as ill qualified to fill the position of a Councillor to which he has aspired as he asserts Mr. Loch to be, to occupy a seat at the School board. I therefore suggest that these gentlemen change places. As a Councillor, Mr. Lech would do good service in seeing that the Chief Constable efficiently discharges that portion of his duty which relates to pig pounding, and as a champion he would be invaluable. We badly need a champion of Mr. Lech's calibre, one who is not affraid to spend money lavishly and promises to spend more, while at the same time "Councillor" would make a model Trustee if at the board he carried out the principles which he has advocated.

Yours, &c.,
COUNCILLOR No. 2.

The following is a copy of the by law, which is referred to, making it the duty of the Chief Constable to pound pigs.

By-law No. ccxxiv. A By-law to prevent the running at large of Hogs and Pigs, in the Town of Peterborough.

Passed 27th July 1868.

Whereas it is necessary to prevent the running at large of Hogs and Pigs in the Town of Peterborough.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough enacts as follows:—

1. That from and after the passing of this By-law it shall be unlawful for Hogs or Pigs to run at large within the limits of the said town.

That from and after the passing of this by law every owner of Hogs or Pigs or of a Hog or Pig, who shall allow the same to run at large within the limits of the Town of Peterborough, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty or fine therefor of fifty cents and costs, for each hog or pig running at large as aforesaid, to be recovered by distress of his goods and chattels, if not sooner paid, and that for the purposes of this by-law the possessor of such hogs or pigs shall be taken to be and shall be deemed the owner thereof.

3. That this By-law shall go into operation immediately upon the passing thereof.

4. It shall be the special duty of the Chief Constable to see this By-law carefully carried out. But in the case of a prosecution by any person or persons other than the Chief Constable, the whole of the said fine shall go to and be received by such person or persons so prosecuting as aforesaid.

JAMES EDWARDS, W. H. SCOTT,
Town Clerk. Mayor.
Peterboro, July 27, 1868.

Quite a number left here on Monday for the Provincial Exhibition at London. The number of entries are in excess of the entries at any Provincial Exhibition previously held in Canada.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—The resolution with regard to school matters passed by the Council at last meeting must have been intended to make capital by certain members of the Council at the expense of the School Board. I may say that I have as a member of the Board, elected by Ward No. 4, last January, done the best I could to discharge the duties of the office and I believe that the Board is composed of as competent and attentive a set of men as can be selected from the Town. It is a pity the Council should travel outside their own duties which I fancy are sufficiently arduous for them. If the course I have pursued is not satisfactory to the ratepayers to whom I am responsible, I shall be happy to resign.

Yours truly,
JAS. F. DENNISTOUN.

C. A. WELLER,
Clerk of the Peace, County of Peterborough.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIC DOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machine.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, B. W. Gregory, Fred Fagel and L. D. F. Poore, Centennial Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best Sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W. the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Wm. McCullach, J. G. Huston B. Ternan, Mrs. Dr. Sinclair, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W. "It is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machine properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from 1 of an inch thick down to gauze. also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W. will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ophthalmia, Tumors of the Lachrymal Glands, Films, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. Rheumous and Old Chronic Sores, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE-SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PETTIT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover to be surrounded with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

BY PROF. H. RUSSEL.

Is it to gain a kingly art?
Or board up jewels from the mind.
To wear the laurels of renown
That around the hero's brow doth twine?

Is it to gain by subtle art
Wealth, place or power in the state?
Or captivate the public heart
With syren eloquence ornate?

Is it to circumvent the globe
And garland legendary lore.
Earth's hidden mysteries to probe.
And nature's untrod realms explore?

Is it in science, letters, art,
That toiling genius wins the prize?
Or searching with the great Descarte
The boundless depths of yonder skies!

Is it in the fashions giddy maze
To dazzle the bewildering throng,
To surfeit life in pleasure's way
With harp and dance, timbrel and song?

Nay, none of these—nor all combined,
Can fill the cravings of the heart.
An aching void they leave behind
For something they cannot impart.

Daggers and thorns infest the crowd.
The hero's laurels drip with gore;
Destruction blots out far renown.
The care-worn rich envy the poor.

Success is found in self-control:
In lifting up our fellow man:
In purity of life and soul.
In working out what Christ began.

'Tis found in words and actions kind.
Through every day—to every one;
In cultivating heart and mind,
In every duty nobly done.

This is success—however small.
Humble, abused may be our sphere.
God rates us higher than them all
Of royal birth, but mean career.

Thus shall our conscience rest by day.
Thus our repose be sweet at night:
Thus earth be blessed by our brief stay
Reflecting rays of heavenly light.

From the Globe.

The attention of our citizens is not now called to this enterprize for the first time. Over and over again we have pointed out its merits, and the great desirability, not to say absolute necessity, of securing its construction if Toronto is not to run the risk of losing her relative commercial importance. We have repeatedly demonstrated, what every business man in the city knows from daily experience, that the growth and prosperity of the city is intimately connected with the development of the railway system of which it is the centre. Whatever Toronto might have become without her railways she would unquestionably have been less populous and wealthy to-day had even the narrow guage railways been left unbuilt. The districts through which they run have developed with a rapidity greater than the most sanguine anticipated, and Toronto has become the emporium for the increased traffic. Places that were only struggling villages before the roads were built have grown into thriving towns, and villages have sprung up in places, which, prior to the building of the railways, never showed any symptoms of becoming centres of population at all. Every increase of population in a new and partially peopled locality abounding in natural resources means an increase of wealth, and every increase of wealth in the surrounding country means an increase of trade and commercial importance for cities which are suitably located and have a sufficient amount of enterprize to secure the increased volume of traffic. There are always certain directions in which trade inclines to go, but it is frequently not at all difficult to divert it from these into others by artifical means. In these days of keen rivalry amongst our cities and traders this is a truth which we cannot afford to overlook.

The present net liability of Toronto on account of aid granted to railway enterprises does not exceed a million and a quarter of dollars; exclusive of the amount invested in the Grand Trunk and Northern, which have repaid themselves indirectly over and over again, it is not more than three-quarters of a million, and in return for the expenditure of this latter amount we have secured the control of the trade of large districts south-west, north-west, and north-east of the city. During the last ten years Toronto has grown in wealth and population with great rapidity, and unquestionably that growth is due mainly, almost exclusively, to the construction of several new lines of railway converging here to a common centre. During this decade the assessed value of the property in the city has increased from twenty-three to forty-eight millions—in other words, has more than doubled—while our population has increased at a very rapid rate. No one who knew Toronto ten years ago and sees it to-day need be told what the character of the improvements is. Immense blocks of wholesale warehouses which had then no existence now fine several of our streets, while great numbers of what were then our finest buildings have been reconstructed in compliance with the demands of increasing trade. Land which could be purchased ten years ago for a trifle can only be bought now at fancy prices. The whole character of our private residences has undergone a change, indicative of the increased prosperity of the business portion of the community. No portion of our city debt has been more wisely incurred or has brought in a speedier or surer return than the sums spent in aiding railways.

At the time when the bonus to the Credit Valley Railway was under discussion we pointed out the relation which that scheme bears to the one now under consideration. We require the Credit Valley not merely for the purpose of making the local traffic of the region it traverses tributary to Toronto, but also for the purpose of affording an independent through connection between this city and the great west. But we require also a similar outlet towards the seaboard. The Grand Trunk is entirely insufficient for the purpose, and even if it were not it would still be extremely desirable to have an air line connection with the capital of the Dominion. By the construction of the proposed road the journey from this city to Ottawa would be very much shortened, and by means of the North Shore Railway to Quebec the detour of the Grand Trunk through the Eastern townships would be avoided. The country through which the Toronto and Ottawa Road is projected is in some parts rough and unsettled; but in others it is well suited for agricultural purposes, while there are in some localities extensive and valuable mineral deposits. Very much of it is as yet entirely without railway communication, and for a part of the way the road will, when built, actually be valuable for colonization purposes.

The city of Ottawa will, to all appearance, contribute largely to the scheme, the intention of the promoters being to submit a by-law for $200,000. Many of the municipalities along the line of route have done all that could fairly be expected of them in the way of granting bonuses, and the rest will no doubt follow suit. All that is now wanted to place the enterprise on a sound basis is that the cities which form its terminus should come forward with liberal support. By so doing they will enable the promoters to lay the scheme before the Legislature in a form which will commend its support. Matters, we are told, have come to a standstill in Ottawa, the object of the delay being to ascertain what Toronto is likely to do. It will not take a long time to find that out, for a proposition will, we believe, be submitted to the Council at an early day. As we have already indicated this is the only railway scheme necessary to the completion of our system, and the last one which we should be asked to aid. This fact, together with the merits of the scheme itself, entitles whatever propositions its promoters may have to make to prompt recognition at the hands of our representatives.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

From the New York Times.

In discussing the methods of restoring to this country the commercial and industrial prosperity it has lost, Mr. David A Wells dwells with irresistable force upon the folly of our present relation towards Canada and the interest we have and the re-establishment of reciprocity. No better illustration of the short-sightedness of our fiscal system, and the inquiry it inflicts upon the people it is supposed to protect, could be desired than that supplied by the condition of our Canadian trade. Everything points to the closest possible intimacy between the two countries. Their affinities are so many and their points of difference so few, that for all the purpose of trade the Republic and the Dominion should be practically one. None of the obstacles that stand in the way of commercial intercourse with South American States are in this instance encountered. No difference of language has to be overcome. We have not to await the development of the means of intercourse, for all ordinary purposes, the principal Canadian railroads are parts of our own system, and save for the provoking presence of Custom officers, the national dividing line would be imperceptible. Moreover, each is already familiar with the business resources and requirements of the other. And despite the hindrances interposed by the ignorances of law-makers, the trade that is carried on is sufficiently large to prove how seriously we suffer from restrictions upon a market

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

BY PROF. H. RUSSEL.

Is it so gain a kingly art?
Or hoard up jewels from the mind,
To wear the laurels of renown
That around the hero's brow doth twine?

Is it to gain by subtile art
Wealth, place or power in the state?
Or captivate the public heart
With syren eloquence ornate?

Is it to circumvent the globe
And garland legendary lore,
Earth's hidden mysteries to probe,
And nature's untrod realms explore?

Is it in science, letters, art,
That toiling genius wins the prize?
Or searching with the great Descarte
The boundless depths of yonder skies?

Is it in the fashions giddy maze
To dazzle the bewildering throng,
To enrtest life in pleasure's way
With harp and dance, timbrel and song?

Nay, none of these—nor all combined,
Can fill the cravings of the heart.
An aching void they leave behind
For something they cannot impart.

Daggers and thorns infest the crowd.
The hero's laurels drip with gore:
Destruction blots out fair renown.
The care-worn rich envy the poor.

Success is found in self-control:
In lifting up our fellow man:
In purity of life and soul,
In working out what Christ began.

'Tis found in words and actions kind.
Through every day—to every one:
In cultivating heart and mind,
In every duty nobly done.

This is success—however small,
Humble, abused may be our sphere.
God rates us higher than them all
Of royal birth, but mean career.

Thus shall our conscience rest by day.
Thus our repose be sweet at night:
Thus earn we blessed by our brief stay
Reflecting rays of heavenly light.

THE TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

From the Globe.

The attention of our citizens is not now called to this enterprize for the first time. Over and over again we have pointed out its merits, and the great desirability, not to say absolute necessity, of securing its construction if Toronto is not to run the risk of losing her relative commercial importance. We have repeatedly demonstrated, what every business man in the city knows from daily experience, that the growth and prosperity of the city is intimately connected with the development of the railway system of which it is the centre. Whatever Toronto might have become without her railways she would unquestionably have been less populous and wealthy to-day had even the narrow gauge railways been left unbuilt. The districts through which they ran have developed with a rapidity greater than the most sanguine anticipated, and Toronto has become the emporium for the increased traffic. Places that were only struggling villages before the roads were built have grown into thriving towns, and villages have sprung up in places, which, prior to the building of the railways, never showed any symptoms of becoming centres of population at all. Every increase of population in a new and partially peopled locality abounding in natural resources means an increase of wealth, and every increase of wealth in the surrounding country means an increase of trade and commercial importance for cities which are suitably located and have a sufficient amount of enterprize to secure the increased volume of traffic. There are always certain directions in which trade inclines to go, but it is frequently not at all difficult to divert it from these into others by artifical means. In these days of keen rivalry amongst our cities and traders this is a truth which we cannot afford to overlook.

The present net liability of Toronto on account of aid granted to railway enterprises does not exceed a million and a quarter of dollars; exclusive of the amount invested in the Grand Trunk and Northern, which have repaid themselves indirectly over and over again, it is not more than three-quarters of a million, and in return for the expenditure of this latter amount we have secured the control of the trade of large districts south-west, north-west, and north-east of the city. During the last ten years Toronto has grown in wealth and population with great rapidity, and unquestionably that growth is due mainly, almost exclusively, to the construction of several new lines of railway converging here to a common centre. During this decade the assessed value of the property in the city has increased from twenty-three to forty-eight millions—in other words, has more than doubled—while our population has increased at a very rapid rate. No one who knew Toronto ten years ago and sees it to-day need be told what the character of the improvements is. Immense blocks of wholesale warehouses which had then no existence now line several of our streets, while great numbers of what were then our finest buildings have been reconstructed in compliance with the demands of increasing trade. Land which could be purchased ten years ago for a trifle can only be bought now at fancy prices. The whole character of our private residences has undergone a change, indicative of the increased prosperity of the business portion of the community. No portion of our city debt has been more wisely incurred or has brought in a speedier or surer return than the sums spent in aiding railways.

At the time when the bonus to the Credit Valley Railway was under discussion we pointed out the relation which that scheme bears to the one now under consideration. We require the Credit Valley not merely for the purpose of making the local traffic of the region it traverses tributary to Toronto, but also for the purpose of affording an independent through connection between this city and the great west. But we require also a similar outlet towards the seaboard. The Grand Trunk is entirely insufficient for the purpose, and even if it were not it would still be extremely desirable to have an air line connection with the capital of the Dominion. By the construction of the proposed road the journey from this city to Ottawa would be very much shortened, and by means of the North Shore Railway to Quebec the detour of the Grand Trunk through the Eastern townships would be avoided. The country through which the Toronto and Ottawa Road is projected is in some parts rough and unsettled; but in others it is well suited for agricultural purposes, while there are in some localities extensive and valuable mineral deposits. Very much of it is as yet entirely without railway communication, and for a part of the way the road will, when built, actually be valuable for colonization purposes.

The city of Ottawa will, to all appearance, contribute largely to the scheme, the intention of the promoters being to submit a by-law for $200,000. Many of the municipalities along the line of route have done all that could fairly be expected of them in the way of granting bonuses, and the rest will no doubt follow suit. All that is now wanted to place the enterprise on a sound basis is that the cities which form its terminus should come forward with liberal support. By so doing they will enable the promoters to lay the scheme before the Legislature in a form which will commend its support. Matters, we are told, have come to a standstill in Ottawa, the object of the delay being to ascertain what Toronto is likely to do. It will not take a long time to find that out, for a proposition will, we believe, be submitted to the Council at an early day. As we have already indicated this is the only railway scheme necessary to the completion of our system, and the last one which we should be asked to aid. This fact, together with the merits of the scheme itself, entitles whatever propositions its promoters may have to make to prompt recognition at the hands of our representatives.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

From the New York Times.

In discussing the methods of restoring to this country the commercial and industrial prosperity it has lost, Mr. David A Wells dwells with irresistable force upon the folly of our present relation towards Canada and the interest we have and the re-establishment of reciprocity. No better illustration of the short-sightedness of our fiscal system, and the inquiry it inflicts upon the people it is supposed to protect, could be desired than that supplied by the condition of our Canadian trade. Everything points to the closest possible intimacy between the two countries. Their affinities are so many and their points of difference so few, that for all the purpose of trade the Republic and the Dominion should be practically one. None of the obstacles that stand in the way of commercial intercourse with South American States are in this instance encountered. No difference of language has to be overcome. We have not to await the development of the means of intercourse, for all ordinary purposes, the principal Canadian railroads are parts of our own system, and save for the provoking presence of Custom officers, the national dividing line would be imperceptible. Moreover, each is already familiar with the business resources and requirements of the other. And despite the

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 4, 1877.

FLATNESS OF THE BIGGEST TORY PIC-NIC.

The Conservative pic-nic in Barrie, on Wednesday of last week, was perhaps the most successful in point of numbers yet held in the interest of the Opposition. This is not to be wondered at, considering the traditional character of the locality, so aptly referred to by Sir John Macdonald in his speech as the "lambs' fold." No wonder he entered Barrie with confidence that large numbers of the faithful would turn out to receive him. The only wonder is that, augmented as it was by the presence of many Reformers, the crowd was not larger. The town and the adjacent country was of course drained of the Conservative population to swell the assemblage; and the quota coming in by trains and other conveyances from the surrounding villages was by no means insignificant. The efforts to secure a crowd might, after all, have been more successful. Everything was done to bring in the Tory population for miles, and schemes beyond the commendable were adopted. Thus in Collingwood the mayor proclaimed a holiday for the express purpose of allowing the citizens to attend to the Conservative pic-nic. Petitions for a like course were presented to Stayner council, but that body was wiser than its Collingwood counterpart.

The speaking was tame—very tame in virtue of an assemblage that might be supposed to be large enough to put unusual animation into the speakers. These men, however, have been doing the oratorical to such an extent lately that with them it has become an old song—a mere matter of the dryest repetition. Even the Mail ceased giving anything but a outline of the speeches at these demonstrations, its manager very properly preferring to fill his paper with good, live news matter rather than with a republication of the same flat platitudes and worn-out scandals, day after day. The great feature of the Barrie Tory demonstration was the address to John A. The whole thing displayed bad taste from beginning to end. Even the congratulation as to health with which it opened, and in which men of all parties could join, was coupled with a clumsy reference to a restoration to power of the deposed Pacific Scandal hero, to which very few could agree, and as if to make the reference more offensive still, the unfortunate Knight (unfortunate in having such maladroit friends), was in the address seized of those elements of statesmanship of which it is now deficient," the "it" being the Dominion Cabinet. The unfortunate and highly partizan idea thus clumsily interjected, leads us to remark that it will be well for the Cabinet and the country that it remain deficient in those elements of statesmanship", which led to Sir John's disgrace and deposition—elements so vividly described by Hon. William Macdougall (who was present) in his pamphlet on the North-West difficulties. The rest of the address is a sad jumble of rhapsody and a reiteration of stale scandals, from the false claim of credit to Sir John for the settlement of the Clergy Reserve and Seigniorial Tenure difficulties to the final burst concerning the 'Standard on the towers of the Federal Capital." Even the name of Mr. Tilley had to be dragged in as a prominent Conservative, though he occupies the non-party portion of Lieutenant-Governor. It, as is generally supposed, Mr. Dalton McCarthy wrote the address, he certainly has no reason to be proud of his work. We do not wonder that Sir John Macdonald spoke in bantering terms of the precious document, which must have been a surprise as well as a sort of wet blanket to his companions. It was a bad address to reply to, and Sir John's ready wit alone helped him out of the unenviable position in which its laboured reading placed him. In spite of the adroit way in which he carried it off, it was pitiful to hear "the Chieftan close with the remark that reference to many subjects alluded to in the address would be deferred till after dinner. I seemed as though he would rebuke a man

"With purpose to be dressed in an opinion
Of wisdom, gravity—profound conceit!
As who should say—I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark."

And as though he would go further and give the advice:—

"Speak what we think this melancholy bait,
For this wise judgment this opinion.
Now, good Antonio, let this wayward babble,
I'll send the rhetorical after dinner."

Altogether it would seem that in spite of favourable weather, and in spite of a large attendance, the whole day's proceedings [illegible] by the ponderous address with which an unfortunate start was made.

The Millbrook U. E. Pic-Nic.

Sir. John A. McDonald, Dr. Tupper, "wandering Willie" and Mr. Plumb, visited Millbrook on Tuesday, and addressed a large number of pic-nickers of the U. E. Conservative party. About 2000 to 2500 men, women, boys, girls and children went to hear the speeches. The village looked its gayest, with banners and arches of ever-green. Mr. R. Staples, of Cavan occupied the chair. Sir. John, Dr. Tupper and Mr. W. McDougal did the speaking. No great excitement, very little applause during the speeches, the crowd being significantly silent, not one burst of applause was given.

News from the seat of war is unchanged.

We see that the Tecumseths B. B. C. of London on Tuesday, defeated the Alleghanies of Penn, by a score of 5 to 2. This victory places the London Club Champions of America. Let it ever be thus.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

We are happy to learn that the temperance movement has made such progress in this vicinity that there is now a probability of the Dunkin Bill being submitted to the people at the polls. It is not surprising, considering how many counties around us have passed this measure, that we in Peterborough, too, should catch the contagion. The evils of an over indulgence in intoxicating drink are so well known, the pernicious influences that emanate from the bar-room are so strong and so far-reaching in their consequences that it is not a question any longer as to whether permitting the traffic in liquor to continue is an evil, but merely a problem as to the best means of ridding ourselves of the scourge with the least wrong to all concerned. How to do so, however, is by no means a query easily answered. On the one side we have a class of men who have invested their all in the liquor business, whose trade has for years been legalised by the statutes of the land, and who complain that it is very severe for the state now suddenly to sweep away their support, throw them and their families once more on the world, and give no remuneration in return. In addition to this, it is urged that the revenue must suffer and that the deficiency must be made good by increased taxation. Another argument which anti-temperance men are in the habit of freely using, is that once introduce the Dunkin Act; once forbid drinking at the bar, or selling liquor in less quanties than five gallons and you transfer drunkenness at once to the homes of the people, and make victims not alone of the husband, or son, or brother, but of the mother and sister likewise and even of the children in that household. These are the principal grounds by which Anti-Dunkinites have justified their opposition in the cities and counties where, the Dunkin Bill has been already submitted to the people. For our part we are willing to admit there is some force in these arguments. We have no individual hostility to tavern keepers. It is not that we love Cæsar less, but that we love Rome more, that we feel called upon to assist in upholding the temperance banner. But in no case can the welfare of the individual stand before the well being of the community. Even if our hotel keepers could show that they would be thrown on the world as the result of the Dunkin Bill becoming law, even if the state were forced to keep them altogether, if the good of the greatest number demanded it, they should be forced to go to the wall. But even if compensation had to be granted them, we believe the closing of their taverns would all leave the people of Peterborough and vicinity gainers by the transaction.

But we do not imagine those gentlemen would be left quite as destitute as they would have us believe. The example which one of our townsmen has nobly shown might be imitated. Whether the Dunkin Bill is passed or defeated, whether it is submitted or not submitted, the inhabitants of this locality require some place at which to stop on their visit to this town. To provide that is perfectly legitimate and harmless, and a trade at which none can cavil. That those requiring it would be unwilling to pay in what we cannot believe of the people of this county. One thing we do trust, that the new temperance house just started will meet with such support from the friends of the movement as to clearly demonstrate that a hotel of that kind can be made a decided success, and thereby encourage more to follow the course of the proprietor who has struck out for himself.

That the revenue would suffer we do not anticipate. There certainly would be less paid in licenses, but the very fact that such licenses can be paid for, and the hotel keeper live and make a profit, proves that the pockets of some one suffers. If the trade in liquor were abolished, if that money which now pays the fees for permission to sell rum and supports a family besides were not so paid there would be more money to expend on clothing and luxuries, the imports would be more, the import duty more, and the aggregate, we believe, quite as large as now. Besides this it cannot be denied a great deal would be saved in magistrates fees and police charges.

Those who think prohibition is what we want are right. But they must remember prohibition can only be won by degrees. If the Dunkin Act is not effective now, legislation can speedily make it so, and in the meantime it forms the only means of testing the feelings of the people in the matter. Let them show they wish legislation by endorsing this, and legislation will speedily follow.

TEMPERANCE.

—On Monday evening Mr. M. Knowlton addressed a large audience in the New Hall Lakefield, on the question of the day, viz. Temperance. Mr. R. A. Strickland occupied the chair. At the close of the address 108 individuals joined the Blue Ribbon Pledge, and a club was organised with Mr. R. A. Strickland as president. Mr. I. Gaibutt Senr., 1st Vice-president and Mr. John Hall second Vice-President. Three meetings have been held in Lakefield and already about one third of the population have joined the movement.

KENH.

Mr. Knowlton spoke in Keene on Tuesday evening to a full house, and at the close of this meeting about 170 joined this movement and Mr. George Read was elected President; Mr. James McNeil, Vice-President; Rev. Mr. McCullough, 2nd Vice-President; Sec., Geo. English; Treasurer, Robert Eason Rev. Mr. McCullough presided.

THE Montreal Grand Jury have brought in "no bill" in the case of Sheehan charged with shooting Haskett.

THE CENTRAL SHOW, LINDSAY.

The agricultural Central Show for Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland and Victoria is being held this year at Lindsay. The Committee has purchased a very suitable piece of ground containing about 8 acres the location is excellent, and the ground all that could be desired. The buildings are erected near the centre, on a nice elevation, while there is a very gentle slope on either side. The whole plot is fenced, and sheds and stables are erected around three sides.

The principle building is well arranged for the object for which it is designed. The committee this year deserves praise for the choice of ground and for the arrangements.

THE SHOW

inside the building was very fair, the articles exhibited being good, but the quantity was not equal to what should be shown in such wealthy, prosperous and fertile counties.

The show of garden vegetables was not large, but what was shown was excellent for this season. Home manufactures not largely represented. Dairy and farm produce was fairly represented, especially grain.

In Cabinet Ware, Harness and Saddlery, Boots and Shoes, the competition was very limited.

In ladies work and fine arts there was a fair display. Mr. Workman, of Peterborough having some very nice paintings in oil on exhibition.

In the printing line both the Post and Warder showed some nice samples of the art preservative of all arts. And it is not disparaging to either competitor to say that the samples of Cards, Circulars and Bill Heads from the Post office were very finely executed indeed. Mr. Romaine showed some superior Book-binding.

OUTSIDE.

The Show of Agricultural Implements was superior, Mr. Peter Hamilton having a very fine display of work in nearly every line manufactured by him. His Broadcast Seeder Sulkey Rake, Threshing Machine, and Power Sawing Machine, and horse and hand power Straw Cutters gang and general purpose Ploughs made a little show themselves.

Mr. Wm. Hamilton showed a very nice stationary Steam Engine, a Garden Engine and Stump Screw.

Messrs. Mowry & Forsyth a splendid Threshing Machine and Horse Power.

J. Whyte & Co., had a nice display of Ploughs and Straw Cutters.

Mr. J. B. Mowry of Lindsay, showed two very finely finished ploughs.

There were entries from the Joseph Hall and other works. But if the exhibit of our Peterborough manufacturers had been removed one half of the show would have been spoiled.

The show of Carriages was very good, many of them very nicely finished.

Mr. Hunter, of Lindsay, showed two very superior hunting canoes that were deservedly admired.

During our visit on Tuesday we could not form an idea of what the show of thorough bred stock might be, as it was to come off on Wednesday, too late for our going to press. On the whole it was believed that the display would be fair. The number of visitors on Wednesday was expected to be large. We hope to be able to give the prize list next week, and perhaps a fuller account of the success of the Show.

ANOTHER TEMPERANCE HOTEL.

(From the Casket)

Among the hundreds signing the temperance pledge at Peterboro, under the successful labors of Mr. Marvin Knowlton, was Mr. John Moloney, the proprietor of the Caisse House, the leading hotel of Peterboro. Mr. Moloney has been for over twenty five years in the liquor business, and becoming convinced that it was wrong he manfully came forward at one of the meetings and took the pledge, publicly stating that he had drank his last dram and sold his last glass. He did not attempt to sell out his license to the balance of the year to some other dealer, but at once resolutely went to work and cleared out his bar of all intoxicants, and had it well furnished with temperance drinks. His hotel is now being conducted on temperance principles at a very serious pecuniary sacrifice to himself, and we hope and trust that he will receive from the public that hearty patronage which his enterprize should command. Remember the Caisse House when you go to Peterboro.

HE "said Messrs. Huntington and "Mills desired to make this country "part of the United States. He had "watched them, and he knew that they "wished to make Canada States of the "American Union." The "He" in question was the Hon. William McDougall, who thus warned the country of the incendiary designs of Messrs. Huntington and Mills, and at the same time reassures the people that he, William McDougall, C. B., has got his eye upon them. Truly, times have changed, since but a few years ago Mr. McDougall accused Sir John of "treason—treason in its widest sense," etc., and Sir John, in Parliament and on the hustings, pointed the finger of scorn at "Look-to-Washington McDougall the Annexationist"! "Misfortune," it is said "makes strange bed-fellows."—Ottawa Free Press.

MR. MCDOUGALL, at Cobourg, said:—"There was no sale of the Pacific "Charter," whereupon the Kingston Whig puts the Conservative Daily News in the witness box, quoting from the latter its denunciation of the Pacific Scandal as "the grandest job "ever perpetrated in the British Empire."

LONDON: 'Twer.—The Mail volunteers the information that when Sir John Macdonald made his celebrated Washington Treaty speech, which is now used as an argument in favor of the United States case, he had "a blister on each of his sides." Now if the Mail would only tell us what Sir John was afflicted with when he signed the Treaty, the history of that unfortunate transaction would be complete.

THE biggest journalistic joke of the season is the Kingston News making the Cobourg Independent's blustering remarks concerning Nicholas Flood Davin, the text for a rhapsodical burst over that late recruits devoted head—devoted to the dire necessities of the Tory party.

A contemporary publishes this suggestive item: We see from the Guelph papers that the Engine Works: that town have advertised for and obtained twenty first-class machinists to work at nights. Business has so much improved that the works have now to be run both day and night—in spite of the fact that Mr. Mackenzie in his hatred of home industries increased the Tory 15 per cent, tariff to 17½ per cent.

THE Mail heads its report of the Toronto pic-nic in North York, "In the Lion's Den." The Mail is always inapt when it has anything to do with Scripture references. In its reference to the Lennox affair it led its readers to the conclusion that Sir John and his body guard were like unto the plagues of Egypt. In the North York reference it recalls to mind the fact that it was the men who accused Daniel whom the "lions had mastery over and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den. The omen is a bad one for Daniel's accusers in this case.—Hamilton Times.

THE I. O. O. F.—The Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., has selected Austin, Texas, for the next annual meeting. The initiations for the past year diminished 10,000, compared with the previous year, and revenue about $250.000. The number dropped for non-payment of dues increased about 5,000? The appeal of M. C. Eames from the Grand Lodge of Illinois was dismissed.

THE G. J. R.—From present appearances this road is doomed to be mixed up in a never-ceasing end of complications. Last week we were led to conclude that all the difficulties with which the enterprise had been surrounded had been settled, and that the work of construction would be hastened to completion as soon as possible. Now there is a hitch, as the present contractor avers that it was only his intention to complete the line from Stirling to Cambellford. A contract in accordance with the proposition made by Mr. Lloyd on behalf of Mr. Pardee was drawn up last night, but at this writing has not been signed. We are informed that because the Government accepted that portion of the line between Belleville and Stirling, the contract should only include the remaining portion of the work.—Belleville Ontario.

What Forty Years of Prohibition Shows.

(A letter from Father Stafford.)

A complete and satisfactory answer to the arguments brought forward by those who oppose the Dunkin Bill, or any other Legislative of a restrictive nature in regard to the liquor traffic:—

By publishing the subjoined extract you will bring before the public a notable instance of the good results of total abstinence. This brief letter from Calvin & Breck ought to be widely circulated:—

Messrs. Calvin & Breck, of Garden Island were recently addressed by Cap. George Wright of Port Hope, as to their opinion of enforced prohibition, and they replied: "We have done business here for the past forty years, and during this period have never allowed a glass of liquor to be sold here. This is an incorporated village—population a little over 1,000—and we flatter ourselves that our people are in as comfortable circumstances as any village in Canada. We have never yet had to send anybody to the poor-house, gaol, nor penitentiary, and we attribute our good luck in this respect entirely to our enforcing of the temperance or prohibitory law, which our Mr. Calvin inaugurated on his first commencing business here. we have no policeman, nor even a constable, their services not being required. There are some 65 vessels trading here, besides several steamers, and notwithstanding this, we have had very few accidents, and the few we have had happened principally by drowning when poor fellows were on the way from Kingston or Wolfe Island, where grog could be obtained."

It might be well to add a number of important facts in order to bring out in full significance the beneficial results of this total abstinence rule. Note the long time the firm have done business; not only have they accumulated wealth, but almost every person in their employment has become more or less prosperous, comfortably off or even wealthy. The people on the island do not know poverty; and almost in every country in Canada, but particularly along the St. Lawrence you will find well-to-do farmers or others who commenced under Calvin, and by saving their earnings were enabled to secure good homes. It is to be observed that although they have never sent any body to the poor house or gaol, the firm have long been generous contributors to the Protestant and Catholic poor-houses of Kingston. People say that where there are sailors there must be whiskey, but this instance shows that the saying is not correct, for there are sixty-five vessels and a dozen steamers trading here. The chief pursuit of the people is rafting square timber for Quebec and staves for the West Indies. Sometimes a very large number of men are working sixteen hours a day, and even when the weather is cold in the fall, and they get wet up to the waist, but never taste a drop of liquor. They are given plenty of good beef and soup at dinner, and other meals are substantial—and they do not want anything more. These men are English, Irish, Scotch, French—in fact of every nationality. There is no insurance required in this village; there are no law suits; no courts are held there—there being no business to be done; there is very little sickness—during the eight years I was on duty there was not a single case of sickness among the hard workers. About half the population is Catholic. A most notable fact is that there is not a child of school age not attending school on both Garden Island and Wolfe Island.

Is there anything like this in any other part of Canada? Or is there argument in favour of total abstinence or prohibition stronger or more conclusive than these facts?

The Catholic population of Wolfe and Garden Islands became total abstainers under Father Foley, who was priest in charge there between 1848 and 1860. Mr. Calvin made all in his employ total abstainers upon business grounds. This is where I first saw the practical advantages of total abstinence as compared with moderation.

In view of Garden Island, on the main land, stands Morton's famous distillery, the largest in its time in this country, and said to have produced the best and purest liquor. It has long been desolate; and has been the cause of poverty and misery to all who had anything to do with it. Mr. Morton could have retired from business at one time with a quarter of a million, but he died in poverty. The condition of his family and of those employed by him is in fact the very opposite of those in Mr. Calvin's employment.

M. STAFFORD.

AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

BY "INDEPENDENT."

I have no hesitation in asserting that the aims of temperance societies are distinct and worthy, and of such importance as to demand from religious people and christian churches earnest attention and support. Their aims are distinct. What are they? 1st. The rescue of the drunkard; 2nd. The prevention of drunkenness; 3rd. The removal of incitements to drink by the suppression of the liquor traffic and the creation of a healthy public opinion concerning the social usuages which countenance drinking. That these aims are worthy and important may be gathered from the following. In Great Britain their is spent and wasted every year in strong drink about $130,000,000 sterling. There being 66 books in the bible, that amount would place 1,969,696 sterling on every book, £310,775 on every chapter, $4,170 on every verse, $168 on every word, or £36. 10s 0d on every letter. On an average fifty thousand drunkards die every year on British soil.

Sad to say! this side of the Atlantic in many instances the pictures darken.

By comparing 33 millions populations at home against 44 millions in the United States, with the money wasted by each, and their terrible catalogue of crime and deaths, the proof is easily seen; and this same terrible upas is certainly the branches of this fair Dominion. The drinking traffic brings ruin to tens of thousands of families every year, and putting Great Britain, the United States and Canada together, they annually doom to death nearly 130,000 souls. The drinking traffic fills our asylums and prisons lessens the labour power of every country, and robs the laborer of the wages he obtains. It more than any other cause opposeth christain labor and disappoint it of its triumps and rewards; and above all it insults the Ruler of the Universe, defying His authority and contening His mercy, disappointing that mercy of its ultimate object, which seeks to compass the salvation and happiness of the world. I stay not now to prove these statements, though their proof is easy.

Reports to parliament, registrar's returns, the inquiries of convocation, the evidence of judges, ministers of religion, workers in the world's vineyard of all classes and of all shades of opinion agree in proof. I rest the case on their testimonies, and take the facts as they are stated. Assuming then these things to be true, I wish to ask: What is our duty? Especially what is the duty of the Church and of Christian people in relation to this subject? There is no controversy about the evil of drunkenness. The bible, by whose authority we abide, denounces it. It is evil, and only evil, and that continually

There is no controversy as to the duty of good men in striving to save the drunkard, to rescue the fallen, and to prevent others from falling.

A little controversy unworthy of notice may gather around the "authority" of women having part in this matter, but let every willing hand come to the rescue.

A little controversy turns up now and then referring to the best means to be employed in removing this evil of intoxication. Here let me venture to state the "doctrine" of the temperance societies, and if in any individual case the "practice" be otherwise it is no fault of the basilar part.

Temperance societies say, "Remove temptation; abolish the use of schoholic stimulents as beverages; banish them from your social boards; prevent the formation of habit; let home life give no encouragement to the creation and development of a deadly and insidious vice; treat those things as you would any other evils affecting the health, wealth, and morals of society; and suppress their sale, "save as medicines."

To accomplish this, it is the duty of the Law to help in every honorable endeavor. Here, alas! too often, many pause, and either from the deadening influence of habit, or prejudice, or indolence, or want of consideration, fail to bring their power to bear upon the solution of this great question. I incline to the opinion that the evils we deplore are better attacked in the cause than in the effect. We deplore drunkenness; we must deplore drinking. In striving to cast down the priest of the upas-tree, we must try also to pull it up by the roots God helping us we will not let the sufferers perish without putting forth a hand to help. While watching by them in their pain, helping them in their feebleness, soothing them in their agony, we hope to help to do more, viz: By God's help we will remove the cause of that agony and suffering We are one with those who strive to save the intemperate; but we ask all such to go with us one step further, and in the spirit of the prayer we learned at our mother's knee, to cry, "Lord, lead us not into temptation!" and attack the drink which makes the drunkard. If some deadly miasma works in our midst, are we content to stand irresolute and feeble, amid the dying and the dead, and never put one effort forth to reach the cause of destruction? No! It is searched out; painfully but unhesitatingly it is traced as far as human care and skill can avail to trace it; and when that deadly cause is found, stay not until we deal with it with unsparing hand. Ah, we have in our midst an influence at work which has turned many a fair land into a very lazar-house of disease and sin. Where is the poison born! Where the pestilent marks in which it finds its rise! Where? In the home circle, where at the social board, the wine circulates amid the restraints and courtesies of friendly intercourse—where many a bright-eyed generous boy, sparkling with joy, learns in the opening days of life to look upon the wine when it is red. Where! In those rocking dens of corruption, licensed by law, where the people sometimes gather to drown their senses in riot and excess. In this view then we contend temperance societies are right and consistent in their method. We want to abolish drinking The aim of the great temperance movement is to stop the evil in its source. Soon the verdict of this County will be given for or against the adoption of the Dunkin Act. Let every lover of his country and his kindred "vote for its adoption."

This great struggle going on between temperance reformers and their opponents can only end in the triumph of the right. It is a glorious cause in which the brightest talent should be used and in which the highest and noblest enthusiasm may well be enkindled. We know the effort demands sacrifice and self-denial—we know that a kind of social ostracism is connected with it—we know that difficulties are in the way; yet the object to be obtained is so noble, so important, that it is worthy of any effort, however great—of any sacrifice however painful. In it we see religion realizing its noblest development; faith in action, faith working; faith daring, all things to accomplish God's will, faith rising to the greatest of all the Christian virtues—charity—charity which stoops to the fallen, helps the distressed, hastes to the rescue, yearns to bless—charity which claims such kinship with Jesus, its great point that it does war to the death with evil in all its forms of sin and woe, and never ceases until all that opposes its Lord shall be trampled down and destroyed. Charity which weeps, laments, prays over the widespread evil and havoc causes among God's creatures by this terrible vice, but which also, in the lofty spirit of self denial, withdraws from all contact with it; nay more which, fired with holy zeal, stands as the cherubim of God, with flaming sword, barring acces to the evil—preventing the crime, rather than punishing the sinner. This is a time when many self sacrificing efforts are being put forth for the alleviation of human woe, and such efforts can not be in vain.

Meanwhile it is our privilege, though sometimes encircled with difficulties to do our duty. The fruitage of an eternal harvest gathers around the sowing of today. The destinies of immortality hang on the hours of our probation. The call of the times is to earnest work. The foes of temperance reform feel this, and they are mustering their forces with energy and skill. "King Dodds" is on the track as the Champion Bacchanalian Missionary. Let no one be beguiled into any morbid sympathy with crime in broad day-light. In the great strife impending none are insignificant—all may find a fitting sphere. Would that the result of this should be to unite the Christian people of this county to a more resolute and earnest discharge of duty. What is that duty? Hear the answer in the cry of the orphan, the wail of the widow, in the wild delirium of the fallen victim of drink!

Hear it rising from the ruined daughters of our cities and towns who too often long to be hurled anywhere—anywhere—out of the world.

Hear it in the accumulated miseries of thousands of blasted, blighted, prayerless, christless—homes. Hear it in the woe of tears of thousands of neglected children. Hear it in the despair of human spirits around whom gathers the blackness and darkness of an eternal night. What is that duty? To work, to pray, to live so that we may save those who are ready to perish.

Let every one do his part as in God's sight and the work will be done, and that right speedily. Even though the effort cost solemn resolve and untiring perseverance to stand in the day of opposition. It will richly repay in the great day of eternity. Our recompense is not a monetary one, but the approval and the glory of God. Pardon me if I try to describe a Cornish scene. I have stood upon the sea shore when the waves has lifted up their voice and its noise of great waters has made men's hearts fail for fear. Under one circumstance a gallant life-boat's crew were beaten back in their attempt to save the poor drowning sailors clinging to the masts of the wrecked ship.

But in the midst of storm and tempest and fury a voice cries again—"man the life boats," men are drowning, help, help, for the sinking sailors! Brave hearts and strong arms tried again, and to the joy of many success crowned their deeds of noble heroism. In like manner there are multitudes like stranded wrecks upon the shores of intemperance,

Men are perishing; the sea of strong drink is every day bearing a large number into the depths of ruin. Man the life-boat—The temperance life-boat, help, help, for God's sake help!

The great Conservative pic-nic at Napanee had to be run on temperance principles, as the Dunkin Act is in force in Lennox. Only one person was seen drunk the whole day; and at the "grand banquet" not a drop was served at the tables.

New Land.—It is evident by the number of bush fires which are visible here that a vast amount of new land is being cleaned and fitted for cultivation in this neighborhood. Mr. McKay of Baltimore is in town and will address a public meeting in favor of the Dunkin Bill this evening in the Opera House.

Dead Body Found.—A skeleton of a man or boy was found last week in Spilsbury Creek, near the Birdsall Settlement, in Otonabee. The hands were eaten off by animals. The flesh were partly gone off the extremeties, a portion of his clothing remained, but a great part thereof was worn away with the weather. He was found in a place that must have taken some time to approach on account of the swamp to be passed through. It is supposed to be the body of Patrick Morrisey, of Ashburnham, who strayed away during the summer. He was subject to fits and it is believed that in some way he got where the body was found, could not get out again until he perished.

The Fairbairn Family.—This company consisting of four gave an entertainment in the Opera House on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The audiences although small were appreciative and several of the songs were applauded. Mr. Fairbairn is humorous, and in his introductory remarks on the scene is instructive as well as pleasing. Miss Bessie Fairbairn was well received in "Mrs. Jones' Musical Party." The duets and trios were also well received. Mr. Fairbairn's voice being finely adapted for the rendering of the songs of Scotland. They will give an intertainment in Keene on Friday evening, when no doubt they will be well received.

The Fortnightly Review. The September number of this popular Review is before us; it opens with a masterly article by Professor Goldwin Smith. "The policy of Aggrandisement." The question of the Ottoman Empire is cleverly discussed. A good article is contributed by Anthony Lollope, "Cicero as a man of letters." The style and thought of Cicero as a man of letters is well defined and his failings exposed with a charitable hand. "Home and Foreign Affairs" is well worth perusal a good deal of light is thrown on Turkish and Russian affairs, exceedingly interesting and entertaining. A masterly contribution from the pen of Leslie Stephen. "The Scepticism of Beliefvers" contains some sound argument and will be read with interest and profit.

Belford's Monthly.—October number of this excellent Magazine contains some excellent articles. "Up the Thames" is worthy of note. The Local Associations and Picturesque beauties of the route from Richmond to Windsor is illustrated by a large number of beautifully selected views of buildings and parts of interest. An exquisite poem by Mrs. S. Watson. "The eve of Autumnal Equinox." Dr. J. G. Holland's charming novice, "Nicholas Minturn," comes to a close. The story of a flirt by F. T will please the lover of and is a beautiful bit of Canadian Romance. "Preservation of the Buffalo," by Rev. Mr. Dawson calls attention to a subject of vital importance and calls for stringent game law. All the various subjects treated of are written and in a bright and pleasant style.

An Old Settler Gone.—Mr. John Stewart of Cavan, near Centreville, died last week at the advanced age of 82 years. He was a native of the County of Monaghan, Ireland, settled in Cavan in 1816, and was consequently 61 years in the Township, being among the very first settlers of that section of country. In the same neighbourhood are two other very old settlers who went into Cavan on the original survey and have lived there ever since. One of these Mr. John Deyell is now in his 86th year and able to walk or ride to see his relatives. The other Mr. A. Anderson, who is 86 years of age, went to see Mr. Stewart a few days before his decease and held religious exercises with him. It is seldom that three men so advanced in "ife resides so close together. Mr. Stewart and Mr. Deyell were natives of Ireland and Mr. Anderson of Scotland.

Day of Thanksgiving. The following proclamation has been issued by His Honor the Lieut.-Governor: "Know ye, that, taking into consideration the duty which our loving subjects owe to Almighty God, for the manifold blessings which they have received at His hands, and especially for the abundant harvest, and the continuance of peace, with which He has blessed our said Province during the present year, we have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council for our said Province to appoint, and we do, by this our Royal Proclamation, appoint Thursday, the 22nd day of November next, as a public holiday, in order that the said day may be observed as a day of general thanksgiving to Almighty God, for these His mercies, and we do earnestly exhort all our loving subjects in our said Province to observe reverentially and devoutly the said day of Thanksgiving.

We clip the following from the London Daily Advertiser:—"Our townsmen, Mr. M. Knowlton, having seen the Provincial Exhibition and visited his numerous friends, left again on Friday for the scene of his labors in the eastern part of the Province. Mr. Knowlton will go directly to Peterborough, again in the first place, and elsewhere as circumstances indicate. Among those who have become Red Ribbonists in Peterboro, through Mr. Knowlton's efforts is Mr. John Moloney, proprietor of the well-known Caisse House. Mr. Moloney will continue to keep a first-class hotel, but will not sell another drop of liquor. We hope the people of the surrounding section of country will extend to Mr. Moloney a more generous support than ever, to show him that he will lose nothing by acting up to his convictions of right. We wish Mr. Knowltons success in his tour, and commend his efforts to the favorable attention of the temperance people and pressmen of the eastern part of Ontario.

Another Sudden Death.—We regret to have to announce the death of R. E. Birdsall, Esq., Reeve of Asphodel, which took place at his residence on Thursday evening about 9 o'clock. Our informant says that he had been talking to one of his men and then went into his bedroom to talk to Mrs. Birdsall. On going in he sat down on the bed but almost instantly fell backward and expired. He was a young man, only in his 40th year. His decease will be generally regretted as he was very highly respected by all who knew him. He had served his township as Reeve for many years, was twice elected Warden of the County, and his name was more or less spoken of as the coming Conservative candidate for his Riding. He received a good education and although engaging very little in the practice of his profession, was considered a clever civil engineer, being possessed of good judgement and discernment. Although on the opposite side to us in politics we always found him honorable, ready to do us justice and to treat us generously, and had he survived until he should have had an opportunity to contest the Riding he would have been a strong candidate and one whose past history would have given little room for public criticism. He leaves a wife to mourn this sad bereavement and to whom our warm est sympathy is extended.

How to Press Flowers.—Now that the young ladies are making their annual pilgrimages to the woods for autumn leaves, the following hints in regard to pressing leaves, and flowers will be found of interest:—" The Little Schoolma'am's plan is to take a sheet of thin cotton batting and lay the flowers carefully on it, covering them with another sheet, and then putting the whole under slight pressure. Sometimes when the flowers are thick and contain considerable moisture, she puts them in fresh cotton the next day, and after that does not disturb them. But in pressing nearly all the small flowers the cotton need not be changed at all, and not even opened until the flowers are preserved. I noticed the Little Schoolma'am's pressed flowers had a soft, bright look. She groups the long stemmed ones in vases, or lays them between sheets of thin glass, and hangs them in her windows in winter, she says. They haven't at all the poor, pinched, faded, flattened look of flowers prepared in other ways. The Little Schoolma'am presses green leaves and ribbon grass in the same way, keeping their color perfectly; and she told the children that when they wanted to pile a number of their cotton layers together, it was better to lay a sheet of bottling paper in between the sets. Sometimes she lays tissue paper between the flowers and the cotton, but it is of the thinnest kind."

Auction Sales.—On Thursday, the 25th of October, Mr. George Greer, Lot No. 29, 11th concession of Otonabee, will sell his entire farm stock, Implements &c. This sale will be at 11 a.m., and positively without reserve, as Mr. Greer's barns, stables and contents were totally consumed by fire on Sunday last. Fifteen months credit will be given on all sums over $10.00 Haggart Bros. Auctioneers.

On Friday, October 12th, at 11 a.m., Mr. D. Leahy, of Lot No 11, in the 5th concession of Douro, will sell by auction his farm stock and implements. Sale without reserve. Thirteen months credit. Haggart Bros. Auctioneers.

On Thursday, the 18th of October, Mr. John Sargent will offer for sale his farm stock and implements &c., by auction, on the premises, lot No. 27, 10th concession of Otonabee. Thirteen months credit will be given. Sale at one o'clock p.m. Haggart Bros., Auctioneers.

On Thursday the 1st of November, Mr. Stapleton will sell the entire farm stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. D. M. Moore, Lot No. 22, in the 1st concession of Emily. This will be a very extensive sale as Mr. Moore is about giving up farming. Any person wishing a catalogue of the sale can obtain one on application at the EXAMINER Office.

On Saturday, Oct. 13th Mr. Kane will sell his entire farm stock and implements by auction, at his residence' Lot No. 12, in the 12th concession of Otonabee, near the residence of Mr. Joseph Redmond, Esq., sale at 12 o'clock. Haggart Bros., Auctioneers.

CUT THIS OUT—IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.—There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this county from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to J. D Tully Druggist, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

WHAT DOES HE WANT,

We place the two following extracts from recent speeches by the Opposition leader in juxtaposition, and ask our readers to consider them in connection with what they have lately heard about Free Trade and Protection:—

SIR JOHN AT COBOURG	SIR JOHN AT HAPANEE
"He was not going to discuss the American tariff; he thought it might perhaps be too high. * * * He was in favor of giving a moderate and sufficient protection to our industries."	"If they could not have reciprocity of trade they should have reciprocity of tariffs. Such was his policy, and he asked if they would sustain it."

A TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

ANOTHER VICTIM.

On Thursday evening a fatal accident occured at Thorndale, the victim being Mr. Adam Bailey, of that neighborhood. He had been to visit the Provincial Fair, and went off on the four o'clock train for home. On arriving at Thorndale it is said that he was perfectly sober, but going into the hotel he began drinking, and continued till he became very drunk. He then left to walk to his house, and that was the last seen of him till he was found lying on the railway, fearfully mangled, and of course dead. It is surmised that he, overcome by liquor, either fell or laid down to sleep, and the seven o'clock train coming along ran over him. An Inquest is to be held, we believe.

Obituary—The Late A. Choate, Esq.

(From Port Hope Times.)

Slightly more than seventy years ago the subject of this sketch was born. Deceased was truly a Canadian, having been born in the Township of Hamilton, and living nearly a life-time in the vicinity of Port Hope. He was of a happy and cheerful disposition, and rejoiced to see others happy. To say that he had no defects would be saying that he was more than human. But when we compare his defects with his many virtues and gentlemanly bearing, and when we compare his behavior through life with that of his fellow-citizens, we feel fully justified in saying that his faults were so few and trifling, if any at all, as not to be worthy of notice. We have never known any harm of him, and do not believe that he ever did a dishonorable act. We have known him for nearly fifty years, and have had ample opportunities to see and know him well; and in summing up our acquaintance with him of nearly half a century, we can safely say that he was a truly loyal subject, an obliging neighbor an affectionate and indulgent husband and father, a useful citizen, and a true friend. So far as we know, deceased always acted from principles of right. He was a sound reformer, a great temperance advocate, and a professor of religion, all from strictly just and well defined principles. In fact, the record that he has left behind is one that is creditable alike to head and heart. When we look back through long years and mark the changes that time has wrought; when we look back through days of youth, when every prospect pleased and hope was abundant; when, like the spring time, everything, as it were, seemed budding and blossoming with promise, memory enables us to see deceased, as he was then in the prime of manhood, and enjoying the blessings that a kind Providence had thrown in his pathway, we cannot help regretting that youth is not perpetual. But such is not life. An all-wise Providence has decreed that we shall pass through sunshine and shadow, joys and sorrows, pleasures and pains, and in the end death, and as such deceased has fulfilled manifest destiny. His death has caused a blank that, to his family, never can be filled. He will be missed by many. Being an active Justice of the Peace, he was useful in that capacity. Although he had reached that period of life in which nature is supposed to break down, he was still active and vigilant, and attended to all his duties as a member of the church, as a Granger, as a farmer, and as a good citizen in all things. But his usefulness is at an end, and earth shall know him no more. On Wednesday night, September 19th, he was attacked with morbus cholera, and sank rapidly, suffering severely at first, but gradually, as life's forces waned, he became easier, and passed away at five o'clock on Saturday. His funeral took place on Tuesday, Sept. 25th, moving from the family residence at Perrytown to the cemetry on the estate of Nathan Choate, Esq., brother of deceased. His remains were followed thither by a large concourse of mourners and acquaintances with fitting and deserved respect. And now that his body had been committed to dust, his works, and the rememberance of him, remains with us, and in the language of the immortal poet we would ask, "Should auld acquaintance be forgot and never brought to mind." Oh no, we would say, let memory often carry us back to departed years and departed worth.—Com.

Deceased was a brother of T. Choate, Esq., of Dummer.

The Temperance Movement.

What is Being Said and Done in Connection Therewith.

Norfolk County wants to try Dunkin.

Brantford temperance meetings increase in interest.

The Toronto Rine Club had a successful benefit this week.

Mr. Noble, the celebrated temperance orator and musician, is in Canada to work for a season.

The temperance organizations of New York city have instituted 1,000 lawsuits against groggeries.

The Frontenac Licensed Victuallers have decided to appeal against the decision in the Dunkin by-law case.

Banks Mackenzie, of Boston, is conducting a temperance agitation at Pictou, N. S., and immense audiences are attending his meetings.

A drunken G. T. R. engineer at Montreal was discharged by the railway authorities. The "Brotherhood" demanded his return, but the officials would not yield a peg. The country praises them for pluck.

Dr. Cadieux has had monster meetings at Hamilton. He spoke of the marvellous cahnge of sentiment among British and Canadian doctors on the use of liquors. Alcohol is only beginning to be properly understood.

The Recorder of Montreal, in trying a youn man for drunkenness last week, remarked that "with the present facilities to obtain drink, the probabilities for the next generation were certainly alarming." Many others think so too.

Ex-Gov. Perham and the Hon. Neal Dow, of Maine, are out with long letters asserting "that the prohibitory statute of the Pine-Tree-State had freed that Commonwealth from the distillery and the brewery, and that there are no open retail stores or open bars."

The Principal of the Public Schools of Mallorytown indignantly denies the cry of E. King Dodds that Dunkin is there a failure. He says many citizens there would gladly pay $30 a year extra taxes rather than have licensing restored.

The new Dominion Alliance proposes to form a guarantee fund of $100,000 to meet necessary expenses of the movement for Prohibition. We hope it will be able to raise the fund, for the movement should be put on a sound financial footing.

The Hon. Wm. McDougall is amusing the whole country by his "two-horse act." At Toronto he voted with the anti-temperance men, and at Newmarket he mourned that Upper Canada College was in so bad a location, being "too near the taverns for educational purposes." How consistent this peregrinating Wm. is!

Jas. A. Davidson, the Murphy lecturer in Canada, was taxated with making money out of the movement. His replies, "when I returned home to my family at Gerard, Penn., I had not cash about over my travelling expenses to purchase a barrel of flour." The men who make money out of the movement are the good fellows who sign the pledge and keep it faithfully.

The Observer—the whisky organ—accounts for the passage of the Dunkin Act in Brace by these choice phrases: "The towns have been again swamped by the flock of obedient sheep in the country." And again, "The tavern-keepers allowed the clergy and the other old wowsers to have it all their own way." A brave lot of men you represent, Mr. Observer, who could be so easily frightened by "old women" and "obedient sheep," that they first declared against a pitched battle, and in the skirmish were beaten to the tune of twelve hundred minority!

Dr. Holland writes in Scribner as follows: "It is a comfort and encouragement to know that the results of intemperance have become so well appreciated that "men of moderate views" cannot keep on with their wine-drinking without doing something against their consciences. It is even amusing to see them hold their wine-glasses with one hand, while they gesture ferociously with the other about the abuses of the excise law, and stand upon their rights as freemen, gentlemen and Christians with one foot, while the other is lively in kicking the illegal liquor-seller."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I have been thinking deeply about the terrible wrongs caused by strong drink and I wonder till well nigh bewildered how christian countries have permitted a traffic so fraught with glaring evils to grow into such a mighty power. Whence all the apathy concerning its destructive work?

In an inland town of England, but a short time ago, lived an intelligent, fine looking young man of very pleasing manners, Captain L——. His father was a drunkard. His home a few miles out of town, but owing to the drunken habits of the household he boarded in town. When I first made his acquaintance he was very temperate in his habits, not a total abstainer, that was something almost unheard of in that neighbourhood, and when alluded to at all, was mentioned with suspicion, I was not long in finding this out, for soon after my arrival I incidentally heard a man spoken of as holding peculiar views that made him very unpopular, and I was curious enough to ask what they were, and what do you think I learned? That he believed in and practiced total abstinence. He has since come out to Ontario, where his "peculiar views" have doubtless met with more appreciation. But though not holding those unpopular opinions, yet Captain L. was a temperate man of good repute.

In the same town was a hotel, the "Heron," kept by John Wordley, a man of great tact, of good address. He possessed a keen knowledge of men, understood where, when and how to flatter, but he was devoid of principle, honor and truth did not belong to him. Too wise to drink himself, he, while all around him indulged freely in whiskey and brandy, artfully contrived to have his glass filled with water. He knew the advantage of keeping his head cool and his senses collected. Such was the proprietor of the leading hotel in that town

Wordley was continually trying to get Captain L. to board at the "Heron," but the upright landlord of the Star was his personal friend and he could not be induced to leave. After a time, however, his father died as he had lived, a drunkard. The Star changed hands, Mr. Harker with his agreeable wife gave up the business and quitted the country, urging Captain L. to go with them. He hesitated, but the property had to be divided, he could not go then, he would follow. The Harkers left England and he moved down to his home, but it was lonely, no mother, no sister there, unpleasing associations connected with it, and at last came Wordley's chance. I now missed poor L. at church, his seat, hitherto regularly occupied, was vacant. I did not see him for months, and then, oh, what a change! He pretended to live at home but he was seldom absent from the "Heron." Many times he made efforts to abstain from drinking. He would go home and try to stay there, but Wordley with his ready tongue was soon at his side. No need to lengthen so melancholy a tale. In less than a year Captain L. died of delirium tremens and fitting place in a room of the "Heron." It took strong men to hold him and stout hearts to stand by and witness the fearful scene. Surely, I thought, the "Heron" will be deserted now, this warning will be enough. The news was kept quiet till the funeral was over People said, "poor fellow, how sad! L.'s share of the property was gone and all went on as of old. Again I ask, whence this apathy? What was the difference in guilt between the murders of Burke and Hare and this murderer? In the one the victims were decoyed in and their lives taken: in the other the victim was decoyed in and his life and soul destroyed. The one sent a thrill of horror throughout the Kingdom and the perpetrators were hanged; the other was not heard of outside the town and the perpetrator was left in peace to carry on his nefarious schemes against others. One murder was illegal, the other legal.

What a sad thought that no town, no village, no hamlet need go beyond its own limits for examples of the ravages made by what Col. Hamilton, the other evening, rightly termed the "perilous stuff." old residents in Peterborough speak in terms of praise of a bright, good natured boy, who, years ago, served in his father's store. He grew up in our midst, married respectably, and children gathered about them. All at once our attention was called to that home, a terrible tragedy had been enacted there, and the dear little daughter of the house was a witness in the case. There was her father arraigned for the murder of her mother, and what did that dear little girl say? "Pa was always kind when he was sober. I repeat it. "Pa was always kind when he was sober." There is a depth of meaning in it. This was an instance of whiskey, pure and simple. The brain was on fire, the knife was at hand. Oh, how long will we go on impriscaning the wrong culprit? Where is that father who was always kind when he was sober? In the Penitentiary for life, and his children sorrow stricken for the rest of their days. How is it that the people of Peterborough did not rise up then and say we will destroy this traffic that makes kind fathers fiends, and dear little children heavy-hearted orphans? Is conscience dead? Is it selfishness? Or is it thoughtlessness only? We know that "evil is wrought by want of thought as much as by want of heart." Think, voters, think, and do not favour a traffic that does such terrible work. The Dunkin Act is not perfect, our opponents had too much to do with it for that. Christopher Dunkin said, with tears in his eyes, that he had never felt so humiliated in his life as when he was forced to submit to that five gallon clause, and yet they talk of class legislation, of the poor man's rights, &c. who insisted on the five gallon clause? But the Dunkin Act is the only weapon at our command just now. Carry it citizens of Petreborough and help on the work that is to keep kind fathers kind fathers and happy homes happy homes, and not send the once kind fathers to the Penitentiary and the once happy children into sadness and gloom

Then that talk about the revenue. Is it the revenue of the State or the revenue of the dealers in the traffic about which there is so much concern? I think a nation of sober people can carry on the Government better than a nation of drunkards. and so do our opponents, but they know the value of a cry.

Faithfully yours,
L. L.

READ AND BE CONVINCED.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Those who are now loudest in the opposition to the passage of the Dunkin Bill and claim to be in favor of the Crooks Act, are the men who in the winter of 1875 raised the cry all over the country that the positon then taken by the Provincial Legislature was contrary to British teaching and constitutional Liberty, because the temperance men of this Province were asking for some kind of legislation and formed what has since been known as the L. V. A., and claimed that the Bill introduced by the Hon. Mr. Crooks was calculated to do the country hram, and also it would ruin trade that it was class legislation and that more liquor would be sold than ever and drunkenness would thereby increase. Yet strange to say that in less than one year after the passage of this Act—when the people by counties asked that we should try another step, viz: the Dunkin Act, we are met by E. King Dodds and his followers with the astonishing argument (coming as it does from such a source) that the Crooks Act is just what the people need, and that it will be better than any other act yet known on the Canadian Statutes.

Is it not fair to suppose that these same people will, when the Dunkin Bill is carried become, and in a short time as strongly in favor of the Bill as they have of the Crooks Bill. Being as they are, honorable men, we cannot form any other conclusion.

Yours, &c.,
A WORKING MAN.

For Boils and Carbuncles.

From Rev. Richard Eddis, of Boston, Mass.

"For years I was a sufferer from boils, so that my life became wearisome through their frequent and persistent recurrence. A carbuncle, which ultimately occupied a space of three or four square inches, formed in the small of my back. During its progress large pieces of decomposed flesh were every day or two cut away; and the prostration and general disturbance of the system were great. Before I had recovered from this attack two smaller carbuncles broke out higher up, and I was again threatened with a recurrence of the sufferings to which I had so long been subjected. It was at this time that I commenced taking the PERUVIAN SYRUP; I continued taking it until I had used five bottles; since then I have had nothing of the kind. I attribute this improved state of my system entirely to the PERUVIAN SYRUP: and I feel that I cannot express my obligations to it in terms too strong. For years I was one of the greatest sufferers. Other medicines gave me partial and temporary relief; but this remarkable remedy, with a dink of intuitive sense, went directly to the root of the evil, and did its work with a thoroughness worthy of its established character." Sold by dealers generally.

W. B. O'DONOGHUE AND SIR JOHN.

From the Toronto Tribune.

The bankrupt Opposition have shewn the desperate character of the deficit by counting for Capital those things which, in former years, they represented as worse than the outcroppings of their back stairs. "Would to God!" said the Chieftain, "that I had hold of that man," referring to Riel, at the same time that he had disposed of three thousand dollars of the people's money to get "that man" safely out of the country, and beyond his reach! The policy of getting rid of Riel, for the time, was but one of the series in the true story of the North-West troubles. It was an essential one, however, for the time being. Riel had to be got rid of to save complications which a maladroit finesse had very nearly brought upon Sir John's Government in its temporising and unstatesman-like policy on the North-west. Eight millions of dollars—so says the Hon. Wm. Macdougal—were "thrown into the sea," as the price of the Ministerial Compact by which the once happy family at Ottawa succeeded in bringing all its members to an agreement for the acquisition of the North West. Two millions more went to secure that acquisition; and then—a people without constitutional Government driven into rebellion against a mere satrapy! In our issue of the 7th inst, we gave evidence from Mr. O'Donoghue.s letter to Mr. Devlin that the Fenian raid, so called, was merely a continuation of the policy of '69-70, inaugurated by the people of the North-West in defence of their liberties against what they conceived to have been an unwarranted attack upon them.

Mr. O'Donoghue claims that he was a victim to these proceedings; that he acted with the people of Manitoba, and with the so-called Provisional Government, except in the one particular instance of the Scott case, in which he had no part; that his commission to raise the armed "emigrants" and come into Manitoba territory at their head was signed by the men representing the Manitoban people—presumably it was signed by Riel as well as others. At all events, time and again, the Irish Canadian has given threatening warning that it could mention the names of many important personages who were consenting parties to the raid. Now, it is for that raid, and for that alone, that O'Donoghue is to-day an exile. He says so himself—and we know of no facts to disprove his assertion. O'Donoghue says:—

"My part in the raid was simply that of an agent of the people, and to prove which I have the commission given me in October, '70, signed by over 20 of the leading men of 'our party,' including all the members of the Government," &c., &c.

It was doubtless this passage which made the impression on Mr. Power's mind that led him into the statement he has since retracted; but which, after all, was no great breach of propriety, as wherefore should Mr. O'Donoghue have appealed to the fact of this commission, if he was not, as the whole tenor of his letter indicates, prepared to redeem his promise of proving it? And how could he have proved it without producing this commission and thereby revealing the names of the signatories, and so becoming "Informer!" The point, as we have said elsewhere, is not an important one because there are other and better reasons to justify Mr. Power's vote; nor is O'Donoghue under any obligation of secrecy in the matter, especially after the threats on his behalf which have been made by the Irish Canadian.

Now, for this one thing that at present stands against O'Donoghue, no movement has yet been made in his favour by Mr. Costigan, in Parliament, or by any of his loud-mouthed champions in the press. On the 25th May last, when we had, up to that date exhausted the materials at hand for the discussion of the case of Mr. O'Donoghue, we said:—

"Should his pretended friends become real ones, by the next Session of Parliament, and ask that the exceptional circumstances in case be fairly considered, and such leniency, even to the extent of immediate amnesty, be extended to him, according as the facts developed may impress the Legislature, O'Donoghue will find in the Tribune a far more sincere and hearty friend than he does in those who now parade his case, for the basest of political purposes in a manner which is alike a gross outrage on personal honour and a despicable mockery of national sentiment."

From that day to this, not one of his sympathizers has suggested that he should be annexited for the solitary charge that stands against him and for which Sir John Macdonald says he believed "he should suffer the penalty."

It is not for this declaration that Mr. O'Donohue pours out his gratitude to Sir John! In his letter, which bears date "Mendotta, Minnesota, U.S., Aug. 10th 1877," Mr. O'Donoghue tells Sir John that—

"Standing upon my entire innocence of the crime to which amnesty was not to be extended, though much I desire to return to the possession of my property and to be people for whom I have made so many sacrifices, I declare publically that I shall reject any amnesty as associating me with "murder."

Yet it is only for this proffered amnesty for "murder" that Sir John voted in Parliament; it is only for this at Markham, and at Montreal, Sir John said he should receive "complete amnesty." Nothing has yet appeared, either publically or privately, to show that Sir John Macdonald has gone back upon his Orange friends to the extent of seeking the Royal clemency for the only charge that O'Donoghue himself admits can be brought against him. And it is for that charge alone that he is to to-day an outlaw.

It appears to us that there is now ample reason for removing the case of O'Donoghue from the category in which it has been heretofore placed. If it be true, as he affirms, that the "raid"—whether a Fenian movement or not—whether a repetition of the Campo Bello scare for a political purpose, or whether set on foot by the people without outside instigation was a necessary corrollary of "the perfidy of Sir John's Government "in withholding the amnesty," then indeed it follows that Sir John's friends should be the first to move in the matter in order to remove the continuance of the injustice. And it does not seem, under existing circumstances, that either O'Donoghue, or any party, should be longe held a victim to that "perfidy." The present Government found the North-West troubles one among the many legacies which had been left by their predecessors. They deserve this much, at any rate, at the hands of their opponents that they had the courage to deal with it in a spirit of kindly consideration, according to the facts before their possession. If, now, it be true that O'Donoghue's whole crime was due to Sir John's "perfidy," that it seems very hard indeed, that he should be longer left in exile on account of it. There is one fact which the friends of O'Donoghue should bear in mind—that when Sir John gets into power again he will hold O'Donoghue accountable for his share in the raid; and if they really mean to get him safely over that trouble they should obtain from the Chieftain a formal retraction of his parliamentary declaration. Had they done this, either at Markham, or at Montreal, they would have made Mr. O'Donoghue's letter of thanks something more than it appears to be at present, an acknowledgement of very small favours. To any movement for O'Donoghue's pardon for the part he took in that invasion which was merely a consequence of the bad policy of the Government of the day, we shall, as we have already said lend our hearty support. But it is too much to ask of us to accept with much consideration Mr. O'Donoghue's rather fulsome assurances of gratefulness to the very man whose "perfidy" was, but a short time before, the cause of all his troubles. The present Government have no responsibility for the former discontent in Manitoba; they deserve much credit for the exertions they have made to repair the evils created by the weak, vacillating and mistaken policy of their predecessors. But they might with propriety go a little further; they might, we think, by an act of timely clemency remove the one personal evidence of the evil consequences of the "perfidy of Sir John's Government" which still remains as a blot on the fair fame of the country.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic, Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrolulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a disorderly state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. RINGWORM and OLD CHRONIC SORES, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS, PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, G. W. Gregroy, Fred Paget and L. D. F. Poore, Centennia Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best Sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W. the best Sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas. Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, Mrs. Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Huston R. Ternan, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Patterson, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "it is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION.

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as there are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend those having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from 4 oz an inch thick, down to gauze, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W, will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who is thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please read my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine elsewhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am working for first-class companies.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

Above 25,000 Visitors in Town the Second Day.

(From the Lindsay Post.)

The third "Central Exhibition" has been held with the most gratifying results in every respect, and the people of Lindsay have good reason to feel proud of the manner in which this town has sustained its reputation for enterprise. The preparatory arrangements have been mainly carried out by Messrs. John Connolly, W. L. Russell, J. H. Knight, and Col. Deacon, to whom great credit is due for their untiring zeal and good judgment. The superintendents of the exhibition,—Messrs. E. A. Powers, of Hope, and Mr. Thos. Thompson, of Oakwood, are to be congratulated on the effective way in which they discharged their onerous duties. They were ably assisted by the experience of Mr. George Cockburn, of Baltimore, the Vice-President. The plan of the buildings and grounds admirably suited the purpose, and were so highly commended that we understand the Cobourg Society intends to remodel their building-plans after ours. The attendance on the opening day was very large, but on the second day the crowds came pouring in from all quarters in numbers that far exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 11, 1877.

MISREPRESENTATIONS AND MAUNDERINGS OF MR. McBAIN.

Led by the Mail, the Conservative press throughout the Province has of late been paying particular attention to the Neebing Hotel, and the Kaministiquia River. The attention is not born of any desire to enlighten the public with a faithful description of Fort William and its surroundings, interesting in themselves, but made more so from their choice as a terminus and harbor on Lake Superior for the Canada Pacific Railway. No show of enterprise to satisfy the very natural desire to know as much as possible concerning this very important place causes the very numerous—almost incessant—Conservative allusions to it. Far different is the motive. The present pet political scandal is in connection with the Government's action in buying property there for the location of work and offices for the Pacific Railway at so important a terminus. In the first place the site is generally objected to, and the Kaministiquia River declared to be totally unfit for purposes of navigation. Against this we have the testimony of the Mail itself; for at the time the expectations of the Opposition pointed to Nipegon Bay as the probable location of the Lake Superior terminus, that paper, followed as now by its echoes, had only praise for the Kaministiquia. Now all is changed. Nipegon was not chosen; and the Mail's much-lauded Kaministiquia was. The abuse of Nipegon and the praises of Kaministiquia are alike forgotten in the changed political aspect of the case, and the then admired location is now an abomination to Tory tongues and pens. Thus are the Conservatives ever consistent in their inconsistency.

Not only is there the general condemnation of the position, which in itself would not be surprising, considering whence it comes: there has been an elaboration of the detraction by the introduction of materials obtained from a squabble between the adjacent and hence rival villages of Fort William and Prince Arthur's Landing—the former known briefly as the Town Plot, or Plot; the other as the Landing. There was at first some discussion as to whether the Plot or the Landing should be made the Pacific Railway terminus; and as a consequence the people, particularly the property holders, of the Landing were as greatly disappointed as those of the Plot were pleased at the final choice of the latter place, on the recommendation of the engineer after a careful survey, the report of which containing points of superiority of the river over the bay as a harbour are open to all, but are studiously ignored by Conservatives in their comparison of the two. Complaints from the Landing arose, petty village jealousies were increased by accusations and counter accusations; these were equally seized on by an opposition in Parliament intent on procuring charges against the government that might in some degree drive from the public mind the memory of the crimes (according to William Macdougall, the "treason,") of the late administration. With a skill only attainable by the experienced manufacturer of Tory scandals, these unpromising materials were worked up into charges of dishonesty and political jobbery against Ministers of the Crown. Such dishes of social and moral garbage form the "feast of reason" furnished at Tory pic-nics by men calling themselves statesmen. Heaven save the weak, if this be statesmanship.

As we have said the Tory press echoes and re-echoes the cry, Tory editors and Tory newspaper correspondents the country over feeding on the crumbs scattered by their masters, and exhibiting extraordinary evidences of the effects of such food. Among the literary contributors, that have of late appeared on the prolific Tory topic is a letter written by Mr. F. E. McBain, of this town, published in the local Tory paper, and subsequently endorsed in a Mail editorial as evidence corroborative of that which gave rise to it. It is as when one false witness testifies after hearing the prepared evidence of his fellow in the business of twisted testimony. Mr. McBain's letter is a model in its way, there being only three perfectly straightforward sentences in its three columns, and the other two briefly refer to the short line of railway from the landing to the iron plot. This is about the proportion of fact in all that is written by Tory scribblers on this subject. The description of the Kaministiquia as "not much larger than the Otonabee ditch," "no row that the larger boats could not possibly turn round in it," which "no large vessels ever attempt to enter, which the smaller vessels navigating the lakes drawing from six to seven feet of water constantly strand," is so ridiculous as to stamp the character of the epistle plainly upon it. The evidence of engineers, lake captains, and scores of travellers will be found in the Kaministiquia is not a "little ditch, not much larger than the Otonabee," although certainly it is not so, isn't it? is 400 feet wide at its mouth and the general government dredging that so far from no large vessels ever attempting to enter it, I mean drawing from nine to twelve feet are constantly passing and repassing the river and the dredge at present on which Mr. McBain tells us vessels drawing from six to seven feet constantly strand, are no more than necessary to keep the channel open, and the banks are so sheer that vessels can run almost up to them as at the side, and the general depth is from 12 to 20 feet. Mr. John Macdonald, factor of the Hudson Bay Company at Fort William for almost six years, (who may be readily ascertained to be known to every thirty man in the place) Mr. McBain, Mr. Macdonald declares that the Kaministiquia is equal to the Otonabee, and that it can be easily navigated by vessels drawing twelve feet of water. Now is Mr. McIntyre actuated in political bias, as Mr. McBain undoubtedly was in making his representations; for both gentlemen are Conservatives; the only difference being that one knows better than the other of what he is talking, and is consequently not so easily biased by his party feelings. Of the Landing which Mr. McBain declares to be "one of the best harbours on the lakes," Mr. McIntyre tells us a very different story. He says:—

If a strong south-east wind were blowing it would be impossible for boats to land there at all, and a shove of ice such as I have seen would be apt to remove the wharf they have there at present. I have seen piles of ice there thirty feet high. Then no elevator could be erected without a breakwater, and this would cost three times more than it would take to dredge the Kaministiquia, where there is every accommodation for the erection of elevators.

Mr. McIntyre also expresses his emphatic conviction that the price paid for the terms was not too high, though he thinks it would have been better were it located nearer the mouth of the river where the banks are not so high.

So much for the reputed unsuitability of the Fort William site for a terminus, and the fabulous price which it is asserted was paid for it, now for the accusation of political favoritism. We are told by Mr. McBain that the purchase of lands was made from "Oliver, Davidson & Co., et hoc genus omnes (all good grits dyed in the wool)." Had he Mr. McBain known even a little concerning the subject he presumed to write upon and grow indignant over, he would have known that many of those from whom lands on the Kaministiquia were Tories with wool at least as deeply, if not deeper, dyed than his own. So in the Neebing Hotel Company there were Conservatives as well as Reformers; and these naturally come in for a share of the accusation that government favours were shown therein. If so what was it for? If not why have we never had their estimate of the value of the lands they sold to the government? Mr. McBain's description of the Neebing Hotel building makes us doubt if he ever saw it at all, and to incline to the belief that he took his idea of the structure from some one as Prince Arthur's Landing. The building certainly is not sided with slabs, rough edgings and culled lumber, though there is no denying that it is not a very inviting structure, being only inclosed by the first boarding. But being an hotel in course of construction at a point where such a house would naturally do a good business on completion it had a considerable value even beyond the material and labour spent. The site too was of peculiar value for the purpose to which it was assigned. The best proof that it was well worth what was given for it is, that the sellers have offered to buy it back at the same figure, even the contractor, whose quarrel with the Company has been espoused by the Conservatives for the sake of using his denunciations to hit at the government over the shoulders of others, acknowledges that the bare lumber and labor, not to speak of other expense gone to in carrying out the arrangements for even an unfinished building, were worth $3,000; and the total price paid for building and lot was $5,029 not $5,900 as stated by the very veracious Mr. McBain.

As for the doubt concerning the saving of the cost of six miles of railway from the Landing to the Plot, we cannot see how its cost affects the fact that these six miles are built without any expense to the Dominion. If it were only ten cents this expenditure has been avoided. Of the contract for clearing the right of way on the Canada Pacific Railway said by Mr. McBain to try to "fill the craving man of the family compact," we know nothing more than we do of whom he means by the "family compact." If his figures be no nearer the truth than other statements he has made in his letter they are simply untrue. On this, however, we cannot as yet make any distinct declaration. But his comparison of the clearing of tamarac timber from a railway line with the clearing of land for a farm can be readily understood to be an unfair one. The difference between grubbing timber from a 132 feet belt through a tamarac swamp and the comparatively simple work of underbrushing and chopping a forest for burning is a very marked. Besides this little attempt at misrepresentation on this point, Mr. McBain does not tell us whether he or anyone else put in a tender to do the work for any less than that for which the contract has been let. It is every way necessary that the clearing shall be done, on a line the late government was to have built inside of ten years; and we fancy the work has been let to the lowest tender: and if this happens to be Adam Oliver the fault is certainly not that of the government.

CUT THIS OUT.—IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.—There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this county from Germany, and its wonderful cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to J. D. Tully Druggist, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

THE TORY TURN OUT AT MILLBROOK.

In spite of the fact it was supposed to represent the party preparations of West Peterborough for the coming campaign, the Millbrook demonstration, which took place on Thursday last, was a very tame affair. The meeting was held in the afternoon, and although the weather was all that could be desired, the attendance was very small. The Millbrook band was in attendance, and discoursed a number of airs, but the only other sign of life was the presence of a few Tory stragglers, who had evidently been attracted to the village by the band. The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Boswell, Hall, Gifford, Dr. Sprague, and Mr. Hall, M.P.P. for Victoria. The speeches were of the usual character, and were listened to with the most profound indifference by the few persons present. The meeting was held in the open air, and the speakers had to stand in the mud. The whole affair was a complete fizzle, and the Tories of Millbrook must have felt very much disappointed at the result of their efforts to get up a demonstration. The Tory party in Millbrook is not a very strong one, and the few members it has are not very enthusiastic. The Tory leaders in the village are not popular with the people, and the meeting on Thursday last was a fair indication of the state of affairs in Millbrook. The Tories of Millbrook are not to be envied.

WEST RIDING SHOW.

The Fall Show of the West Riding of this County opened here yesterday in the Drill Shed. The day was unfavorable, and it rained more or less during the entire period. The principal part of the show will come off to-day, a report of which we cannot furnish until next week.

The exhibit of field and garden roots was very good; fully equal to the Central Exhibition at Lindsay, in quality and almost in quantity.

The Potatoes shown were of excellent quality. Turnips very large for the season; cabbage, something unusual for a dry time, such as we have had in this part of the county; mangolds, shown by Mr. Crawford, were immensely large, and he showed one turnip that weighed 25 lbs.

The show of fruit was good; superior to the Lindsay Show—in apples at least.

LADIES' WORK.

There was a fair exhibit of Ladies' Work and Fine Arts. But it is a delicate matter to do more than give the award of the prizes. The show in this department fully equalled that of former years, except at the Central Exhibition.

HOME MANUFACTURES

in some divisions were fairly represented, but not largely—justice could scarcely be done to every division until to-day, which would be too late for our present issue—hence we must defer our report until we have an opportunity of witnessing the whole exhibition. The prize list will appear next week.

WE SHALL SEE.

The cause of Temperance as well as all reforms that tend to turn man from paths of sin is of God. And as from God and founded on His Gospel we are anxious to see on which side many professors of religion will array themselves just now.

It cannot be denied that the subject of Temperance is one that concerns every church in this town and county, and as the churches are supposed to be battling against evil, their place should be the forefront of this contest of light against darkness, and in favor of philanthropy and the moral welfare of the entire community.

The town and county groans under the curse of intemperance. This intemperance has its origin in the Bar-rooms which are permitted to exist under the very shadows of our churches, and at the very thresholds of a church going people.

At this time every church in town is awake to the monstrous and deadly upas tree that is killing its victims daily all around us. All our ministers except perhaps one, are arranged against this body and soul destroying plague. In a very short time every municipal elector will be called upon to record his vote on the side of Temperance and of the gospel, or on the side of the Bar-rooms and of evil, and all right thinking men will anxiously wait to see the side men will take. The traffic in intoxicating liquors is an enormous sin against both God and man. By it men are physically and spiritually ruined; where it succeeds religion is a dead letter, profanity and abscanity increase, and poverty and misery are evident; yet men are doubtful as to which side they should take.

COMPENSATION.

Temperance men are asked to compensate those in the traffic and then they say they will go out of it. And compensation is urged as a matter of justice. Just two years ago 30 men in this town were forced out of the business. Did these men who ask compensation, solicit compensation for the 30 poor men whom the law compelled to retire from the business? And the law too that the Hotel Keepers now pretend to admire so strongly and desire to retain. Not a word was then heard about compensation; not a word ever since until the rich men are threatened.

THE DUNKIN ACT IS A FAILURE

It is said wherever passed. If so why do the friends of drunkenness make such efforts to defeat it? If it increases the quantity drunk it must be to their advantage, they will sell the more. But they know well they are not speaking the truth when they say it is a failure.

BRANTFORD

Is referred to as proof of this failure, and boastingly they say there were 104 violations of the law there in two weeks. Two detectives brought up 15 tavern keepers for violating the law, some of them having done so from 5 to 9 times. Now this just proves that the tavern keepers are the law breakers, and a traffic that makes men law breakers is a demoralising traffic and should be voted out of existence.

IN OWEN SOUND

They say under the Dunkin Act there is almost free trade in liquor.

The License Commissioners for Grey however, say:—"The Temperance party in our county are not discouraged. The Dunkin Act has accomplished all that could be reasonably expected of it."

Mr. Creighton, M. P. P. says: the statements that intoxicating liquors are sold as freely as ever over the bars in Owen Sound is not correct. The custom of promiscuous treating has been greatly diminished by the Dunkin Act he avers: and the collector of customs says: he has reason to believe that throughout the county as a whole, drunkenness has very much decreased.

How then can it be said that the Act is a failure? The fact is, it is a success, and that is the reason it is opposed so strenuously by interested persons, who regardless of the number of victims daily perishing through strong drink, wish to perpetuate this fearful curse.

SUNDRY TAXES.

The Anti-Dunkinites are trying to deceive the people to vote for drunkenness by stating that the passage of the Dunkin Act will increase the taxes. The assessed value of property in the County of Peterborough is $8,560,000 in round numbers.

The Revenue for the year amount to $8,600.

This is [illegible] dollar, [illegible] value, if [illegible] there is [illegible]

The Town pays	1,800
To the Jail yearly	1,800
Lambert spent to maintain his family while [illegible]	1,000
By charitable people, given to the suffering poor, over	1,000
Total	$9,800

Here is a clear saving to the ratepayers of $1,200 over and above the license fund.

That is for every dollar received, we save two dollars in the way [illegible] the money into the drinking customs, [illegible] the county and we shall save $2,400 a year, for which we receive the paltry sum of $3,600 in licenses. But this is not all. Where are the losses by drunkenness? Where are the losses from fire caused by drunkenness? Where are the lost sons and brothers through the traffic? Where is the lost time loafing round bar-rooms? Where are the months of lost time paying penalties in jails, central prisons, and the penitentiaries? Where is the shame, sorrow and disgrace caused by the traffic! Surely men will no longer cry that the taxes will be increased by it; and if they should be increased to pay the whole sum, it would only be at the rate of one mill in 10 mills or 10 cents on every $100. Passing the Act would save the tax payers at least $5,3000 a year; and that does not look like higher taxes.

Belleville has been brought to time and made to pay the Toronto volunteers sent down to suppress the Grand Trunk disturbances last winter.

VIGILANT.—The efforts of the License Inspector to suppress the liquor traffic is being pushed, it would appear with greater vigilance than heretofore, and is being attended with a fair measure of success. On Monday last, the proceeds of a sale made by the Bailiff of Sophiasburgh of the effects of A. Lemaile, of Northport, amounting to a trifle less than a hundred dollars, was paid over to liquidate fines previously imposed. The Inspector accompanied by one or two others, paid a personal visit to the saloon of Messrs. Wilson & Vallier, the other day, and having tasted the contents of a decanter, which they pronounced very good whiskey, laid information to that effect, and had them "hauled" before Cadi Norman, when a fine of $20 and costs were imposed.—Picton Gazette.

From the Boston 'Evening Traveller

It is, perhaps, but a simple act of justice to the proprietors of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for us to say that our personal experience in the use of this article has impressed us favorably. One of the proprietors of the Traveller was entirely cured of a severe cough of four months' continuance by the use of this Balsam, and several of our friends and acquaintances, who have tried the article, have found it of great service in relieving them of severe coughs and shortness of breathing, with which they have been afflicted. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Local items are very scarce.

Umbrellas were in demand yesterday.

The fall assizes are crowded out this issue.

It will soon be time to prance out some Mayoralty candidates.

Colonel C. Mason.—A very fine squash was shown us on Saturday last, grown by Mr. McInnis, of South Monaghan, it weighed a little over 26 pounds.

Smokers, Attention!—The best brands of tobaccos and cigars, and the latest novelties in pipes, pouches and smokers' sundries at Rubidge & Shaw's

"My Foolish Wife" is the comedy out in opposition to the book "That Husband of Mine." Married men say that it hardly comes up to the real thing though.

The Assizes.—The Assizes commence at Cobourg on Tuesday next. The "Big Push" trial is likely to be disposed of, and the Castleton tragedy case, both of which will attract considerable attention.

It won't be long before some long-haired poet will break into impassioned song about mellow autumn. The public is hereby cautioned against any act of violence. Treat him mildly, but firmly.

Owing to pressure of more important matter, we have deferred our reply to the scurrilous abuse of the Port Hope Times in its last issue. This with other matter now left over, will receive attention next week.

School Matters.—As soon as the temperance question now before the public is disposed of, we will take up the vexed question of school matters, when we hope to show a little light on some things not now fully understood.

Temperance.—We believe the Editor of the Review has a perfect right to take what side he pleases in this agitation for the Dunkin Bill; but how he can reconcile his course with that of a religious officer in the church is a mystery to us.

Temperance.—Mr. Carswell, of Oshawa, will address the people of Peterborough in Bradburn's Hall both Friday and Saturday evenings. He is a good speaker, and will defend the working of the Bill where it has been in operation.

Come West.—Judge Barrowes has gone to Peterborough, Ontario, West, for the benefit of his health. He selected this place because he had felt its air to be bracing and pure when he remained over at it en route home recently.—Kingston Whig.

Henry Rose has now in stock five car loads of Silver Star export oil, the finest brand of refined petroleum made in Canada. Messrs. Englehart & Co., Hamilton are the refiners. (My prices are as low for any quality as the more inferior brands are sold.) 40

Protect Your Cellars.—Mrs. Henry Collins, of North Monaghan, lately placed a fresh baking of bread in her cellar, as she was about to retire to bed; in the morning it was gone. Some person found the way to Mr. C's cellar and coveted her bread and carried it off.

Do you wish to purchase choice new and stylish Dress Goods, Plain or fancy Wincey's Beautiful Blue Black Lustres, Morning Dresses Plain or Fancy Flannels, Cloths Tweeds or Waterproofs? If so W. J. Wallace Lakefield offers all the above at the most reasonable prices. 40-5ins

Opening of Show Rooms.—The Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms of W. Fairweather & Co., will be opened on Wednesday first, the 17th inst., with all the novelties of the season in Paris, English and American fashions. All are invited to inspect the goods and compare prices. —W. Fairweather & Co. 4

Dunkin Act.—The Montreal Witness is endeavouring to obtain the complete list of counties, townships and towns which have adopted the Act, and any interesting information as to its working, and purposes at Christmas to issue a campaign map of Canada with all those municipalities distinguished by color or shading.

Show Room Opening.—The show rooms of Messrs. Hall, Innis & Co. Miss E. Delaney, and Mrs. E. Brown open on Tuesday the 16th inst., and that of Mr. W. G. Thompson and Messrs. W. Fairweather & Co., on Wednesday, the 17th, when the ladies will, no doubt, take advantage of the event and turn out in large numbers to view the fall fashions.

TUTTLE'S ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF CANADA.—D. Downie & Co. Montreal. We have received Nos 5 & 6, of this handsome and most elaborated work, printed in Lovell's beautiful style. Downie & Co. have secured the copyright and plates, and will, at once place the parts in the hands of their subscribers. All who desire a beautifully illustrated and reliable history of Canada should subscribe at once.

Presentation.—On Tuesday evening last the members of the Friendship Temple, I. O. G. T., presented Miss Bagsley with a gold chain, as a mark of appreciation of her kind services in acting as organist for the Temple, and refusing to accept any remuneration. Miss Bagsley deserves this mark of esteem as she is untiring in her labours on behalf of the temple and of the temperance work in this town.

Valuable Grant.—The Norwood Register says: "Mr. John Burnham, Solicitor, Peterborough, has kindly granted, on the application of the Rev. Mr. Thom, an acre of ground, on Lot 13, 8th concession of Dummer, to the Methodist congregation in Roseback's neighborhood for church purposes. This is certainly a very praise worthy act on the part of Mr. Burnham, having given the land free of all incumberance including conveyancing."

Carlisma.—At a meeting of the Peterboro, Curling Club, held in Mr. Roddy's Hotel, on the 1st inst., the following officers were elected for the ensuing season: Patron.—His Hon. Judge Dennistoun. Patroness.—Mrs. R. (Hon.) Hamilton. Chaplain, Rev. Alex. Bell; President, Alex. Bertram, Esq.; Vice-President, Peter Conrad; Representative members, Mr. D. Walker, Mr. John Glendenning; Sec.-Treasurer, Mr. R. S. Davidson; Committee of Management, Messrs. Roddy, Hall and Ferguson. After the usual routine of business, the Peterborough club affiliated with the Ontario branch of the Royal Caledonian Club, Toronto.

Correction.—The Port Hope Guide of this week says: "By a mistake of the reporter of Mrs. Youmans's speech in last week's Guide made her say:—'This proprietor's wife was a Roman Catholic and requested me to show her my bible, she liked its truth as it is now a Christian.' We regret the mistake very much in deed, as it represents Mrs. Youmans as having said that Mrs. Moloney was a convert, and this Mrs. Youmans did not say at all. The purport of what she said was to the effect:—Mrs. Moloney, who is a Roman Catholic and a true Christian brought out her Bible and she and I with my Protestant Bible sat down and compared the passages in them in reference to the denunciations of drinking habits and were pleased how well they agreed on this point."

The season for public dinners is approaching. This being so, we take occasion to remark that Her Most Gracious Majesty is a lady we are all proud to honor; that the Army, Navy and Volunteers are our brave defenders in time of war; that the Governor-General has endeared himself to all by his urbanity and sympathy with the masses; that our legislative assemblies are the choice of the people, and represent the highest degree of wisdom, and that everybody is a jolly good fellow, which nobody can deny. All of these propositions will be readily granted, and big-mouthed chairmen can take the hint and let up on their periodical bosh, which has been uttered at dinners from time immemorial, whether the occasion was a demonstration to some leading dignity of the State, or the presentation of a 75-cent photograph album to a pound keeper.—London Free.

DUNKIN BILL MOVEMENT.

THE WORK OF REFORM.

A TEMPERANCE ROLL OF OVER 1,000 FOR PETERBOROUGH.

OPERA HOUSE CROWDED TO EXCESS.

Mervin Knowlton uses up R. King Dodds Fallacies.

VOTE FOR THE DUNKIN BILL.

There was another monster temperance meeting held in the Opera House on Saturday evening, and the capacity of the edifice was fully tested, benches being placed in the aisles, while standing room could not be found, many having to go away. The chair was occupied by Mr. Jas. Stratton, and upon the platform were several Rev. Gentlemen and others.

At 8 o'clock the chairman announced that the time had arrived for the opening of the meeting, and announced several meetings that were to be held during the week, after which the choir sang: "What a friend we have in Jesus." The Rev. Mr. Willoughby then opened the meeting with prayer. At the conclusion the choir sang: "Rescue the Perishing." The chairman made a few remarks and concluded by introducing and on that gentleman coming forward was greeted with cheers. The following is a synopsis of his address in reply to Mr. Dodds:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In every disputed matter the best way, I am told by the men of one of England's noted Barristers, is to begin by settling what both parties agree upon, and thereby narrow down the matter down to its legitimate basis. Now, sir, you will await that I stand here to night as counsel for the defence, for the King has issued his decree; let us now proceed to enquire how far we differ, and in what way. I see by the report given in the Review—and I conclude that is correct—that Mr. Dodds claims to be in favor of temperance, the Crooks Act, and Prohibition; so far we agree, but strange to say we differ in regard to the Dunkin Bill. I will now try and answer every objection made to the law by him—their chairman—and hope to do so without giving unnecessary offence to say who may differ with us on this question. I am aware that a sacrifice will of a necessity have to be made in order to remove this curse from our midst. All admit that in the arguments put for by those opposed to us, we all agree on the question as to the fearful amount of injury done all over, we land by the traffic, but we only disagree as in regard to the remedy to be applied. The first objection raised to the Bill in his speech is that it is a piece of class legislation, and being such, it could never be successfully carried out. Now, if I prove that this law, which all intelligent unbiased persons has been passed and successfully carried out, this intelligent audience will admit, I have no doubt, his first charge is fairly answered. In the township of Richmond, County of Lenox, this law was passed 13 years ago, and has been in force ever since, with the following results: The year it was passed the township paid 400 and odd dollars for pauperism; 3 years following under the reign the same people paid 120 dollars, 100 of which was paid to old pensioners (I am told this by one who was then in the council) who had learned to drink under the old Regime. But that is not all, the council of that township in the winter of 1876-7 voted $25.00 to assist a man and his family to get through the winter, and now after 13 years of experience as regards the results of this piece of chimerical legislation, as it is called, that same man has a farm all paid for and a happy family. Can't you stand in Peterborough such a failure? Give such a piece of class legislation as that, which will raise the man from poverty to a position of wealth and happiness. The next point taken by the gentleman is that he heartily endorses the law now in existence, viz: the Crooks Act. Does this not strike you, as an intelligent people, as a little strange, when for a moment you reflect and find that the Association which brought Mr. Dodds here never had an existence in this country until this Act, which he now lauds to the skies, was passed and their formation was for the avowed purpose of defeating that very Act. There are some strange conversions in this world, and none more so than the L. V. A. supporting an Act which they came into existence to destroy. He speaks of the stringencies of the Crooks Act, the very reason they opposed it in 1875. But he says this is class legislation. Is it more so than the Crooks Act? No, and not nearly as much so, as I will at once show. Under the Crooks Act a part of those who were allowed to sell are deprived of their rights as citizens, viz: no hotel or saloon keeper is allowed to hold the office of Alderman in any city or town, but under the Dunkin Bill all who by law are allowed to enjoy all the rights of a citizen without respect to what branch of business he may carry on. "Many," he says, "thought the Crooks Act an infringment on the liberty of the subject and in many points it nearly seemed so;" but education has taught us that law is made to protect the whole people, no matter what the interest of some may be or how much they may suffer. Next the speaker referred to what was found necessary in Toronto. I quote his own words: "400 places were licensed before the act came into force, but they were reduced to 115." Now, at the most, we do not ask one-half the sacrifice teen made, and we are met with the argument that what we now as a people demand is class legislation and unjust. If it was for the countrys good to cut off three-fourths of those engaged in the traffic, surely no one will deny that by the same rule the people would be better if they were all cut off—for none have the hardhood to claim that the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is necessary to the well-being of the subject. He states that he has the evidence of the Secretary of the Provincial League Society that the Dunkin Bill will not do all claimed for it. I ask Mr. Dodds to give me the name of that secretary, and I promise you his term of office will soon expire, for no temperance society that I know of would tolerate an officer of that kind, and I dare say even Mr. Dodds will admit that I ought to, and do know the opinions of temperance societies in this Provinces. Next we are brought to book in regard to, as he calls it, our "Bright Star," Prince Edwards County. Well, all I have to say to that remark is this: Were I in his place I would leave that county alone. Let me ask you here: Who breaks the law in Picton? It is not those who passed the Bill, I can assure you, but the very class of citizens he would have you believe were the only loyal subjects in Canada. Now, sir, is it loyal to set at defiance the laws under which we live? Is it loyal for the minority to claim that they should rule after being defeated twice at the polls? And sir, let me say just here, I consider the last victory in Prince Edward County greater than the first, for this simple reason: That at the first vote only about 1,400 votes were polled, and the next time over three thousand, or nearly three times as many. I feel satisfied there is one man in Picton who believes the Dunkin Bill a grand success; so much so, I am told, he found he could not sell his wares and had to give them away. And what was the result? Why, simply this! He gave all he had away and now mourns his rashness. The Dunkin Bill is not a failure in that county. Liquor is sold it is true; but the people are fast becoming educated that it is not respectable to either drink or sell it, contrary to law, and when what little respectability the law gave the sale of, is taken away, it will sink down into the channel of other criminals actions. Another objection is that the Act does not provide for the expenses of summoning witnesses and other expenses necessary to carry out the law. This I deny, and challenge any man to prove it after reading the amended Act of 1877. This talking of direct taxation is a fallacy brought forward to deceive like the argument of this great man when in Oxford County. He told the farmers there if they voted for this bill they could not sell their barley, and to the people in the town—if they passed it—that they would sell more whiskey than ever. This argument is in keeping with his others, and all only need sifting to show them in their true light. His next point was Brantford, where he says that 113 cases of violation of the law were found in a few days, leading you to believe that that number of men had been found who had violated the Act—but what is the fact, only 14 men had broken the law instead of 113 and some of them as many as nine times. But how did he defend the actions of his party when they resorted to mob law and drive from their midst the men who were sent there to carry out its injunctions? He says they did wrong. So they did. He says they ought to obey the law where it is carried. So they ought; but he says it cannot be carried out. Why? Because the men who sent him here, and pay him to appeal to your British loyalty, have agreed to see if possible that the law shall be broken wherever it is carried. And they are the men who call me and those who agree with me Hypocrites, because we would wish to pay our country rid of a traffic which enhances more misery in it to hundreds living, by means of such low and reckless proceedings. Why do the hotel keepers oppose it? He says they prefer to sell under a license. Do you believe this? If it is so why are we met with the very same the passage of this Bill? Is it because the men of their choice won't be intelligent audience will admit, I have no doubt, his first charge fairly answered. In the township of Richmond, County of Lenox, this law was passed 13 years ago, and has been in force ever since, with the following results: The year it was passed the township paid 400 and odd dollars for pauperism; 3 years following under the reign the same people paid 120 dollars, 100 of which was paid to old pensioners (I am told this by one who was then in the council) who had learned to drink under the old Regime. conclusion we could come to was this: that the traffic in alcohol ruined no criminals, and those who bar the sales of gain would lower the standard of national honor, and trail in dishonor and soil and disgrace the flag we, as Britons, loved so well. He "deplored the Mr. Knowlton saying that while it was to be deplored, yet it only went to prove that the plan, which as much had been said about, had to the case educated a class to favor respect for his honest, and sober by use, would then have reason to see that had him. He deprecated that from those who by their acts in Parliament had taken, in many instances, their all, are now the loudest in their praise of the men who by their wisdom gave us this great success of national prosperity. So I fondly hope the time will come when those who now denounce us as base and uncharitable will say, the people, viz. the government, in their foresight and wisdom gave us the Dunkin Bill as a stepping stone to the final achievement of Canadian Reform and by so doing saved us and our children from the ruin to which the traffic was fast hastening us. Is there not a law in every town that no frame building shall be erected within certain limits. Why is this? Is it to protect the man himself? Not only so but to protect the people at large. So we ask that a few places be closed, if by closing them people as a whole may enjoy the comforts of temperate and sober men, and not be tempted to form an appetite that may and does lead to wretchedness and death. The speaker said temperance hotels was made little jest at the expense of our townsman Mr. Maloney, but Mr. Knowlton, in language both eloquent and argumentative, showed that the act of Mr. Maloney was one that made every honest man rejoice, and raised the standard of Canadian chivalry and honor and paid an eloquent tribute to the name of Maloney, saying it would live long in the history of great and noble acts after such names as King Dodds had sunk into oblivion. Mr. Knowlton referred to other places where temperance hotels had paid, and all that is now wanted in Canada is to raise the standard of humanity from the debased appetite and they would pay anywhere, that there will be free trade in whiskey, as Mr. Dodds asserts, I deny, as no one will believe that any but a few people will break the law when it is passed, and the few will be those who have been trading in it. His own reference to the homes made unhappy by the curse is argument strong enough to induce us to vote it out of the town. His argument on moral suasion could not fail to convince. All who were not blinded by prejudice while much had been and was being done "that work still it seemed very inconsistent for a people to ask one part of the community to labor for the restoration of men while we had Licensed Bar Rooms to lead others in an opposite path. Could we expect ever to succeed in ridding our land from the baneful influences of drink when we fostered a traffic which has dragged and is dragging down all classes of the community to the level of the brute? Mr. Dodds received a rebuke to his remark that temperance fanatics advocated a class of legislation which was worse for the citizen than the curse of drunkenness. Mr. Knowlton compared the state of society now with that of years gone by, and showed beyond a doubt that as a people we owed much to the temperance movement, which had changed the passion of men so that it was no longer respectable to get drunk, but a disgrace to be found loung ing in or around bar-rooms. The next point, that "the Main Liquor Law was a failure," well what would Mr. Dodds say to the fact that the people who lived under it could not be persuaded to appeal it. It would be remembered that the law had been in force over twenty years, and so strong were the convictions of the people that after these years of trial only 5 men could be found in the legislature who would vote for its repeal, and no party in the state to day can be found who dare to oppose it openly on the Hustings. The argument brought forward by some that in its early inception one man was killed in trying to carry out its principles; but they who used this argument forget to tell you that while in all that great nation only one man had been killed in twenty years caused by the act, and every year the rum traffic counts among its slain over 50,000 men and women who pay the penalty of unwise legislation. He referred to the remarks of Senator Morrill, late Treasurer of the United States, who on retiring from public life said that the Main law with all its imperfections had done more for the State than any other law on the Statute books, and that he would be glad to see the nation which he had served for over forty years take the same step, for he had faith in the justice of the Act that it would give the country like results. The law, the speaker said, was broken, but so were all laws, and that only proved the more conclusively the need of such law. But he contended that while that was the case the State had received a benefit which could not be measured by dollars and cents. Main like other places was made up of a mixed population, and it would be strange if there were not found bad men within its borders who for gain would sink their manhood and become law-breakers instead of wealth producers. He then referred to several counties which represent a large population where for some time past their had been no gregs shops, and in their jails there were no criminals. Was that a failure? Surely we could and would accept the same kind of a failure here, in the Brantford case he said, is it true that in Canada and in a city, too, that it has come to this that officers of the law cannot do their duty? Are they to receive at the hands of those opposed to them such treatment that they are compelled to leave a place in disgust? Is this the standard from which Mr. Dodds judges the high position of our adjacent? If it is to be hoped not, for surely no one will pretend that the mob in that place were made up of those noble men who a few short months ago helped to pass the Bill and if not the only

Bread at the Bridgenorth Show.

At the annual Fair of the United Townships of Smith, Monaghan, Ennismore, held at Bridgenorth on Tuesday last there were seven entries for Bread, and it is needless to state that the competitors were all first class bakers. But the Bread made from the Flour gristed at the city Flour and Gristing Mills Bridgenorth, carried off the first Prize. How is this for the Northern city mills? Farmers and others who have any gristing to be done we would advise them to give the Bridgenort Mills a trial when they will no doubt be able to get a superior quality of Flour. Parties in town wanting to get a superior quality of Flour would do well to leave in their orders at once with Mr. L. Fisher as he has a quantity of it on hand at present.

THE DUNKIN ACT IN YONGE.

(To the Editor of The Globe.)

SIR.—With your permission, I wish through the columns of The Globe, to correct a statement often made, namely, that where the Dunkin Act has been passed there is more drunkenness now than before. In so far, at least, as this refers to the Township of Yonge, I am prepared to give it a positive denial. I have lived in the village of Mallorytown, township of Yonge Front, over two years, and in all that time I can remember seeing only one drunken man (and no drunken women!) either in the village or in the township, and he had a bottle of liquor with him which he had brought from a neighboring township. The assertion has been made in Kingston and elsewhere that there is more drunkenness and more liquor sold in Mallorytown now than before the Dunkin Act was passed. I know this to be false, for, though it was passed before I came to live here, I have plenty of evidence that a great deal of drunkenness consequently resulted, while now a drunken man can scarcely be seen in the place, and when one is seen it is one who has obtained liquor in some other township. When men of common sense, who have had opportunity to ascertain the state of affairs here relative to the drinking nuisance, will still affirm that the Dunkin Act is a failure here, and that more liquor is sold now than before it was passed, they are simply affirming what they know is not true, and in saying this I have the concurrence of the Reeve of the township of Yonge.

Many of the citizens of Mallorytown would gladly pay $20 a year extra taxes rather than have liquor-selling again licensed in the place—so they have told me. The temperance people here rejoice at the success of the Dunkin Act, and the cry of "failure" is raised only by those who are chagrined because it is not a failure. The Dunkin Act with an efficient License Inspector, both of which we are favoured with, is a good thing for a township, and consequently would be still better for a larger district. The sooner it becomes provincial the better.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES LAWSON,
Principal Public School.

(Special to the Witness, Sept. 21st.)

An Improvident Revenue.—In the last session of the House of Commons on the 6th of March, Mr. Dalton McCarthy, the "Rising Hope" of the Opposition, moved for a return of the names of persons appointed to office between the 1st of January and the 7th November, 1873; the name of officials whose salaries were increased during the same period, &c. This return has been published, and the following is a summary of the appointments other than to fill vacancies made between the 1st January and the 1st of December, the period when it was well known that the expenses of the Pacific Scandal rendered the defeat of the Government certain:—Governor General's office, three appointments, increase, $300; Privy Council, one appointment, $700, six increases, $630; Secretary of State, nine appointments, $4 690, nine increases $1,650; Public Works, twenty-eight appointments, $31,949,171 increase, $19.074; Justice, seventy-five appointments, $77,900, eleven increases $1,700; Interior, nineteen appointments, $14 ?.70, twenty-five increases, $5,010; Customs, 111 appointments. $46.076, 636 increases, $67,185; Militia, six appointments, $5,600.16, increase, $3,617.50; Inland Revenue, eighty four appointments, $30,315.96 increase, $16,550; Finance, seventeen appointments, $15,409.34 increases. $3,650; Receiver-General, two appointments, $2,600.-07, increases $1,200; Agriculture, forty-one appointments, $35,025.16, increase $3,170; Marine and fisheries one hundred and fifty nine appointments. $31,300.46, increase $9,025; Post-Office, 77 appointments, $26,-070.31, increases, $12,239. In other words this return shows that no ones were the mortified government to provide places for their friends before the day of meeting of Parliament, which they knew would be fatal to them.

Let us sum up the whole in a sentence or two. In the course of ten months (mostly in the last two) Sir John Macdonald's Government made 629 new appointments apart from filling up vacancies. These involved salaries of $323,943. It also increased 1,381 salaries to the extent of $152,350 47. In all 2,010 offices, with an additional outlay of $475,-293. It is easier to increase salaries than to diminish, but how stands the account against the present Government? Let us simply put the salaries paid on the 7th of November, 1873, and those on the 5th of March, 1877, and let anyone judge.—Globe 24th Sept.

	7th Nov., 1873.	5th March, 1877
Governor-General's office	$ 4,000	$ 1,850
Privy Council	10,000	10,700
Secretary of State	16,160	16,600
Public Works	167,700	29,501
Justice	57,470	72,240
Interior	30,720	37,400
Customs	445,730	247,556
Militia	20,350	25,100
Inland Revenue	113,105	100,020
Finance	40,560	41,4?0
Receiver-General	16,400	10,200
Agriculture	67,765	32,215
Marine and Fisheries	78,220	57,025
Post Office	224,?4	204,674
	$1,396,103	$1,073,295

SCANDAL IS HIGH LIFE.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—About a year ago the upper tendom of Montreal was shocked to learn that a young civil engineer, Brydges by name, a son of C. J. Brydges, Government Railway Inspector, had eloped with Mrs. Mackenzie wife, of a prominent merchant, and neice of Sir Hugh Allan, a wealthy steamship owner. They took with them her little daughter, about five or six years of age. The runaway pair were traced to New York, and thence to Philadelphia. In the latter city they were overhauled by the friends of Mrs. Mackenzie. It what asserted by both that they were guiltless of crime other than the elopement. Brydges claimed that he was actuated only by a platonic affection for the lady, and she on her part stated that her home had become so distasteful to her that she could no longer reside in it. Through the intervention of friends Mrs Mackenzie returned to Montreal, where her husband consented to a reparation. After having been nine days' wonder in the society of Montreal the scandal died out. It was yesterday revived in a measure in this city. Some time during the early summer Mrs. Mackenzie came to Chicago and made her home at the Grand Pacific Hotel. On the 2nd of June she filed a bill for a divorce against her husband, William G. Mackenzie. The papers were suppressed. Yesterday the suit was dismissed in Judge Williams' court at the instance of Mrs. Mackenzie's lawyers at her cost. The old love may have conquered, and the twain are no longer two but one.

Just So.—The following very pertinent remarks are presented by a contemporary:—A newspaper man may puff and extole any man or set men to the seventh heaven, and the men all the time imagine that that is part of the newspaper's business; but the moment the editor ventures to brush the fur the wrong way, even be it ever so little, all the former good words go for naught, and he rushes into the sanctum with fire in his eye and an order on his lips that he wants that thing made right. An exchange vouches for the correctness of this remark.

In an editorial on the progress of religious journalism in Canada, the British American Presbyterian makes the following allusions to its own future:

"As evidence that we are speaking advisedly, it gives us pleasure to refer to changes in the Presbyterian which will soon be carried into effect. In a short time this paper will appear under a new name, that of the Canada Presbyterian, a title by which we hope to be long and honorably known in this land. The Presbyterian, will be changed in shape from the ordinary newspaper to the book form. It will be a quarto paper of sixteen pages. With these changes, we hope to reach a higher degree of excellence in all our department. It is needless to speak more of these at present, but we are satisfied when the change has been made—and that will be in a very short time—our readers will acknowledge that the departure is not only now, but a most promising and hopeful one for the future. With such improvements as we promise, and with these which will be made from time to time, we doubt not that our circulation will be greatly increased, and that the Canada Presbyterian, will still more than it has done in the past, prove itself worthy the confidence and support of the Presbyterian Church.

The Irish Canadian claims compensation for the liquor-dealers if their traffic is seriously injured. Why should they be compensated? They have had altogether too much compensation already. Besides, have they not had warning enough during the past five years in the change of public sentiment against them, to make them quit the business? Compensation! Put the boot on the other foot. Shouldn't the liquor-dealers compensate the hundreds whom they have mercilessly reduced to poverty? Think it over again, Bro. Boyle!

The following "Declaration anent the use of alcoholic liquors as a beverage," has been signed by the medical men of Montreal. "We, the undersigned members of the medical profession in Montreal, are of opinion—1. That a large proportion of human misery, poverty, disease, and crime, is produced by the use of alcoholic liquors, as a beverage. 2. That total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, whether fermented or distilled, is consistent with, and conductive, to the highest degree of physical and mental health and vigor. 3. That abstinence from intoxicating liquors would greatly promote the health, morality, and happiness of the people.

Signed by G. W. Campbell, A. M., M. D., Professor of the Principles and Practices of Surgery, and Dean of Faculty of McGill Montreal, and ninety others.

Vest Sundries.—Horse dealers who are supposed to know what affects their interest, purchase "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" by the dozen, and feed it to their horses for the purpose of improving their condition, which it always does—others should profit by their example. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

A common cough or cold should never be trifled with: often when neglected it is converted into a serious and generally fatal pulmonary disease. The many painful cases of this, promptly use "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers," a curative which has obtained its reputation for over twenty years. They are always efficacious and exert a most beneficial influence on all the bronchial and pulmonary organs. Sold by all druggists and country dealers at 25 cents per box.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic); Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Films, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

The American Eye-Salve is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most obstinate cases of any acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. Erysipelas and Old Chronic Sores, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the American Eye-Salve. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. Pettit's American Eye-Salve," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be the greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effects.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIGDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

THE DUNKIN BILL.

An Act to amend the laws in force respecting the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors and the issue of Licenses therefor and otherwise for repression of abuses resulting from such sale,

[Assented to 30 June, 1864.]

Whereas it is expedient to amend the laws in force in this Province, respecting the sale of Intoxicating Liquors and the issue of Licenses therefor, and otherwise to provide for the repression of the abuses resulting from such sale, the whole as hereinafter is set forth: Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advise and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Canada, enacts as follows:

PROVISIONS AS TO LOCAL PROHIBITION.

1. The Municipal Council of every county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village in this Province, besides the powers at present conferred on it by law, shall have power at any time to pass a by-law for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors and the issue of licenses therefor, within such county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village, under authority and for enforcement of this Act, and subject to the provisions and limitations hereby enacted.

2. Such by-law shall be drawn up and passed in ordinary form; and shall not have embodied therein any other provision than the simple declaration, that the sale of intoxicating liquors and the issue of licenses therefore, is by such by law prohibited within such county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village, under authority and for enforcement of this Act.

3. Any Municipal Council, when passing such by-law, may order that the same be submitted for approval to the Municipal Electors of the municipality; and in that case, the same shall not take effect, unless approved:

(2.) Any thirty or more duly qualified Municipal Electors of any municipality in Upper Canada,—or if the by-law is for a county, then of each municipality in the county,—may at any time by a requisition in the form of A 1, hereto appended, or to the like effect, signed by them and delivered on their behalf to the Clerk of the municipality, require that any by-law which the Municipal Council thereof may pass under authority and for enforcement of this Act, at any time within one year from the date of such requisition, be submitted for the like approval; and in that case such by-law shall not take effect unless approved.

4. Any thirty or more duly qualified Municipal Electors of any city, town, township parish or incorporated village, the Council whereof has not passed a by-law under authority and for enforcement of this Act, or after passing has repealed the same,—or wherein such by-law, having been submitted for approval, or for adoption, (as the case may be,) to the Electors, either has not been approved or adopted, or after approval or adoption has been repealed,—may at any time (not being in the latter case, less than two full years after such vote of non-approval or non-adoption, or after such repeal) by a requisition in the form A. 2, hereto appended, or to the like effect, signed by them and delivered on their behalf to the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of the municipality, propose a by-law to that end, for adoption by the Electors thereof, and require that a poll be taken to determine whether or not they will adopt the same:

(2.) Such Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer, on receiving any such requisition, shall immediately endorse upon the same a certificate under his hand, of the date of the delivery thereof to him; and shall file and keep the same among the records of the Municipal Council of the municipality.

5 On the passing of any order for the submission of a by-law, or the passing of any by-law whereof the submission has been so required, or the receipt of any such requisition for the adoption of a by-law, (as the case may be,) the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer shall forthwith cause such by-law, or such requisition for adoption of a by-law, (as the case may be,) to be published for four consecutive weeks, in some newspaper published weekly or oftener within the municipality, or if there is no such newspaper published in the municipality, then in some newspaper published as near thereto as may be, and also by posting up copies of the same in at least four public places in the municipality, and if the by-law is for a county, then in at least four public places in each municipality in the county,—with a notice signed by him, signifying that on some day within the week next after such four weeks, at the hour of ten in the forenoon, and at some convenient place, (or if the by-law is for a county, places) named in the notice, a meeting of the Municipal Electors of the municipality (or if the by-law is for a county, then each municipality in the county) will be held, for the taking of a poll, to decide whether or not the by-law is approved, or is adopted, (as the case may be,) by such Electors:

(2.) If the by-law is for a county, such poll shall not be taken for the whole county at one place, but shall be taken in each of the several municipalities of the county respectively;

(3.) At such meeting, the Mayor or Reeve of the municipality in which the same is held—or in his absence, such other member of the Municipal Council thereof as may be chosen by the meeting—or if no such member is present, then any Municipal Elector who may be chosen by the meeting shall preside, and shall have all the powers for the preservation of the public peace, which by law are vested in the person presiding at any municipal election in Lower Canada, or in the Returning Officer at any municipal election in Upper Canada, according as the meeting is in Lower or in Upper Canada; and the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of the municipality shall attend thereat with the assessment rolls of the municipality then in force, or certified copies thereof; and the only business to be transacted shall be the taking of a poll, as signified by such notice.

(4.) Each Elector desiring to vote shall present himself in turn to the person presiding, and shall give his vote "yea" or "nay,"—the word "yea" meaning that he votes for the by law, and the word "nay" that he votes against the same; and every vote given shall be recorded in a pool-book by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer acting as poll-Clerk, or in his absence, by such person as may be named to act as poll clerk by the person presiding; but no person's vote shall be recorded, unless he appears by the assessment rolls to be a duly qualified Municipal Elector, and further makes oath (if thereto required), in Lower Canada, in terms of the twelfth sub-section of the thirty-third section of the Lower Canada Consolidated Municipal Act,—and in Upper Canada, in terms of the ninth sub section of the ninty-seventh section of the Act chaptered fifty-four of the Consolidated Statutes for Upper Canada;

(5.) If at any time after the opening of the poll, one half hour elapses without a vote being offered, the poll may be closed;

(6.) Unless for that cause closed earlier the poll shall be kept open till the hour of five in the afternoon of the day of the opening thereof, and no longer, if the names of the qualified Municipal Electors on the assessment rolls of the municipality are not more than four hundred in number,—and until the like hour of the next day (Sunday and holidays excluded), if such names are more than four hundred and not more than eight hundred in number: and so on, allowing one additional day for each additional four hundred nance;

(7.) Until closed in terms of one or other of the foregoing sub sections, the poll shall be adjourned daily at the hour of five in the afternoon, to the hour of ten in the forenoon of the next day—Sundays and holidays excluded;

(8.) At the close of the poll, the person presiding shall count the "yeas" and the "nays," and ascertain and certify on the face of the poll book, the number of votes given for and against the by-law respectively; and such certificate shall be countersigned by the poll clerk; and the poll-book, with such certificate therein, shall be deposited with and kept by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of the municipality to be affected by the by-law, among the records of the Municipal Council thereof;

(9.) If the by-law is for a county, the Warden of the County, as soon as the poll books of the several municipalities therein are so deposited, shall count and add up from each poll book the total number of the "yeas" and of the "nays," respectively, in all the municipalities forming such county, and shall certify the same in writing; and such certificate shall be countersigned by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of the county, and shall be deposited and kept with the poll books, among the records of the County Council;

(10.) If one-half or more of all the votes polled are against the by-law, the same shall be held to be not approved, or not adopted, as the case may be;

(11.) If more than half of all the votes polled are for the by-law, the same shall be held to be approved, or adopted as the case may be;

(12.) It shall not be necessary, in Lower Canada, that any by-law so approved, or adopted, as the case may be, should be published in the manner required by law in the case of ordinary by-laws;

(13.) A by-law so approved, or adopted, as the case may be, may be repealed by a by-law of the Municipal Council of municipality affected thereby; but such repealing by-law shall be submitted for approval to the Electors, in the manner and with the formalities prescribed by the foregoing subsections, and shall not take effect unless approved by a majority of the Electors voting thereon; nor, if any such repealing by-law (upon being submitted to the Electors) is not approved shall any other repealing by-law be submitted, for the like approval, within the full term of two years thereafter.

6. Every by-law passed under authority and for enforcement of this Act, shall be communicated by delivery of a copy thereof, certified by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer, to the Collector of Inland Revenue within whose official district the municipality affected thereby is situate:

(2.) When over such by-law has been approved by the Electors, there shall be endorsed or written upon the copy so delivered, a certificate of the fact, under the hand of the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer, in the form B. 1, hereto appended, or to the like effect;

(3.) Whenever such by-law has been adopted by the Electors, a copy of the requisition therefore, certified by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer, together with a certificate under his hand thereon endorsed or written, of the fact of its adoption in the form B 2, hereto appended, or to the like effect, shall be taken as a duly certified copy of the by law, for all purposes of such delivery, and for all other purposes whatever.

7. Every such county by-law shall also, at the same time, be communicated by the like delivery, to the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of each municipality in the county, who shall file and keep the same among the records of the Municipal Council thereof.

8. As regards the prohibition of issue of licenses, every such by-law shall come into force from the day of the communication thereof to the Collector of Inland Revenue; and as regards the prohibition of such sale, and otherwise, every such by-law,—if on the day of such communication there is in force within the municipality any other by-law for prohibiting and preventing such sale, under authority of the Lower Canada Consolidated Municipal Act, or of the Act chaptered fifty-four of the Consolidated Statutes for Upper Canada, as the case may be, shall come into force so as to become substituted for, and to repeal, such other by-law from that day,—or if on that day there is no such other by-law in force, shall come into force in Lower Canada, from the first day of May, and in Upper Canada from the first day of March next, after that day; and every such by law shall continue in force, in Lower Canada, until the first day of May, and in Upper Canada until the first day of March next after the repeal thereof;

(2.) If at the time of the coming into force of any County by-law, passed under authority and for enforcement of this Act, there is in force within any municipality forming part of such county, any other by-law passed under authority and for enforcement of this Act, the operation of such mentioned by-law shall be and remain suspended for so long as the county by-law continues in force,—but shall revive, in default of express repeal thereof, should the county by-law be repealed.

9. No such by law shall be repealed, within the full term of one year from the day of the communication thereof to the Collector of Inland Revenue.

10. The Municipal Councils of any two or more neighboring municipalities, wherein any such by-law is in force, may each of them, by a further by-law, concur in and confirm, mutually, such bylaw or by-laws of the other or others of such municipalities:

(2.) Such further by-law shall not have embodied therein any other provision than the simple declaration that the by-law or by-laws of the neighboring municipality or municipalities in question are thereby concurred in and confirmed; and shall be communicated in like manner to the Collector of Inland Revenue, or Collectors, as the case may be:

(3.) Such further by-law shall be submitted for approval to the Electors, in the manner and with the formalities prescribed by the fifth section of this Act,—and shall not take effect unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon;

(4.) No by-law so mutually concurred in and confirmed shall thereafter be repealed, unless with the like concurrence in and confirmation of such repeal, on the part of the municipalities in question.

11. In Lower Canada, from the day of communication to him of any by-law passed under authority and for enforcement of this Act, and for so long thereafter as the same continues in force, no Collector of Inland Revenue shall issue any license to take effect within the county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village, affected by such by-law,—either for keeping an inn, tavern, or other house or place of public entertainment, and for retailing whisky or any spirituous liquors, wine, ale, beer, porter, cider, or other vinous or fermented liquors,—or for keeping an inn, tavern, or other house or place of public entertainment, and for retailing wine, ale, beer, porter, cider, or other vinous or fermented liquors, but not brandy, rum, whisky, or other spirituous liquors,—or for vending or retailing in any store or shop, brandy, rum, whisky, or other spirituous liquors, and wine, ale, beer, porter, cider, or other vinous or fermented liquors, in a quantity not less than three half-pints at any one time; and no person shall be liable by reason of his not having therein any license of such description, to the penalty of fifty dollars, imposed by the twenty-second section of the Act chaptered six of the Consolidated Statutes for Lower Canada, intituled: An Act respecting tavern keepers and the sale of intoxicating liquors:

(2.) In Upper Canada from the like day and for the like period, no Collector of Inland Revenue shall issue, to take effect within the like limits,—either any tavern license, that is license for the retail of spirituous, fermented or other manufactured liquors to be drunk in the inn, ale-house, beer-house, or other house of public entertainment in which the same is sold,—or any shop-license, that is license for the retail of such liquors in shops, stores or places other than inns, ale-houses, beer-houses, or places of public entertainment.

12. From the day on which such by-law takes effect for other purposes, as aforesaid, and for so long thereafter as the same continues in force, no person, unless it be for exclusively medicinal or sacramental purposes, or for bona fide use in some art, trade or manufacture, or as hereinafter authorized by the third or by the fourth sub-section of this section, shall, within such county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, expose or keep for sale, or directly or indirectly, on any pretence or by any device, sell or barter, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property give, to any other person, any spirituous or other intoxicating liquor, or any mixed liquor capable of being used as a beverage and part of which is spirituous or otherwise intoxicating, in violation of the twelfth section of this Act, shall incurr a penalty of not less than twenty, nor more than fifty dollars for each such offence; and whoever, in the employment of or on the premises of another, so exposes or keeps for sale, or sells, or barters, or gives, in violation of the said section, shall be held equally guilty with the principal, and shall incurr the same penal

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 18, 1877.

AFTER THE PICNICS.

Now that the political picnic season has fairly closed, and the flying columns of both parties may be said to have retired into winter quarters, there is some chance of properly estimating the results of the summer's campaign. What has been effected by all these demonstrations and their attendant declamation? What good, if any, has been done? What harm, if any? Have the benefits been anyway commensurate with the cost in money, time and trouble? Has either side gained upon the other; and in what way? These are questions which naturally form themselves in the minds of all who have witnessed (and who has not?) the very active efforts of the political leaders, Reform and Conservative, to convince the people that their particular views and acts are to be commended to the condemnation of those of their opponents.

There can be no doubt that the numerous political gatherings held throughout the country during the past summer have been the means of diffusing among the people, in a way not otherwise possible, a considerable amount of political knowledge, of a sort. Men who cannot or will not take the trouble to inform themselves on the questions of the day by reading, have had these matters brought to their attention in the shape of speeches; and they will be very dull brains indeed in which ideas thus introduced will not expand and give rise to further inquiry upon the matters of which cognizance has been taken. The carrying out of such a process will prove good, not only for the brains directly concerned, but for those around them, and thus for the people at large. Another good effected has been the bringing of the political leaders directly in contact, for a brief time at least, with a large proportion of the people thus affording a chance of judgment upon the relative merits and apparent motives of the men who manage the opposing parties. A much better estimate of a man's sincerity can be formed from the manner than from the matter of his speech; and especially is the reader of a speech disadvantaged in comparison with the hearer, after the language of the address has been manipulated by the reporter, to its improvement or injury; but generally the former. In this way not only the style and motive is lost; but merely a part of the matter, generally the very best is presented. The auditor, on the contrary takes it all in, gets at the expression, the heartiness, and genuine feeling of the speaker; and thus he is the better enabled to judge of the true value of the sentences as they fall upon his ear, and to ponder upon them afterwards with a correct appreciation of their sincerity. In this way an advantage was offered to the people to estimate in some degree the consistency of each speaker they listened to at any of the pic-nics, and to a still greater degree to judge, from a comparison of the several speakers, the general homogeneity or otherwise of the party in the interest of which that particular demonstration was got up. Besides these privileges granted the people by the political pic-nics, they gave the prominent men attending them an opportunity of learning by observation much concerning different parts of the country, and which knowledge it is necessary for them to possess.

In order that the gains we have mentioned should have been procured to the full, it would have been necessary that curiosity, or some other motive, should have brought out to the political gatherings all those who were not otherwise cognizant of the matters discussed at them. This was far from being the case, however. The great majority of those who would have profitted most by the speeches, were so blissfully ignorant of politics, and even of party differences, that they felt no desire to attend gatherings where matters of no interest to them would be introduced, and so did not go at all. Thus very nearly all who did go went with more or less knowledge of the chief points of discussion; and while all undoubtedly could glean new ideas from the speeches, not a few had already gained as much knowledge as made attendance practically useless on that score. Not only so. The majority went predisposed one way or the other; so that their prejudices were strengthened either in favour of the party views enunciated, or against the speakers and their friends as arrant deceivers. Partizan rancour was thus increased, and while the surface of the political sea was agitated, the profound depths were scarce stirred. A further evil has been the cheapening of our chief men by their making themselves part of a raree-show, and the weakening of their utterances in the popular mind, owing to the fact that they were called forth with prodigal profusion and without any great occasion demanding what is usually the result of and important concentration of circumstances in the state.

Altogether we are inclined to the belief that the political pic-nics have not brought forth the fruit expected of them by either side; that in this case as in most others, the results have fallen far short of the expectations. Indeed we would not be eager to combat the statement that the disadvantages to the state have gone beyond any advantages that may have arisen from them. Got up as they were for party purposes, it is not surprising that the weightier matters which concern the progress of the country should be lost sight of, to a large extent at least, in the discussion of minor points of difference between the government and the opposition, the raising of partizan cries, and allusion to the scandals that have of late years disgraced and made distasteful to men of refined feeling and judicial mind our active Canadian politics. If either side deserves more credit than the other for the manner in which these meetings have been conducted, it is certainly the party supporting the ministry. There has been with them more of that calmness conductive to thought, less of a striving after extraneous display, a deeper regard for the importance of the questions they meet to discuss, and altogether less demagogueism and personal detraction in the speeches to which the people had to listen. For this reason the party if any there be, is likely to beat gain on the side of the Reformers. It is probable however that the converts are inconsiderable in number who may fairly be claimed as a result of the political picnics alone, and we may set it down that other and weightier influences will sway the popular mind while it considers the great question of self-government, the election of representatives, and the men to be preferred as ministers.

THE DUNKIN ACT.

While the evils produced by the traffic in intoxicating drinks, upheld as it has so far been by social usages, are deplored by all, and while the Dunkin Act being brought forward here and elsewhere as a means whereby the traffic may be more curtailed, there are some who oppose such legislation. The chief objectors are those who are in some way personally and pecuniarily interested in the business of liquor-selling, and this of itself makes very doubtful the fairness, while it explains fully the great zeal of their advocacy. The men and journals who have been prominent in their antagonism to the Dunkin Act since its late prominent submission to the people of the Province of Ontario have been either directly concerned in the liquor trade, or have been the paid advocates of the Licensed Victuallers Association. A comparizon of the Dunkin as against the Anti-Dunkin advocates is one of charity against selfishness. This was brought prominently forward during the struggle in the city of Toronto, and the defeat of the Act there opened the eyes of all people of the terrible power the liquor interest has attained, especially as it is a power which must exercise an evil influence, and that continually. Its baneful effects upon the health of community morally, mentally and physically, will be admitted by all but those directly employed in the traffic or their most degraded victims; and even the denial of these will spring from fear of selfcondemnation instead of conviction. For such a poison in the social system some antidote must be found. One is offered us in the Dunkin Act. Instead of doubting its efficacy and refusing its application, at the suggestion of those whose riches depend on the continuation of the poison, let us rather take the common sense course of giving the proffered alleviating agent a fair trial. This we can do the more readily because is is recommended by men of honest purpose, of good report, and of valuable reputation; not by trading quacks, who would prey upon those they pretended to benefit. We do not wish to be understood as condemning the motives of every one of those opposed to the Dunkin Act, and extolling all who are in favour of it. There is such a thing as error honestly come by, as there is the use of abstract truth for base and indefensible purposes. But it must be admitted that a general estimate of the two parties gives a lofty preminence to the Dunkinites over their opponents in the matters to which we have alluded above. Concerning the objection that the Dunkin Act is of a compulsory character, we have but little to say; further than that, the same complaint may be urged against all our laws against wrong doing. The representation that the promoters of the Dunkin Act are trying to compel men to stop drinking intoxicating liquors is rather erroneous. They are only trying to put further restrictions on the sale of articles which the state by numerous laws already in force has acknowledged to be dangerous, and as such needing restriction. A Prohibitory Liquor Law (which the Dunkin Act is not in the full sense) does not induce a man to drink intoxicants by his rebellion against compulsion any more than laws regulating the trade in gunpowder induce a man to shoot himself. The Dunkin Act does not try to declare what a man shall or shall not drink; but it does aim at narrowing the trade in articles the general sale of which is admittedly hurtful to the whole community. It does not deal with the drinker, or even with the offence of drunkenness; but with the present inordinate facilities for drunkard making. This being its scope, we have to consider whether it is likely to be effectual in that direction. The eagerness with which its opponents point to failures to secure convictions where it has been passed show that they not only wish it was inoperative, but that they are willing to use every means to make it so. To such means indeed have some of the failures to convict been due, intimidation and subornation of witnesses being so much in connection with liquor cases which are notoriously hard to prove, at the best of times, owing to the witnesses being those who become brother sneaks in buying from the more avaricious sneak who sells contrary to law. Unscrupulousness of offenders has been seconded in many instances by official weakness, and not unfrequently by official connivance. For instance, where the County Judge had been in the habit of drinking in a bar-room during prohibited hours, it is not at all likely the liquor sellers would have any great fear for the consequences of a breach of the law. And where the Inspector was in open sympathy with them they would not be apt to be particular about stopping the sale of liquor just out of obedience to the new law.

The Dunkin Act has not been in general operation long enough yet to judge fairly of its merits. Official inexperience of its enforcement, leaving all else out of the question, would naturally tend to hinder it working for a time. The increase in the number of informations in a County after its coming into force, instead of telling against it, is rather an argument in its favor, and a compliment besides to official vigilance. Proximity of a municipality enforcing it to one where it is not in force is another hindrance to its full effect as a beneficial law; but this difficulty is being greatly lessened by the rapid increase in the extent of territory over which it will soon hold good. It has already been passed in York, Ontario, Northumberland and Durham Counties; is submitted and will be carried in our county.

Simcoe and Victoria will probably follow suit, Grey has passed it. It is likely to be submitted in Hastings, is in force in Prince Edward, and there are several Dunkin counties to the east of that. So we expect shortly to see the Act in force in a block of territory which will in a short time give such evidences as will admit of a reasonable judgment as to its value. In the meantime it is satisfactory to know that where it has been longest in force, there is it most successful, and that those municipalities in both Quebec and Ontario, which have had the best chance to judge of its benefits are least likely to consent to its repeal. What ever fault may be found with particular clauses of the Act loses its force in view of the fact that at the next session of Parliament such minor faults can, and are likely to be amended: therefore we have in considering the question to base our thoughts on the general principles that pervade the Bill, and judge whether they be good or evil. On this point we feel certain no man will have any difficulty in determining.

THE DUNKIN BILL.

Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Dumble addresses over 1,200 people in the Opera House.

MR. KNOWLTON REFERS AGAIN TO R. KING DODDS FALLACIES.

Mr. Dumble Explains the working of the Dunkin and Crooks Act

On Thursday evening last the Opera House was crowded to excess to hear the arguments brought forward by the advocates of the Dunkin Bill. Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Dumble addressed the meeting.

The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Stratton, President of the Blue Ribbon Club. The meeting was opened by the choir singing "Rescue the Perishing;" after which Rev. Mr. Metheral led in prayer. The choir then sang: "Rejoice and be glad." After which the chairman arose and introduced Mr Knowlton, who on coming forward was greeted with applause.

Mr. Knowlton commenced his address by saying that he was here to-night to continue his reply to the arguments of R. King Dodds, and hoped he would be pardoned for this remark. His excuse for asking the people of this town to again assemble to hear him in reply to a speech that only took one evening to deliver is, that in all cases it takes twice as long to refute to an assertion than it does to make it. But he would endeavor to be as brief as possible, and would only take up and answer the prominent objections that have been advanced against the Bill, and first he might be considered at times a little severe in some of his remarks he would say that this being a question of compromise between two contending parties it does admit of two sides, and consequently there are those, he believed, who oppose us honestly, and are convinced that their position is right; and knowing this he would be the last one to unjustly accuse such men as being actuated by principles of selfish greed.

One of the most noticeable objections raised to the Act is that it cannot be worked when passed, and as this seems to be one of the great obstacles in the way of some to vote with us, he would refer again to this by simply comparing the Acts of 1864-74-6-7 and in carefully reading them it is at once seen that they have been so formed as to work in perfect harmony with each other and not only that but Mr. Crook's Act has so strengthened the Temperance Act as to make it a perfect piece of Legislation, and one that has all the elements of success in its provisions. And he called attention to some of them to show that the statements that he had just made were correct. Under the Dunkin Bill, as it formerly was every person could sell without a license, and also without the restrictions which have done so much to make the Crook's Act as it has proved to be. Under the two Acts no one could sell without a wholesale license, and that only sell liquor and nothing else. This of itself is a strong feature in favor of the two Acts, when together. Then under the Crooks Act where the Temperance Act is in force, the municipal council may reduce the number of licenses to any number that they see fit. You can therefore readily see that we have law enough. All we require is that the people will accept it at the polls, and when accepted see that it is honestly carried out. If this is done he had no doubt that even those who now condemned it strongly will learn to accept it and obey its instructions.

Then another point is raised against it that it interfears with the liberty of the subjects, he had answered this as he supposed before, but there are strong arguments showing that this is only in keeping with other Legislation of this kind. We find in the history of all countries, great reforms are given to the people by little at a time, and just as fast as the people demanded it. But there is on our statute book one piece of legislation which he could not quite understand, and that is the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks to Indians. Is it that he suffers more from its effects, does his family become more wretched, is he any more a criminal under its influence than the white man or is it that the Government find them as a people educated to receive such a blessing, let us hope the last is the fact, for nothing is more sad than to believe that if the drinking custom is so necessary to our well being, why, I ask, should we not extend it to our Red Brothers? who of all men can lay claim to and has a right to demand the same benefits and comforts as we have, living as we do under the same government, we are either selfish in the extreme, or we are forced to admit that the moral standing of the Indian is far superior to our own We are told that this law will be the means of learning our children to drink. Let us consider this question for a moment; for it such is the case he for one would abandon its advocacy. Where are our young men as a rule taught to drink in this country? is it not the Bar? does any person here to night believe that the young men of this town who in the past have been ruined, would have learned and kept it up if they had never drank outside of their home.

He continued that if the treating customs of this country were abolished many, very many who now become drunkards would be sober men for the simple reason that if for nothing more the influence of Mothers and sisters at home would prove in most cases sufficient protection to our young men and keep them in the path of sobriety. But does it not strike us as a little strange that those who oppose us and tell us that we are taking "their all" from them are the ones who tell us if the law is passed our young men will then learn to be drunkards. Why sir, the only value in the trade at all is the appetites of the people and take that from them and the business in which they are engaged is at once and forever destroyed. He asked fairly and honestly do they believe that drinking will be greater and that drunkenness will increase where the Bill is passed? He left it for an intelligent electorate to decide. The poor man's cry is one that seems to have a large place in their hearts just now, but he asked what has made so many poor men in this country? Look back over the history of your town and see if to-night you cannot call to mind many who had it not been for this debasing appetite would have been well off and happy. This and all temperance legislation was calculated to help the poor man and by protecting him in time, let him be the possessor of wealth as in many cases you have seen. Poor men if you are here to night, let me ask you this, who are the men that generally help you when you are in trouble and especialy if you have got no money? Is it those who have taken your hard earnings in exchange for that which does you no good, but perhaps has done you a great deal of harm, or is it the men who are advocating this measure and are taunted with the cry that they have no feelings for the poor man, but will allow the rich to indulge in their drink which we take from you.

He said to this that he was quite willing to leave it to the poor man to decide. Who few or will help him the most; those who take his last dollar and give him no value or those who when he had been fleeced by all and left to perish, take him by the hand and lead him to the platform of respectability and happiness? Instances of this kind are fresh in your minds where we have taken those unhappy victims and by Gods help led them to liberty. We are the friends of the poor man, and none will do more than we to help him and he trusted these poor men who were here to-night for the sake of himself and his family would vote for the Bill. Vote for it because it will and has where tried lessened drunkenness. Vote for it because it is a step in the right direction, and while it may not do all we would wish, let us hope that its influences combined with other teachings will soon give us the moral victory we so much desire.

The Choir then sang "Let the Lower Lights be Burning." After which Mr. Dumble came forward, amid applause and explained the working of the Dunkin Bill and Crooks Act.

Mr. Dumble then addressed the large audience. In commencing he said it was a new thing for him to be a temperance advocate. He had not been a teetotaler, although a friend of temperance; but he was increasing in years, and he hoped getting more wisdom. As he got older he trusted he was trying to live to be better. Although not a temperance orator, in this great moral question he dare not take a neutral position while an effort was being made to get rid of a traffic that was so injurious in its results. He therefore had put on the blue ribbon, and he had done so once for all—as he could not refrain from taking a stand while all around him in the Sabbath School were wearing it: as he felt a little condemned on seeing boys in the Sabbath School with their blue ribbons, while he was undecided. This stirred him to action, and now he had put it on for good. He had come to the Hall to hear this great question discussed lately by King Dodds—a man who had been brought here to teach the people of Peterborough morality; and when he saw him on the platform with his "white kid gloves," a brewer on the one side, and a parson on the other side, he thought in a cause so good they would open the meeting with singing and prayer, particularly as the person was there, but he waited in vain, as they brought no choir with them. This was a bad beginning to have no prayers, especially as they professed to be teachers of morality and temperance.

He then referred to the statement of King Dodds to the effect that this was not a question of temperance against intemperance, but of the Crooks Act against the Dunkin Act. But he would ask why does King Dodds, the "ring-leader" of opposition to the Crooks Act, now praise this Crooks Act and oppose the Dunkin Act, if it is a question of temperance against intemperance? This gentleman came here in his "white kid gloves" at $75 a night, to demoralize the people, instead of to elevate morality. He, King Dodds, now praised the Crooks Act as the best temperance act in the world; but he forgot to tell the people that it had wiped out all the groggeries everywhere where it came in force—retaining only the better class of hotels; and the Dunkin Act was only calculated to remove the remaining ones. He then referred to the dishonest and fallacious reasoning of King Dodds, to prove Sheriff's returns of criminals as complete and perfect, while it was well known that they were not. When Mr. Dodds attempted to mislead the people in the Brantford affair, as if there were 113 different individuals violating the law, when there were only 8 or 9 tavern keepers doing so, he began to suspect the honesty of the gentleman in his "white kids," as he was mistaking facts.

He then asked why the Anti-Dunkinites opposed this measure, if by passing it more liquor would be drunk? If so much more liquor was being drunk, wherever it passed, why should they not all vote for it here, as it would be advantageous to them? He next referred to Mr. Dodds' assertion "that a man whose business is running him is most miserable." But he, Mr. Dumble, would ask did not the traffic finally ruin every man who engaged in it? And he asked where are those hotel keepers who once were in the business? Had it not run them to ruin? Did they not become the victims of the very traffic in which they were engaged? Mr. Dodds had praised every temperance movement but the Dunkin Act, and he particularly condemned it, but especially the 5 gallon clause, as bad.

He, Mr. Dumble, was satisfied, however, that the Bill should be passed to show that the people wanted something better; and he knew it was a fact that as soon as they passed it and satisfied the governor that more was demanded a better law would be given; as all governments legislated to suit the expressed will of the people. Mr. Mackenzie and all governments just legislate as the people tell them; and he was sure that as soon as the people passed the Act, and showed their determination to enforce it, the government would follow up with prohibition.

Mr. King Dodds had condemned repressive law; but he, Mr Dumble, would ask what were all laws but repressive laws? Did not every commandment repress something as criminal or wrong? The man who talks as Mr. Dodds did on this subject talks nonsense and is a humbug and prince of hypocrites. This Anti-Dunkin Champion made it appear that the contest was the glass against the Demijohn; but this was fallacious. He claimed to be the champion of the poor man. If the rich man drinks at home he does not deprive his children of bread, of clothing, of comforts, or of necessaries thereby, while if the poor drinks his children must suffer; and he cited the case of a man who earned one dollar a day, giving the following figures:—Leaving out holidays he works 308 days in the year, making $308. He pays yearly rent $48, taxes $4, to his church $4, School Books, clothing for himself, wife, and from 4 to 7 children, $100; leaving to board them through 365 days just $152. This is less than 42½ cents per day for the whole family, of say seven individuals, or about 7 cents a piece per day to secure 3 meals a day for each member of the family, or about 2½ cents a meal. How, he asked, could the poor man afford to take a "hooker" in the morning and one in the evening at 10 cents, while his children were living on 2½ cents per meal? He thought not, and therefore he concluded that the act that shut up these traps was for the poor man, and in his interest, and not that of the rich man Temperance advocates were accused by King Dodds of leaving the discussion and appealing to the passions, but he, Mr. Dumble, would ask was not all teaching by appealing to the understanding, judgment and heart? Were men not open to appeals? And was it not right therefore to appeal to men's understanding and intelligence in this matter?

He then took up the Dunkin and Crooks Act, and showed them in what respect they agreed. The Crooks Act fixes certain conditions that must be complied with as to beds, &c., before a license can be granted; and provided that bonds shall be given for carrying out the law. It provides inspectors to watch them, and it deals with tavern-keepers breaking the law as it would with other persons violating the laws of the land, and it provides men to watch them. The Act deprives them of the right to be a Councillor or School Trustee, and also that they shall not ply their traffic on Saturday night after seven o'clock, lest the poor man who enters their bar rooms with his weeks wages in his pocket may lose it. And yet while voluntarily submitting to all these restrictions they talk about the poor man's rights.

An Anti-Dunkinite said to him that "it was moral suasion," and said he "educated his children to enter the flower garden to enjoy but not to pluck the flowers," to which he, Mr Dumble, replied, "would he allow his children to enter the garden if in the midst of it was a flower whose perfume was poison and caused death?" He knew he would not and the man was silent.

He then explained that the Council could pass restrictive bylaws. He showed that the Crooks Act was in harmony with the Dunkin Act, and provided machinery and funds as did also the Dunkin for enforcing it. The brewer may sell in his own county only, and in unbroken packages, which he manufactures. If the brewer could sell all he desired then the Dunkin Act was just the thing for the brewers.

He then showed that all the officials under the present and past Acts were compelled to see the Dunkin Act enforced and respected, and that the fines would meet the necessary expenses. And he further read from the Amendment to the Crooks Act of 1877 stating that the two acts are concurrently in force, and that they prohibit the wholesaleing of liquor in any place where other articles are sold, thus cutting off a fruitful source of drunkenness, and preventing women and others from going for liquors under the pretence of purchasing groceries where the very sight over the door would be a warning to them and make them ashamed to enter it.

He concluded with an earnest appeal to the electors to support the Dunkin Act and vote for it. Let no man be neutral in the matter, for he pitied the creature who was afraid to call his soul his own, and who consequently fear to be manly and honest enough to boldly vote for a measure that would remove the curse of strong drink from our town and country.

His address was honest, clever, convincing and was received by bursts of applause from the whole house.

A large number came forward and signed the pledge and put on the Blue Ribbon, after which the meeting dispersed in the most orderly manner.

These meetings are all largely attended. From 1,000 to 1,200 persons being present every evening, and manifest a warm interest in everything taking place.

The Grand Jury paid a visit to the Jail and found it in a perfect state of cleanliness. The corridors and cells were ventilated, and the prisoners well cared for. The number of prisoners confined in jail is small, and none have been sentenced for any severe offence.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—At the meeting at Bradburns' Hall on Wednesday last, Mr. R. King Dodds is reported to have stated that "Temperance Hotels will not pay." How is it that in the great cities of London and Manchester and in the towns of Liverpool and Southampton—places where there is no lack of "Licensed" hotels, taverns, and grog shops, can be found, "Temperance Hotels" by the score which are doing well, and not only in those larger places, but much smaller as Bath, Shrewsbury, Ipswich, and the like boast of their "Temperance Houses." and I am happy to say that even in whisky drinking Canada, there are many Temperance Houses—pure—and by their being kept on from year to year I suppose they must pay. These perhaps may have been overlooked, as also that one in your town of Peterboro' and not far from where Mr. Dodds was speaking I allude to the Temperance Hotel kept by Mr. Allen, near the bridge, where can be had "good accommodation for man and beast," and where no "back door trade with the black bottle on the sly," is done and where the man cannot degrade himself below the beast. But since May, 1875, many houses that lost the license have been opened as so called "Temperance Houses," and truly they are nothing more than as described by Mr. R. King Dodds, "unlicensed groggeries" and even if the Dunkin Act should increase their number it will make the trade done in them more of a private character, which in turn will be put down, whilst those using such places will be noticed and in small places will be the talk of their neighbors. Do not allow the faults of those unlicensed groggeries to be placed to the "bonafide temperance house keepers," nor consider that in Mr. Crooks Bill every protection that is needed has been given, from what I have observed, there are very few places where the law is carried out as intended by the framers. Saturday night and Sabbath drinking is as common as ever—if not done so openly—so much the worse. No wonder that Mr. R. King Dodds and the L. V. A., praise up Mr. Crooks Act whilst they rage war against the Dunkin By-Law. Is not the half loaf better than no bread.

Yours,
R. KIMBER JOHNS.

Personal. Mr. William Cameron has returned from his native land, Scotland, and is looking exceedingly well. The trip has, by appearances, been a very pleasant and enjoyable one.

Mr. Wand has rebuilt his planing mill and sash factory, and fitted it up with entirely new machinery, and is again ready to supply his patrons and the public. He solicits a return of all his old friends and the favor of new ones as well.

Henry Best has now in stock five car loads of Silver Star export oil, the finest brand of refined petroleum made in Canada. Messrs. Englehart & Co., Hamilton are the refiners. (My prices are as low for any quality as the more inferior brands are sold.) 40

We call attention of the public to an advertisement in our next issue. Mr. Lech has resolved to leave town for a larger place to more extensively manufacture furs The public may therefore expect to get bargains. He also intimates to the public that private offers will be received for his residence.

A Question. The following is propounded by the London Free Press. We would like to ask the ladies a conundrum. Why is it that during the whole summer they wore low crowned hats, and now that evening concerts and meetings have begun they resort to seven-storied hats with a cupola of flowers on the top.

In order to place the Dunkin act before our readers, we have been compelled to leave out local and other items this week. But at the present time we considered the Act the more important, hence the omission. The Town Council and the report of the Rifle Match have also been left over, together with some remarks on the late assessment taken for 1878.

Every Gentleman in want of a good tweed suit, or a warm and useful overcoat, should see Wallace's stock, which for variety, style and value is unequaled in this locality. Useful overcoats for $6.00; good winter overcoats for $9.50; serviceable tweed suits for $11.00. These garments are cut in the very latest fashions, and the workmanship is equal to the best ordered work. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 2

Keene. On Monday evening Mr. Knowlton spoke at Keene to a crowded house. Geo. Read, Esq., presided. His address was listened to with attention, and was both eloquent and persuasive. At the close of his address a large number of persons signed the pledge. Mr. Knowlton has held two successful meetings in Keene, and at them over four hundred persons joined the Blue Ribbon Movement, the object of which is to promote temperance and sobriety and the passage of the Dunkin Act.

Vote of Condolence. At a meeting of Friendship Temple, I. O. G. T., No. 148 held in their room on Tuesday last, the following resolution was adopted: "Moved by Bro. W. Gilbert, seconded by Bro. Joseph McClelland. That the heart felt sympathy of the members of this Temple be conveyed to the parents and relations of our late respected and beloved Bro. J. J. Sproule in this the hour of their sad bereavement, and that the secretary be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the said parents and relations of our late brother.

Temperance. E. Carswell, Esq., of Oshawa, is in town at present, aiding in the temperance work. He addressed crowded houses on Friday, Saturday and Tuesday evenings in Bradburns Hall. He is eloquent and humorous. On Saturday evening Captain Bridgewater, by request, addressed the people during an half hour, in doing so aided the cause of temperance. His argument about class legislation was chilish, and his knowledge of the Dunkin Act limitless. The house was crowded, and on a vote being taken, over four fifths of those present were in favor of the Act.

Vennor's Predictions. Vennor has promulgated the following as a forecast of the coming weather:—Autumn Marked by a fine, warm Indian summer, after a rather cold term, and ending wet. Winter short, warm, wet and open, with one or two severe terms of short duration, altogether gloomy and not healthy. Spring Very wet up to the middle of June. Summer Intensely hot and oppressive. The winter will be favorable to an increase of throat diseases and fevers; also cattle diseases. I agree with Prof. Mansell in anticipating the approach of Asiatic cholera towards northern latitudes.

Go to H. LeBrun for your Full-cloth, Flannel, Tweeds &c. Large stock to choose from.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

Hall. Innes & Co.

Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co's. fall opening in their Millinery department took place on Tuesday last. Throughout the afternoon there was a continued stream of visitors, all of whom expressed themselves much pleased with the character of the goods, and the preparation made for their delectation. The room was handsomely decorated with all the leading colors. The display of trimmed hats and bonnets was very large, and all displayed an intimate knowledge of the demands of fashion. The choicest exhibitions were: A moonlight bonnet, trimmed with black velvet and moonlight beads and flowers. The newest thing is bead fringe and ornaments of "moonlight" shade which are very pretty. A beautiful bonnet, the "Normandy," is a perfect gem, trimmed charmingly to suit the different tastes. The "Marie Stuart," is also a very popular bonnet. The leading styles of hats are the "Visor," "Jockey," "Equestrian," and "Helmet." All of which are tastefully decorated with the most fashionable material. The shapes are principally those of past seasons, with rims turned up and drooping on opposite sides. The effect of the modifications, to the bonnets especially, is to make them fit closer to the head. The hats do not appear to be any smaller in general, but the bonnets are neat and dainty. The novelties are in the trimmings, materials such as silk, satin and plush, are popular, more particularly the latter. The prevailing colors are coral brouze-green. The stock of mantles is large and being made in the most fashionable styles are selling rapidly. A very handsome French cloak, silk mantle, took our eye, trimmed with velvet and fringes, and lined and wadded throughout; also one in camanole hair, trimmed handsomely with fur. Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co., will be pleased with a visit to their millinery show rooms, where lady attendants are in attendance.

W. G. Thompson.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever" or at least while it lasts, and in the purchase of Millinery and Mantels one might as well get something nice and stylish while they are at it. In this line Mr. W. G. Thompson is to the fore, and his show rooms are now filled with a choice display of hats, bonnets, feathers, flowers, trimmings and mantles, which are well worth seeing. The stock of imported hats and bonnets is very select. They take in the latest Parisian as well as English and American styles, embracing all that is new in that line. The French Felts are very pretty. The "Helmet" is a new Parisian style of Broom felt, black velvet trimmings, bronze cocque feathers, very rich in appearance. The feathers and flowers are very rich and rare, the stock is large and choice. Wreaths of ivy and evergreens, imitations of fruits such as, strawberries, currants, plumbs, grapes, hawes, etc., will be very fashionable this season, and in this line there is a choice selection; also brilliant plumage birds. The manner in which the above mentioned has been decorated shows the taste and experience of those who planned and carried out the operation, and the whole is worth taking a long walk to examine. In wandering for less than an hour among these rooms are second to none, and the stock this season is in excess of preceeding ones. On the whole the management is one showing experience and business ability. We would advise every lady to see this most extensive display of fashionable styles this week, while they are on exhibition.

Miss. E. Delaney.

Tuesday was a special one at the store of Miss E. Delaney it was the regular opening of her millinery show room, and large numbers of the fair sex visited the establishment to "see the styles," i. e., the fashions in millinery, mantles, &c. Each and every one were pleased with the grand display made in the different lines. The millinery show room is located on the first flat, and at the present time it presents a spectacle worth going to see. To attempt to describe it would be almost impossible, everything seems to have been arranged with the greatest taste and skill It is a beautiful sight. Lovely flowers, elegant hats and bonnets, handsome mantles, jackets, &c. There are cases of pretty flowers, bunches of delicious looking grapes, and a novelty this season are samples of rich fruit for the decoration of ladies head gear. The show of trimmed and untrimmed hats, flowers, feathers, ornaments, etc., was good and afforded excellent choice. Among some of the styles are a bronze felt bonnet hat, trimmed with seal brown tilinel with the much sought for bird of paradice feathers. The "Windesmere" is also very handsome. Hats trimmed with bronze color and bird of paradise feathers are lovely. A white plush Felt Hat trimmed with dark bronze and plush is a beauty. In mantles Miss Delaney has a choice assortment. A diagonal worsted mantle, trimmed with fur and silk, with pocket a little more pointed than the parasol pocket, is very nice. Another splended mantle was one braided heavily around the bottom, and massively trimmed with fur All the leading colors are in stock together with a very large assortment of elegant flowers. Lovely shades in ribbons, different colors are hung in profusion about the room. It need scarcely be said that the opening of these rooms was a grand success. As is usual the case there was a great rush of visitors all day. and all seemed pleased with the display.

W. Fairweather & Co.

The opening day at a fashionable dry goods and millinery store is always an event of interest to the ladies, and this fact seems as an explanation of the reason why so many visited the millinery rooms of this firm, under the new managment and really the display made is such as to fully merit the attention given, and the encomiums bestowed upon it. Hats and bonnets of the latest styles are shown in great variety.

Mrs. E. Brown.

Mrs. Brown also opened her millinery show rooms on Tuesday, and had on exhibition all the leading designs in bonnets, hats, etc. The display was neatly arranged, and the hats and bonnets are "perfect gems." Mrs. Brown has all the leading colors, and a large assortment of feathers, ornaments, etc., with a rich stock of all the novelties of the season.

Go to H. LeBrun if you want to get a good stylish overcoat.

ENNISMORE.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A young man named James McFee, who left here about five years ago, was brought home to his father's residence a corpse Saturday last. Deceased was the eldest son of Alex. McFee, Esq., of this place, and ever since his departure from home has been an employee on the Grand Trunk Railway, and was an engineer for the past four years. On Thursday of last week, he was on his engine attending to his duties as usual, and when within seven miles of Fort Gratiot he, without a moment's warning, dropped into the arms of death, being stricken down with apoplexy. His remains were borne to the residence of Mr. Hancock, of Fort Gratiot, where they were laid out and coffined, preparatory to their departure for this place, and were escorted to the train by a very large number of his fellow employees, who wished to pay this last tribute of respect to their departed friend. He was a very sober and industrious young man, of great promise, beloved and respected by all who new him, and was in the 26th year of his age. His mortal remains were interred in the Keene Cemetery on Sabbath last, and were honored with a very large funeral cortege. We add our heartfelt sympathy to that of the many friends of the bereaved father and relatives in this severe trial and loss—a loss all the heavier that it came so suddenly and unexpectedly. Verily, in the midst of life we are in death.—Com.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

September 10th 1877.—Council met at the call of the Reeve. All the members present; minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Printed circulars were received from the President of the Ontario Agricultural College Guelph giving an account of the Institution for the schoolastic year 1877, with a letter to the Reeve urging the necessity of assisting in carrying out the object of the Legislature, by nominating a duly qualified young man to send to the college. Mr. Hosy was heard before the Council and his claim for remuneration for certain work done in opening up the qr., line south from the 10th concession, admitted. The Council expressed the wish that he would take advantage of the season and have the sum of $25.00 already granted, expended thereon and also that he would see Mr. Goodfellow respecting a similar appropriation made for a like purpose. Mr. White's communication asking to have certain reductions made on the taxes paid by him on a portion of the 12th con., 12th lot, for the year 1874 not entertained as the Council came to the conclusion that they had no power legally to do so. On the motion of Mr. Robson, seconded by Mr. Birney.—It was resolved that the Reeve and all the members of the Council should meet as a committee of the whole at A. Crawford's at the close of the meeting of Council to consider the feasibility of making the repairs prayed for in the petition of A. Crawford, N. J. Johnston and others referred to in the minutes of Council of the 1st ult., Council adjourned.—Com.

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY.

We are glad to learn that a movement is now being made in Peterboro County to submit the Dunkin by-law to the people. in consequence of this both parties seem to be girding themselves up for the contest. The liquor sellers have had their favorite champion Mr. E. King Dodds, holding forth at Peterboro in his usual strain in regard to the benefits of the Crooks License Act, and the imperfections of Dunkin. This warm admirer of moral suasion and fast friend of the temperance movement never fails to express his fears that the noble cause of temperance will be injured by the unreasoning fanatics who favor a Dunkin by-law, and unless they are put to detent there will be more liquor selling and liquor drinking than ever.

Two meetings were held last week in Peterboro in behalf of the Dunkin movement, the first on Friday evening, addressed by the Rev. McKay, of Baltimore, and on Saturday by Marvine Knowlton, Esq. We have not yet seen a report of these meetings. In addition to this Mr. Knowlton, we learn from the Examiner, has been holding successful temperance meetings at Lakefield, where 108 persons signed the pledge, and a Reform Club was organized with Mr. R. A. Strickland as President, and at Keene, where at the close of the meeting 170 singers to the pledge were obtained. Mr. Knowlton's success in Peterboro and its vicinity has been extraordinary, and augurs well for the future of the temperance work in Peterboro County. We are glad to see that the Examiner comes out as a thorough advocate of the Dunkin movement. Being an ably conducted and influential journal it will do good service in the cause of right during the coming campaign.—Canada Citizen.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

(From the Correspondence of London Advertiser.)

The success of this scheme may now be regarded as almost beyond peradventure. W. H. Scott, M. P., the President of the road, has spent a considerable portion of the summer in working it up, and with the most gratifying encouragement. The final issue may fairly be said to turn now on the manner in which Toronto treats the proposal to grant a bonus of $300,000. Ottawa will almost certainly give $200,000, and the intervening municipalities have done or will do their share. The headquarters of the road are supposed to be at Peterboro', and when it is finished that flourishing town will benefit very largely from its expenditure on behalf of the scheme. But, after all, neither Peterboro' nor Ottawa will benefit to the same extent as Toronto. We have now five railroads converging into the city as a focus; the Credit Valley will form a sixth, and it is now fully expected that the Toronto and Ottawa will be the seventh. It is exceedingly unlikely that any more lines will ever run out of the city, or that the citizens will ever be asked to bonus any enterprise similar to the Toronto, Grey and Bruce, the Toronto and Nipissing, the Credit Valley, or the Toronto and Ottawa. Should the proposed bonus of $300,000 to the last-named undertaking be voted, it will foot up our liability under this head alone to something over a million of dollars, to say nothing of the aid granted to the older lines. The general feeling, however, seems to be that the money has been profitably expended, and that it will pay us to grant at least this one bonus more. The increase in the population and wealth of the city has been during the last six or seven years very great in spite of the depression of the last two. The money can only be expended as the road is built, and there is reason to believe that the increased traffic and the enchanced value of taxable property will enable us to pay off the debt without feeling it much, if at all. Such is the view that seems to commend itself, at all events, to the majority of the voters. The directors from Toronto are amongst our most influential men, and the scheme has been advocated in a much more discreet manner than the Credit Valley was. There will doubtless be some votes in opposition, but not many, and it is worth noticing as is a favorable symptom that the Telegram, which was so strenuously opposed to the to the Credit Valley bonus, is, to say the least of it, neutral with reference to the Toronto and Ottawa one. All places to the west of this city are more or less interested in securing a direct through route to the capital of the Dominion, though whether they are sufficiently so to make the obtaining of a share of the Railway Subsidy Funndan easy matter or not remains to be seen.

A Case of Twenty Years' Standing.

From Mrs. Joseph Baker, of Johnson, Vt.

"I feel it my duty to make known to the world the wonderful efficacy of your Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. For twenty years I was sorely afflicted with phthisic, and previous to using the Balsam was pronounced by the physicians incurable. Two or three bottles afforded me a good deal of relief, and as many more completely restored me; and for two years past I have not had the least return of that painful complaint." 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

38. THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 25, 1877.

A LAST WORD.

As the vote on the Dunkin Act By-law will be taken in this town on Monday, we have to-day to make our last reference to it, before the result is known. The defeat of the measure in Port Hope and Cobourg last week so far from lessening the vote in its favour here, as is hoped by the Licensed Victuallers, should be an incention to all who are unwilling to acknowledge control by the liquor interest to come out and vote for the Act. This is the more to be expected from the evidences already given of the difficulty there is in carrying this By-law in cities and towns, where every grog-shop is a committee room, and every grog-seller a very active, because pecuniarily interested canvasser. We do hope that Peterboro' will not be compelled, as Toronto, Perth, Port Hope and Cobourg have been, to make the humiliating confession that she too is a town ruled by whiskey. Rather let us take the proudand satisfactory place of Chatham, Oshawa and Bowmanville, which towns gave majorities in favour of the Dunkin Act. The vote is simply a protest against the rule of rum: and those who are more or less ruled by rum are so numerous in towns that it is entirely necessary that every independent man should go to the poll and vote "yes."

We are told by the opponents of the Act that it is not a Temperance measure. Are then, all our Temperance men mistaken in their advocacy of the Act? And must they leave the determination of what are Temperance measures to the Licensed Victuallers? Is it possible that the Ministers of the Gospel are taught of the Devil and not of the Holy Spirit, when they pronounce in favour of the Act? Must they yield the propogation of truth to the whiskey sellers? Have our Sabbath School teachers all gone mad? Must our children for their safety be withdrawn from the Sunday Schools, and sent to the bar-rooms? Are the ideas of the most moral men in the community so perverted that their influence must be lost to that of the rowdy bar-keeper and the besotted bummer? Where we have looked for good, are we now to see nothing but evil; and only where evil has hitherto been brought forth, are we to seek good? God forbid!

Ratepayers of Peterborough, the honour of your town is in your hands, every voter who values that honour, will cast aside every consideration of convenience and thought of neutrality, and will go forth manfully, undeterred by the liquor power, and record his vote in favour of the Dunkin By-law. Let there be no laggards because of some covert whiskey influence: but let intelligent independence assert itself. "Quit now like men."

THE BY-LAW.

On Monday next the Electors of this Town will be called upon to decide whether the principle of licensing the continuance of evil shall meet their approval or disapproval.

The bar-rooms are only evil and that continually, and the Dunkin Act and Crooks Acts place it in the power of the people to remove the evil, if not altogether, almost altogether.

That villainous compounds will take the place of the filthy stuff at present dealt out from the license bar is not true, if, as the Anti-Dunkinites assert, more whiskey will be drunk than ever, unless their whiskey is a villianous compound.

With the Dunkin Act no man will be compelled to buy more liquor than he wants. If he can take it in moderation it will not signify whether he has one gallon or five gallons in his house, and he need not buy any liquor if he so determines. The law is not a failure where passed. The fact that men are fined for violation of it is proof that it is being enforced, and the fact that men are in jail in Picton for violating the law is abundant proof that it cannot be violated with impunity.

In no place has the passage of the Act affected the law abiding citizen; only tavern keepers and anti-dunkinites break the law, and they are receiving the reward of their unlawful acts. Is it not a favor to the poor drunkard to close the places where he is made drunk.

The Review says "That the advocates of the Dunkin Act have not taken the trouble to inform the public that the Dunkin Act was passed by the Parliament of Upper and Lower Canada * * and is held to have the same power and effect as if passed by the Dominion Parliament." This is untrue: the advocates of the Dunkin Act have taken the trouble to inform their readers as to the Act having been passed by the Old Parliament of Canada in 1864, and also that every violation of it is a violation of the Crooks Act. (See section 30 of the Crooks Act of 1877 which says:

"The sale of liquor without license in any Municipality where "The Temperance Act of 1864" is in force shall nevertheless be a contravention of sections twenty-four and twenty-five of the said Act, thirty-seven Victoria, chapter thirty-two; and the several provisions of the said recited Acts, and of this Act, shall have full force and effect in every such Municipality except in so far as such provision relate to granting licenses for the sale of liquor by retail."

It is this willful assertion of falsehood that immortalizes the aiders and abettors of the bar-rooms. If the late John Hillard Cameron ever gave an opinion on the Dunkin Act it was before the Crooks Act and amendents thereto were secured, and those who refer to that opinion are wilfully and shamefully misleading the public for some selfish or pecuniary purpose. It can be enforced: fifteen tavern keepers were fined in Brantford for violating it, three men are in Picton jail for violating it, and two others have had to retire across the Lake to keep their bodies out of jail. It is not true therefore that it cannot be enforced.

How can it induce the use of villanous compounds? If the law is not respected the same sort of liquors will still be sold, and according to the Anti-Dunkin logic more of it. Perhaps it is the villainous compounds now used to which the Review refers.

There can be no injustice in removing the temptation to spend five cents when half a loaf would be better for the man's family. If rich men are so foolish as to buy five gallons their children will still get food and clothing. They will not be forced to beg—barefoot.

It does not drive the liquor traffic into unlicensed groceries, for the Crooks Act declare

"No person shall keep or have in any house, building, shop, eating-house, saloon, or house of public entertainment, or in any room or place whatsoever, any spirituous, fermented or other manufactured liquors for the purpose of selling, bartering or trading therein, unless duly licensed thereto under the provisions of this Act."

It does not compel any man who can use and not abuse liquor to be a sneak or a hypocrite unless he is already one; for he can get all the liquor he should have at licensed wholesale stores where no groceries can be sold.

"A wholesale license shall be strictly limited to persons who carry on the business of selling by wholesale or in unbroken packages."

The Dunkin Act does not over-ride the Crooks Act, except in forbidding the granting of licenses to tavern or shopkeepers. This it prohibits, and this only.

The way to reform an intemperate man is to remove temptation out of his way.

The Dunkin Act does improve the subject by removing out of his way the temptation to do wrong and by assisting him to become sober, industrious and happy.

No man has a right to ply a trade or calling that robs men of reason, of money and of peace; and as the bar-room do all these, men have no right to have one in their house, and no government or municipal corporation has a moral right to grant a license to sell that which deprives men of reason, makes homes miserable, clothes families in rags, and eventually sends the poor drunkard to an untimely end and to eternal death!

The Dunkin Act does not upset the Crooks Act in any part except the liberty to grant licenses. The writer or individual who says it does may reasonably be termed a knave or a fool. A knave, because he wishes to deceive his fellows; and foolish, because he is acting the part of a bad man, in leading men to vote to continue a sin against God and man.

The writer of the 12 reasons, in the Review, for opposing the Dunkin Act is guilty of a grave wrong to himself and to any reader, who is likely to be led astray by them. His own better judgement tells him that he is leading men astray; and that not one of those reasons will bear a moments investigation. They are fallacious from first to last: and we cannot excuse through ignorance. He assuredly knows that they are full of contradictions and fallacies.

For instance:—If the law cannot be enforced men will sell and drink still. Then how can any one's living be interfered with?

If it induces the consumption of "villainous compounds" then whiskey will not be sold. If the Dunkin Act over rides the Crooks Act, whiskey will still be sold freely. Then no one will be compelled to go without it.

If the Law grants a license has that Law not the right to withold it whenever it pleases? But what use in answering nonsence?

The tavern keeper wishes to retain a traffic that enriches him and empoverishes all who support him. No wise man will therefore vote against the Dunkin Act. Be sure and vote YEA.

ANTI-DUNKINISM.

The Anti-Dunkinites called a meeting in the Drill Shed on Thursday evening last. They then imported E. King Dodds to address it, but the friends of temperance put in an appearance and spoiled their little pet ideas. Seeing the temperance people on the platform the Antics refused to commence the meeting they had instigated. The friends of temperance offered to confine the discussion to citizens, but the Antics refused even this. They must have E. King Dodds speak. The latter was conceded to them to prevent the breaking up of the meeting without discussion.

They then refused to open the meeting, and threatened again to break it up, unless the temperance people commenced the discussion. To prevent the breaking up of the meeting it was agreed to "toss up" as to who should lead when the Antics had to commence. The speakers on the side of intemperance and the bar-rooms, were a Mr. Brooks, from—who can tell? Rev. J. W. R. Beck, J. F. Deamistoun and E. King Dodds. On the side of temperance and shutting up whiskey shops, Col. Haultain, D. W. Dumble, Rev. E. H. Dowart and Mr. Knowlton.

For once in the lives of the Antics they declared they were in favor of temperance; but when some of them said so the audience burst into laughter. The attempt to have E. King Dodds the last speaker was completely foiled; and this, together with a severe castigation given him by Mr. Dumble, made him desperate. He blustered and raged in desperate passion; while speaking, uttered baseet threats, used the most personal invective and abuse, but failed to make any impression on the audience. At one time he was compelled to desist his personal Billingsgate, lest he might meet some tangible proof of the feeling of the meeting.

When the Rev. Mr. Beck appeared on the side of the tavern-keepers, and opposed to the teaching of his Divine Master, there was great uneasiness in the audience; but a threat on his part to stand there till heard quieted the meeting, and he got his say in. It is needless to tell our readers that he advocated the continuance of the bar-rooms—he was on their side.

Mr. Dennistoun did not feel at home, judging from his speech—compared with himself on other occasions. He felt the draw back of his championship.

It is impossible to give even an epitome of the speeches in favor of the Act. It was considered that more than three-fourths of this immense gathering of nearly 3,000 people were in favor of the Dunkin Act. So evident was this that the Antics feared to test the house on the matter.

REFORMERS AT CONSERVATIVE SHOWS.

Both Conservative papers of Toronto on Friday had remarks on the Tory exhibition at Hamilton two days before. It was acknowledged by Sir John Macdonald to be the largest "sea of upturned faces" he has looked upon during the season he has "been on the road" as centre man of the troupe. The Opposition journals draw comfort from this. The Mail refers to "the vast numbers of people in attendance," and to "the preparation made on every hand for the reception of the Opposition Leader." "These preparations" have been the chief feature of all the Conservative pic-nics; and in no case have they brought forth the result anticipated by those who made them. It has been found very difficult to manufacture that peculiar article which our Tory contemporaries call "a spontaneous welcome to the Chieftain," or "an outburst of popular feeling;" and even when they did at any time secure the requisite number of people something was invariable wrong with the minds of the assembled crowd so that the feeling and the welcome were very disappointing in their outburst and spontaneity. At all of them there was a fair attendance of Reformers: and in many instances this element was so large as to deserve and obtain special consideration and care on the part of the speakers. The meeting at Millbrook may be taken as a pretty fair type of the whole of these Tory exhibitions. There it is known that the crowd was largely Reform in its composition, so much so indeed that even Sir John had to attempt conciliation by professing a desire for Reform. This turning out of Reformers to hear speeches from their political opponents is not to be wondered at after all. Reformers as a body are more ready than Conservatives to read about, to discuss and to hear discussed questions of a public nature. The Reformer in his very nature and feelings is more active in mind He is an agitator for improvement; and to such agitation activity of mind is as necessary as the seizing of opportunities for information and comprehensive examination is to activity of mind. Thus the Reformer feels impelled to go to meetings where he will hear public questions talked of, even by those to whom he is generally opposed, while his more stolid Conservative neighbor sits at home, or is moved out of his "Rest-and-be-thankful" stoicism only by a direct appeal to his party passions. This will readily explain why the Conservative pic-nics brought out so many Reformers and why, the most largely attended of them were at places in or adjacent to Reform Constituences. The Mail either has failed to notice this fact, or choose to ignore it, when indulging in party congratulations over so large an assemblage in Hamilton, which it alludes to as "a city represented by Grits, with two neighboring ridings also represented by Grits." In our opinion it was just because of the large Reform element in the population that there was a goodly number present. Indeed we have only to point to the conciliatory tone of Sir John Macdonald, and some of his most careful expressions to show that he knew he was addressing Reformers rather than Conservatives. We are glad to know that this was the case, and that Reformers generally turn out to these Conservative field meetings: for we know that such hearers are capable of judging the valuelessness of the sophistries they hear, and the motives that lead to their utterance. We know too that the Reform ability to weigh words and to reason upon propositions, will not only save them from being drawn from their party allieganee by the speeches of Sir John Macdonald, Plumb, J. J. Hawkins and William Macdougall, but will tend to increase their intelligent respect for the principles of Reform, and their determination to uphold them to the end against such assailants

The Leader frantically than the Mail refers to the Hamilton gathering as an evidence of appreciation of Protectionist doctrines, and of Sir John Macdonald as their apostle. It accounts for the presence of so many "members of the other political party" by the inference that as Hamilton is a considerable manufacturing city, and thus presumably Protectionist, the Reformers turned out to show their appreciation of Sir John as a Protectionist, by giving him an "ovation." It does beat all how different people will construe the same thing to suit their own peculiar views. The Leader does not say it expects all these "members of the other political party" to turn over to support Sir John, who never gave as much actual protection as our manufactures now enjoy; but it doubtless hopes they will. Hope, however, is coincident with fear; and the ancient Tory journal of Toronto, that has had to work against the protection given by its party to a younger and more servile rival, likely fears that those "members of the other political party" will not be satisfied as easily as it professes to be when in reference to Sir John's declaration that he "is prepared to adjust the tariff so as to encourage native industry." It asks: "Is this not assurance enough?" The answer depends greatly on the sense in which the word "assurance" is taken. If the question does not refer to a sufficiency of independence, then we must answer it by an emphatic "No!" People will want a demonstration of the problem as to how the tariff can be adjusted so as to encourage native industry in all its rival branches, Statesmen have been unable to give it, and it is not likely the Tory pic-nic orators can. Perhaps the Leader, which seems to think it can be done, will favor a waiting world with a reason for the belief that it is in it, somewhere. We have said before that we are entirely willing that the question of a protective as against a revenue tariff, providing incidental protection shall be the basis of the electoral contest soon to be fought in the country. We can only reaffirm our satisfaction in a party point of view that such should be the case, and express a willingness to meet the issue when the time comes.

IT TAKES TWO TO MAKE A QUARREL.

The EXAMINER seems to have roused the angry passions of the Port Hope Times, and that paper accuses us of meddling in what does not concern us, with many harsh and ill mannered epithets too thrown in. We stated some time ago that we believed several Tory papers, including the Times, had been indulging in the political slander line to such an extent as to draw on them a prosecution for libel. That statement was true. The Times, assuming that we declared it had been sued for libel, flatly accused us of falsehood. We merely published an item of news tending to show where a fondness for personal detraction of political opponents leads such papers as the Bowmanville News, Guelph Herald, Chatham Planet, Port Hope Times, Lindsay Warder and Peterboro' Review, which we are informed is in the full list of papers offending in the publication of the particular slander to which we referred. The EXAMINER never stated that the Times "had been sued for libel," as the latter paper puts it. Our information was to the effect that proceedings were about to be instituted against the papers we have mentioned. We said as much; no more. So much for what the Times calls our "bare-faced falsehoods." The references to the alleged libillous matter made by other papers with which the Times exchanges, were at a time when these journals could not have obtained the news from THE EXAMINER, which is accused of first giving utterance to the rumor, and making it out of whole cloth. The reason given by the Times for its belief, that we alone started and made up the rumor, is that "it was in this paper he first seen it." (The Times is responsible for the grammar.) As to the "mysterious means" by which we learn the names of the papers with which the Times exchanges, we will, to relieve its anxiety, tell it that we consider those papers it quotes from week to week, and every week, as certainly exchanges. So clever a newspaper man as he of the Times pretends to be, should not have asked such a silly question. We can only account for it on the theory that he was so angry that he hardly knew what to say.

The very sensitive Times further irritates itself because as it says, we referred to it "in such a way as to place it among the 'poorest papers in the country." We do remember stating that some of the poorest papers in the country get patent outsides printed at a distant city, or import stereotype blocks of miscellaneous matter; and we believe we did incidentally mention the Port Hope Times as one of those who thus practically ignore encouragement to home industry, while they prate about Protection. It will thus be seen that we merely introduced the name of the Protectionist Times to point a moral, and we probably chose it as being nearer home, there are scores of such inconsistent Protectionists we could name. The vapouring of the Times about one interference in the way its business is conducted is so much waste of energy, that might be devoted to the improvement of that business, while our contemporary bumptiously tells us he "conducts on his own account, to please himself." Precisely so; and so do other people in whose interests it pretends to preach Protection. Surely they have as good a right to get angry over the "impertinent meddling" of the Times in their affairs as it has to grow wrath over our innocent reference to a glaring inconsistency on the part of so many Potectionist papers throughout the Dominion. Let each "conduct his business on his own account, to suit himself," and we shall hear less of those politico-Protectionist demands to have government interfere in the business of the people. Can our angry Protectionist see the point, when thus brought home to him? If so there need be no quarrel or appearance of it between us; as there certainly will be none over his expression of sorrow that his paper should be placed in the same class with THE EXAMINER. We can assure him the feeling is mutual; and that we have reciprocity in that sentiment at least.

The tavern keepers are threatening to withdraw their patronage from all who vote for the Dunkin Act. People of Peterborough, can 16 tavern keepers control the trade of the town? No, they cannot, vote for the right and defy their treaty.

The Review either knows next to nothing of what it presumes to instruct its readers upon, or it deliberately errs when making references to the Neebing Hotel. Yet it accuses us of knowing no more about the facts than what the Grit stump speakers have been pleased to tell us. We will not attempt to express the knowledge of Mr. F. E. McBain, with which ours is compared. He may know as much about it as we do; but he certainly has a most successful way of not imparting his knowledge to others. In spite of the declaration of the Review to the contrary we do know that Mr. McBain must have had a motive in mis-stating the facts, the proof being that he has mis stated them, and that nothing is done without some motive. We do know to that the Review is as far from the truth as it ever was when it accuses the Ministerial organ at Fort William, of saying "the government had made a grave mistake in buying the building." The paper at Fort William never made any such statement. We do know too, that Mr. Dawson is not "a Grit M.P.P.," as the Review calls him. We do know also that the evidence of "unbiassed people who have visited the scene," is not condemnatory to the government; and we do know that "the man who built the hotel" quarreled with the other members of the Company, and now accuses them, but not the government, of frauds. He is far from being an unbiassed witness; and if he and Mr. McBain are all the Tory case is to rely upon, we can assure the prosecutors, (as we hope they will have the courage to become,) that they will not stand cross-examination for three minutes. The Review had better learn a little more about the "facts of the case" before it says more on this matter. At any rate we would advise it to refrain from an appeal to "official records," as it did once to its own discomfiture in the matter of the Georgian Bay Branch. It found there that we knew what were the facts; and it may again.

Those who are about shooting quarts of whiskey or whole puncheons do not say a word about shooting the 30 parents who were deprived of about three-score of the necessities of life. It was all right then to take away the property of these 30 poor men. Consistency, why.

(1) As to grading Reid street, your committee are of opinion that the street does not require grading at present, but would recommend that about 10 rods of the street, near the intersection of Brock street, where the crust appears broken through to the sand, be laid with 8 loads of broken stone, the stone to be laid in the centre of the road 8 feet wide. DUNKIN BILL.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I hope you will not be offended at me as a ratepayer of this town in going to hear the Dunkin Act fairly discussed and for giving my opinions on what I did hear. Now, sir, I can assure you there are a great many like myself who came away from that meeting only hearing one side of the question, and that was by our townsmen Mr. Dumble. Of course Mr. Jas. P. Donnistoun did try to explain to the contrary; but why did he say when he came to that part of the Act concerning the wholesale license that "no other goods of any description shall be sold on the premises, and that we could do with that what we pleased." Now, sir, I think for the benefit of the whiskey sellers it would have been better if Mr. Donnistoun had never said one word. Of course any man can vote as he pleases; but I for myself must say, that if Mr. Donnistoun thought by him having cut out the platform and erected a broken stone, the stone to be laid in the centre of the road 8 feet wide, that he could go with it that he "would vote against the Dunkin Act." I don't think his voting against it will carry any one with him: and I am sure his speech went for all it was worth—nothing.

Next comes Mr. Bush. Oh, the temperance man! How dare Mr. Bush say he is a temperance man? Or does he not care for what he says? I think he don't, but Mr. Bush show us that he is a temperance man by his actions; and I am sure he ought to know the effects of the bar rooms before now, as he has had every opportunity of so doing with very near connections of his own. Now, sir, enough said for our townsmen who oppose the Act, and I don't think by them coming on the platform that they will convert many to their side, but just the reverse.

I will now say a few words concerning Mr. Brooks' speech. Well, sir, he opened up his arguments in first class style, and I was sure we were going to be enlightened a little; but if we take his way and keep liquor in our houses, and intends always to do so, why sir I think we would be a fine lot of temperance men in a very short time. I consider his arguments were whiskey, and to have it, and further drinking. Oh, this is another temperance man. Well, sir, I think he laid himself out nicely when finishing his speech, and would advise him better get some wiser ideas to drive to the Peterborough people than advising them to keep the accursed liquor in their houses.

And now for E. King Dodds, the white kid-gloved gent. Well it appears he did take the hint. I am glad of it; but still he is far below what I had expected. I thought he would act and use language like a gentleman, but sir, I think he is better suited for the bar-room than any other place I know. Where did he agree the Dunkin Act? No, no. It was nothing but abuse Mr. Dumble and Mr. Rowlen, and thanks to those two gentlemen they treated him with silent contempt. But, sir, I did not think party or politics should be touched, but E. King Dodds thought he would give us a little touch on that when he referred us to the Globe paper in the language he did. But sir I am a Conservative myself, and therefore am proud that no party feeling exists with the Dunkinites.

E. King Dodds came on our Peterborough platform as a gentleman; but, sir, did you notice his language? Well, sir, I can tell King Dodds if ever he uses the like again in presence of any of our Peterborough ladies, I will be one of the first to step on the platform and try and assist him off. I will not use his words; they are too dirty to be put in print; but if he dosys using any gross insulting language, I can prove that he did. And then he went on comparing our townsmen, Mr. Dumble, to a game bantam, but sir, I think every time I see Dodds he looks more and more like a big black gobler I once had on the farm. O, this turkey was awful for making a great gobble-gobble-gobble. But what did it amount to? Wind.

Why did some of the Anti-Dunkinites go out of the Drill Shed when Mr. Knowlton was speaking and get some blackguards to throw stones on the building. Would they be surprised if I would mention their names. Will men who represent respectable places in town take dark nights for such like. Enough to say, I am proud of the way the Dunkin men conducted themselves, and not like some of the supporters of the L. V. A. But what could you expect from them? I believe there are some respectable men on their side; but I think, and hope not, many.

E. King Dodds need have no fears for the people of this town or county getting him on the brain, as he is pleased to term it, for we have a mass people here and want no admixture of that kind among us, as it would only lower the standard of intellect which we at present claim to possess.

It is well some parties are beginning to look ahead for Town Councillors. Oh, John! where is the big ben and Boston Cockrel? You ought to have had it out on the platform with King Dodds to see which could crow the loudest! I'll bet on your rooster, and am sure more good sense comes from the rooster, for he crows for some purpose, but King Dodds crows to hear himself.

And now, sir, I cannot close without calling the attention of the electors to one fact, and that is the speeches of the two champions, E. King Dodds, leader of the L. V. A. in this County, gave a speech of one hour—most of which was simply a tirade of abuse, invective, and certainly one that ill becomes a man who pretends to lay claim to common decency. On the other hand Mr. Knowlton comes forward, and during his whole speech not one word of personality do we hear: but he holds that vast audience of people, and that after twelve o'clock at night. And how? By simply appealing to the reason of those before him, and with arguments true and language eloquent stirs to action nearly all who hears him. We have felt proud of him as a temperance man before, but the gentlemanly and able manner with which he handled the subject and his opponents in the Drill Shed makes us prouder if possible of him as one of our great leaders in this great reform.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Films, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. RINGWORM and OLD CHRONIC SORES, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PETTIT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive, and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

THE TELEPHONE!

PROF. BELL'S TELEPHONE having attained to such perfection, it is now offered to the public, confident that a trial of its merits will ensure its general adoption.

THE TELEPHONE

Enables any one to speak or converse over a simple wire to a distance of 250 miles. The tone of the voice is recognized where friend or acquaintances are speaking

THE TELEPHONE

Has an advantage over the present system of Telegraphy, as any one may listen without being an operator, or in other words, there is no Telegraphic alphabet needed.

THE TELEPHONE

Dispatches messages with greater rapidity than telegraphing—as by telegraphing every letter must be distinctly made, and every word properly spelled—by TELEPHONE each word must be distinctly spoken, when it is distinctly heard at every moment of utterance.

THE TELEPHONE

Besides the manufacturer to talk with his factory superintendent: the main office with the branch office, the house with the store, the country residence with the stables, or any part of the grounds, the mouth of the mine with its remotest workings, or in short any given point with any other point, although many miles apart.

THE TELEPHONE

Is neat and portable, and an ornament to any room or office. The yearly cost to the lessee for a set of TELEPHONES—one at each end of his line is $30.00.

ANY information will be given regarding their workings, lines constructed, instruments furnished, on application to.

AN ANSWER TO MY FRIENDS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

'Tis time since I within your sanctum stood;
Because I was not in a rhyming mood.
In fature if the muse will jingle good;
Then look for screeders.
My aim shall be, sir, if I only could,
Just please your readers.

My friends enquire if I in life remain,
Or if the muse has banished from my brain,
I am in life, enjoying health as well;
The lazy muse appears again to swell.
The lone through summer, with hard work confined.

Sometimes the muse, and souls is in my mind.
Like wandering author like the sheepish dame.
One gentle breeze fans the poetic flame.

The busy harvest, with its toils is o'er,
The golden grain is safely lain in store;
The clicking reaper stands in silence now,
And I can muse and whistle at the plough,
When culling frost air cools the Autumn breeze;
And fading leaves fast falling from the trees
Declining sun, a milder heat diffuses,
With longer evenings prompts my simple muse.

The irksome insects die and disappear;
Not one maquebo has crossed my ear
Flourishing and musing, nought disturbs my lay.
Except a stone; or land horse steps astray.
When crows and blackbirds gather into flocks,
And Autumn mood sighs rest to fall beauty upon,
And cold gusts sweep the leaves in clumps,
Screaming above me, stands me in my rhymes.

When leafless boughs the winds of autumn bends
And frosty mornings nip my finger ends;
When waves become, and ice seals up our lakes,
My dormant muse from trance-like state awakes.
My work through summer occupies my time.
Which pays me better than to jingle rhyme.
In Autumn season lighter work I find.
'Tis then the muse rekindles in my mind.

Ne stately mansion I desire to use,
Nor gilded study to inspire my muse;
Give me the woods, the highway, or the field.
With natures grandeur to my view revealed;
To nature, and to nature's God I owe
Thanks for my knowledge—little as I know.
'Tis not the teachings I received from men
Enables me one single line to pen.

Forgive those lines, tis little they contain.
Make some allowance for my rusted brain.
The Autumn breeze may work up membrane clear;
In future something better may appear.
If health permits and the muse does not balk.
Into your sanctum I may oftner walk.
With lines on love, or murder, if you will,
Or the great issue on the Dunkin Bill.

WILLIAM TELFORD. Smith, Oct 12, 1877.

TEMPERANCE.

A Sign-Board.

I will paint you a sign, rumseller.
And long is above your door;
A truer and better sign board
Than ever you had before.
I will paint with the skill of a master,
And many shall pause to see
This wonderful piece of painting,
So like the reality.
I will paint yourself, rumseller,
As you wait for the fair young boy.
Just in the morn of manhood,
A mother's pride and joy.
He has no thought of stopping.
But you greet him with a smile.
And you seem so blithe and friendly
That he pauses to chat awhile.
I will paint you again, rum-seller,
I will paint you as you stand
With a foaming glass of liquor
Holding in either hand.
He wavers, but you urge him;
"Drink! pledge me just this one!"
And he lifts the glass and drains it,
And the hellish work is done.
And I next will paint a drunkard;
Only a year has flown,
But into the loathsome creature
The fair young boy has grown.
The work was quick and rapid;
I will paint him as he lies
In a torpid, drunken slumber.
Under the wintry skies.
I will paint the form of the mother
As she kneels at her darling's side—
Her beautiful boy that was dearer
Than all the world beside.
I will paint the shape of a coffin,
Labelled with one word—"Lost!"
I will paint all this, rum-seller.
I will paint it free of cost.
The sin, and the shame, and sorrow.
The crime, and want, and woe.
That are born there in your rum-shop.
No hand can paint, you know.
But I'll paint you a sign, rum-seller.
And many shall pause to view
This wonderful swinging sign-board.
So terribly, fearfully true.

ASPHODEL, BELMONT AND DUMMER FALL SHOW.

The Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer Agricultural Society's Fall Show was held in Norwood on Tuesday last, and certainly was as fine an exhibition of the products, manufactures and industries of the places named as ever was held in connection with this Society, and in some respects indeed excelled. The various animals and articles shown reflected the highest credit on the exhibitors, and forcibly evinced the great interest they have taken in the care, culture and work of their exhibits. The various departments were well represented, though a slight deficiency was noticeable in the number of entries in Lady's work and Domestic manufactures, though the lack in these respects would to a certain extent be counterbalanced by the superiority of the class of work displayed in these departments. In Root, Vegetables and Cereals the samples shown would rank favourably with any on exhibition in the Province. In Fruit the display was small, but of good quality, and a collection of Apples from the orchard of Mr. Thomas Blezard were much admired for their size, beauty and excellence.

Time and space not allowing us to particularize the various exhibits, we must refer the reader for further information to the following.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 1, 1877.

LO, THE POOR INDIAN.

The American Commission sent to confer with the Sioux Chief, Sitting Bull, had an interview with that warlike refugee at Fort Walsh, the issue of which was by no means satisfactory to the representatives of the United States, though it must have been gratifying to the savage who lately fought against and fled from the Yankee forces. The Indian Chief was with difficulty persuaded by the Canadian officers to agree to a conference with General Terry and his companions from Washington; and it would seem that the men who had been sent so far to talk with him were treated with the most studied contempt, if not insult. The Sioux Chief first displayed his distrust of the Commissioners by causing them to remain behind tables in the open, where they could not communicate with himself, members of his band, nor anyone else, without observation. After General Terry's address had been translated to them sentence by sentence, offering them full amnesty for past offences if they would return to the reservations prepared for them, give up their arms and horses and except cows for stock-raising. Sitting Bull replied in scornful terms, declaring that the Americans had habitually lied to his people; that he did not want them to lie to him thus "in the house of his Great Mother;" and that they could go back without another word. Two or three other Indians having spoken in a similar strain, a Squaw was put forward to address the Commission, presumably as a deep insult to the hated Americans, as the women are never allowed to take part in an Indian Council. In answer to a direct question from Gen. Terry as to whether he refused the President's offers Sitting Bull replied that he had told all he had to tell; and so the conference ended. At the close Sitting Bull shook hands and spoke with the Canadian Officers, utterly ignoring General Terry and his party.

The result is not very surprising considering the frightful inefficiency—to use no harsher term—displayed in the United States Indian Department, and the very unfair treatment to which the Indians of that country have been subjected by agents who robbed them with one hand and the government with the other. The Canadian and American systems of dealing with the Indians have by this case of Sitting Bull's band been placed in direct and glaring contrast. No wonder Sitting Bull wishes to stay in Canada where Indian treaties have always been respected and no wonder he refused to treat with the Americans whose treaties have never been respected by the thieves sent to carry out their terms. The difficulty is in the fact that these Sioux are not properly Canadian Indians, and therefore the Dominion has no legal right to contribute lands and money toward their support on this side the line. They cannot well be driven over the border into the territory of those whose peace proposals they scout. Remain therefore they must and will so long as they refrain from any active demonstrations of hatred and revenge toward the Americans. This is the chief element of danger. So long as Indian troubles continue in American territory, the hostile tribes will always have hearty sympathisers in these refugee Sioux; and deep sympathy is always a strong incentive to material assistance. Thus there is ever the danger of international complications arising from a Sioux irruption from Canada into the United States, though how the latter could claim damages with the precedent of the Fenian claims' rejection staring them in the faces, passes reasonable comprehension. Of course it will be the duty of the Canadian authorities to prevent any such difficulty arising; and they likely will succeed. In their efforts to do so, as well as in providing for the maintainance of the Sioux and other Indians that have been driven into Canadian territory, it would not be unreasonable to suppose they might be aided by contributions from the United States treasury. In this way the neighbouring government would insure the putting to good use of some of that money which is now so badly expended in what they call Indian maintainance, but which is really Indian agent enrichment.

The vigorous rebuke to a snob which we copy from the Berlin Telegraph is not undeserved. Its force will be particularly apparent in this locality. The ill considered remark that called forth the rebuke will also tend to shew on what poor pretences the "party of gentlemen" rely for their objections to the working men who have been honorably elevated to public positions by the people of this country, where honest labour is the standard of worth, and where those who sneer at it are estimated by the correct standard of worthlessness.

TEACHERS EXAMINATION FRAUDS.

The extraordinary excellence of a number of the papers of candidates at the last School Teachers examination led to the suspicion that all was not right. The Central Committee therefore instituted inquiries which led to the discovery, that copies of the examination papers had been fraudulently secured by several parties before the day of examination; and that quite a number of candidates had prepared their answers previous to their appearance before the Board of Examiners. The investigation that has been made into the circumstances, disclose, that the papers of questions were obtained through the medium [of certain printers, who were paid liberally for supplying them to those who so earnestly desired to pass, and to obtain medals from the Education Department, unde-servingly. The teachers concerned in the fraud are apparently all students who attended the Normal School in Toronto; and it would seem that the evil is not so wide-spread as was at first feared. From the evidence of one of the printers before the Investigation Commission it would appear that similar frauds have been perpetrated in former years, the person having let fall the expression that "it was more difficult than usual to get the papers." If it be true that it has been usual to steal papers, and furnish them for a consideration to students, there is no knowing how many teachers holding Normal School certificates are really deserving of the rank they take in the profession as far as a diploma is concerned. It would be well if this doubt could be effectually cleared up; and if it be really shown that there is a likihood of the existence of an indefinite number of certificates obtained by unfair means in former years, something should be done to defend the honest against the dishonest of the profession. In such a case we would suggest that the teachers of the Province themselves should take the matter up, as they likely will at there next Convention, and for the honour of their calling insist on a recall of all certificates and a re-examination of all teachers, This, though it would doubtless prove a great inconvenience to many, would be to all a decided advantage in the way of a thorough renewal of acquaintance with the full list of subjects. It would besides be placing the holders of old Provincial certificates on a testlevel with candidates under the new dispensation, who have a number of examinations to pass before they can possibly obtain the higher grades of certificates.

Whatever may be the result of the investigation in its general effect on teachers' certificates, certain it is that those who have been detected in the frauds being immediately inquired into stand in a very unenviable position. Not only will those who bought the examination papers be deprived of their certificates, and thus lose their money to boot; they will also be deprived of what is of far more value to any man, their good name. The probabilities are that they will never be able again to enter the profession; and the stigma will follow them into whatever calling they may go. They are marked men among teachers at last. In the same way the printers engaged in the frauds, few in number we are happy to say, lose all caste. They have done that which by a printer is considered the meanest of all acts—the unpardonable sin of the craft—in betraying the honour reposed in them and divulging the secrets of the office employing them. If they unhappily belong to any Printers Union, we expect they will be expelled at the first meeting, and that all other branches will be notified of their disgrace. It will be well too for all master printers, Union or non-Union, to note their names, and set them down as untrustworthy knaves who can be bought, and who therefore should not be employed in a printing office. Both teachers and printers have probably learned from this case that honesty is best for all weathers.

THE TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

The way in which the promoters of the line of railway from Toronto to Ottawa have worked it up is very creditable to them. We consider that this enterprise has been the making of Mr. Scott, who has displayed through it an amount of energy and actual activity that few who knew him intimately would have given him credit for. True he has been associated with energetic and active men; and this is where the benefit to him has arisen. He has proved himself equal to the duties expected of him in connection with this important project; and we are glad to be able to acknowledge that any apprehensions we at first felt in this regard have been dissipated. The prospects of the Company are promising, if not brilliant. Nearly the full amount expected from the country traversed by the road has been granted in bonuses, under reasonable restrictions. Both Ottawa and Toronto display a willingness to aid to the amounts required of them. It is significant that both these cities have declared unmistakeably in favor of an independent line through the County of Lanark. As we pointed out in a former issue, this was, to be expected of Ottawa for purely local reasons, if for no other; but that Toronto too should show such a preference, without the possibility of such local influences, is somewhat of a proof in itself of the reasonableness of the choice. Ottawa has a line already from Carleton place, and naturally desires that the line of the Toronto and Ottawa road should take the other route, by way of Perth, that the country in that direction too may be made directly tributary to the Dominion Capital. Toronto has no such motive in expressing a preference for the Southern route through Lanark to the Provincial capital it makes little or no difference whether the road run by way of Perth or Carleton place, farther than that the city has a common interest with all the municipalities in the construction of the line as cheaply and efficiently as possible. Certainly efficiency will best be preserved by an independent line whether built to the south or north; and besides the payment of an annual rental to another road for running powers would represent the interest on a very large capital, and make considerable of a vote in the revenue. This and the sort of bridging on the northern route doubtless had an effect in producing the preference shown by Toronto for the Perth Route. At the same time the City Council of Toronto are not unmindful of responsibilities of the section to be benefitted by the route chosen; and while an undoubted expression favorable to the Perth survey is visible, there is forcin[illegible]owing this a calculation as to how little might induce a verdict for the other route. Thus the proviso is introduced, that Perth and the southern townships of Lanark and Carleton, and the Village of Richmond must not less than $600,000 by way of bonuses to the Company. As the Town of Perth has already voted $75,000, and the by law in the grouped southern townships for another $75,000 will undoubtedly be carried on Saturday it not withdrawn for amendment, it will be seen that Toronto places the value of the Perth route as above that by Carleton Place at only $60,000. It is but reasonable to suppose as Toronto puts it, that Perth and the townships around it most interested in securing the road will make up this amount between them in some way. It is to be hoped they will do so speedily, and settle once for all this difficulty concerning the location of the eastern end of the road.

Flax business is lively at Drayton, Ont. Hendry's mill has over a million pounds stored.

In another column will be found an address "to the Roman Catholics of Ontario, by one of their own number in which is briefly detailed the political career of the man the Tory party insults them with, by sticking him forward as their adviser at political pic-nics. The Tories of East Durham and West Peterborough have greater cause for indignation than to feel complimented in having such men as Hawkins and Macdougall sent to address them as leaders. It must indeed be nauseating to any high-minded and respectable person who may yet mistakenly cling to the Conservative cause.

Those Conservatives who listened with unstaken admiration to the speech of the Honourable (!) William Macdougall at Millbrook will do well to read the article we copy from the Leader, and see what estimate that old organ of their party places upon the slanderous utterances of "the Wanderer." They will perceive that the fellow who was thought good enough to address them is attended to by the faithful, though flouted, old Leader as a "trading politician," actuated by a "sinister motive," who "maligned" the character of a dead man and "libelled" a judge as a deliberate "insult."

The sun of coming prosperity is rising, Mr. "Hard Times" is trudging slowly away and poor Sir John, with tears in his eyes, is beseeching him to "Stay, O stay! till after the general elections." The whole scene makes a first-rate cartoon in Grip, who makes the Chieftain plaintively break forth into rhyme—

> Oh, Hard Times, do not go away!
> Stay by me till election day;
> Thou art my tactics and my friend,
> My hopes for Power on thee depend!

If any further proof were needed of the suitability of the Kaministiquai as a harbour of refuge, and of the possibility of its being navigated by large craft, it would be found in the fact that the "Ontario," the largest Canadian propeller afloat on the lakes, went up the river on Saturday, at night fully laden.—Whig.

The following appeared in the Irish Canadian in May 1872:—

"Catholic Irishmen of Ontario, when over a Conservative snake asks your support, kick the venomous reptile out of existence; annihilation is its deserts. Vote and vote unitedly for Reform and Progress. Whatever is left of your country has been left only by the intervention of friendly reform. Vote in the coming elections as one man, and squelch the rattlesnake. It will poison you if you play with it. Kick it at once into oblivion. Vote for Progress and Reform." The editor of the Irish Canadian seems to have partaken of the golden balm of oblivion since then. Why will he not be as reasonable in his politics as he is in his Prohibition?

The Tory journals that are trying to prove Sir John A. Macdonald's innocence in the Pacific charter sale, Secret Service appropriations, Northern railway levy, &c., by pleading his alleged "poverty," have awakened attention to a subject ordinarily out of the sphere of journalism. This "poor man" appeal might be allowed to pass were it not that Sir John and his friends continue so persistently to urge it. Now what are the real facts? One well-informed with reference to Sir John's circumstances says that in addition to the interest on the $100,000 "testimonial," he is the owner of real estate of great value, and a firm of which he is the head has a most lucrative practice. To talk of "poverty" in the face of such facts as these is an insult to the intelligence of the community.—Beacon.

Protection Carried to its Legitimate Length.

(From Hon. David Mills' speech at Windsor.)

It is well, gentlemen, that Providence has ordained that a course of conduct grossly unjust is never consonant with the well-being of the public. How can a nation be made more wealthy or more prosperous by forcibly taking from one man in order to give to another of the same community? The man whose industry you partly rob of its reward is discouraged, and the man upon whom it is bestowed has taken from him the strongest motive to close application and an economical management of his affairs. The policy suggested by Sir John A. Macdonald is founded upon the essentially erroneous doctrine that scarcity is the foundation of prosperity. If this were so, it is only necessary, in order to make a nation prosperous, to diminish the power of production, and refuse to make most of the natural advantage to be found in a country. (Hear, hear.) You should build your houses without windows, in order to increase the demand for candles and kerosene. (Laughter.) You should choose the least healthy places for your buildings, and erect houses without proper ventilation, to give employment to doctors. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) You should never pay your debts without a lawsuit, so as to give employment to the lawyers. You should cultivate less land, and cultivate that little badly, but with tools of such a description that it would be necessary to employ a great many men to do a very little. Use the sickle instead of the reaping machine, and the flail instead of the threshing machine. Let the pit-saw find the place of the saw-mill, and you can make everything scarce, and, according to Sir John Macdonald's political economy, everybody prosper—for scarcity is to be the foundation of prosperity. (Loud cheers.) It is to our interest as a Government that the people of Canada should clearly perceive the bearing of the financial policy which he propounds; and when they do so, I have no fears that they will commit themselves to this barbarous follies of a barbarous and by-gone age. (Applause.)

DUNKIN BILL CARRIED.

Majority 116.

The contest on the very important and all absorbing topic—the success or failure of the Dunkin Bill, and the will of the people in this town—has come to a close, and the voice of the electors has been unmistakable in favor of doing away with intoxicating liquors, or at least in favor of reducing the temptations that beset the people by the bar-rooms.

During the past month the promoters of the Bill held numerous meetings to discuss the question, and to educate the people in the leading features. The work was inaugrated by Mrs. "Kent Mason," and continued with very great success by Mr. Knowlton, of London, Ont., and Mr. E. Carswell, of Oshawr. They commenced the work by inducing people to sign the pledge—called here the Blue Ribbon Pledge. Not less than 3,000 people in town signed this pledge, and with very few exceptions these have been amongst our most energetic workers for the Dunkin Act. After the submission of the Bill to the people Mrs. Youmans was invited to the town, and her earnest, instructive and christian appeals to the people had the effect of convincing them of the wisdom of some restrictive measure to alleviate the sorrow and misery caused by strong drink.

E. King Dodds, the hero of the Anti-Dunkinites, was imported from Weston with all the pomp and glitter of a Persian Shah; but after one hearing the people were so satisfied of the hollowness of his arguments and the vileness of his cause that they ceased to be charmed by the scent of the boiling Cauldron, and he had to leave town without a single person to convey him to the station. His friends even despised his efforts.

On Monday the voters gathered at a very early hour, even before daylight, although polling did not commence till ten o'clock. The Anti-Dunkinites had taken possession of the stair-way leading to the polling place, and were evidently bent on the whiskey tactics of retaining their place by force. Fortunately, however, a partition on the head of the stairway prevented a collision between the two parties. Arrangements were then made to let voters in in batches of ten of each side. The first ten to Anti-Dunkinites, and then to follow in alternate tens. To this the Anti-Dunkinites agreed.

During the forenoon there were several attempts on the part of the Anti-Dunkinites to induce a row, but fortunately the good sense of the friends of order, and the strong arm of the Constables, prevented any serious disturbance.

By arrangements the Anti-Dunkinites went up the front stairway, and after voting in ones went down the back stairway. They had, therefore, the front stairway and the right to go down the back stairway, while the Dunkinites had to go up and down the back stairway in addition to the Antis going down it. But even this did not satisfy the Anti-Dunkin party. Up till about three o'clock of the first day both parties kept up their alternate tens, but after this the opponents of the Bill had difficulty in making their numbers, and became desperate in consequence.

At five o'clock the poll closed with a majority of 2 in favor of the Bill.

Next morning the jam at the Anti-Dunkin stairway was not there, and the voters entered as they came, when soon the Dunkin party ran up a majority of 125. It then became evident that even superhuman efforts could not save the bar-rooms; but still they kept at work. At night the majority for the Bill was 116.

Votes having come in slowly a proposal was made to the Antis to give up the contest; but they refused, declaring that they would go on to annoy their opponents; and in consequence the poll was opened on Wednesday, but so large had been the vote polled already that very few remained to be polled.

During the two days the ladies of the Town, numbering 300, met at 8 o'clock a. m., and continued in prayer all the day. The night was one of the grandest ever witnessed in Peterboro'. The Good Templars Hall filled with Christian ladies praying for the success of the Bill to protect their families, their sons, their homes and their country from the ravages of strong drink. About four o'clock they went down opposite the polling place, and the band played "Hold the Fort." At this juncture C. Stapleton attempted to drive through the crowd, which was one solid mass across the street, but Constable Magee wisely prevented him—although threatened with violence and struck at several times with the whip, but nothing serious occurred, although a row was at one time imminent.

In the evening one of the grandest meetings of the whole campaign was held in Bradburn's Hall. That large hall was densely filled, not an available seat in the hall but what was occupied.

The President of the Blue Ribbon Club presided. On the platform were Revds. Mr. Willoughby, Mulhern, Geary, Torrence, Radcliffe, Roberts and Scott; Mrs. Youmans and Messrs. Knowlton and Carswell. Short addresses were delivered by Mrs. Youmans, and Messrs. Knowlton and Carswell.

The Choir under the leadership of Mr. Jos. McClelland, sang several beautiful selections of appropriate music.

Rev. Mr. Willoughby moved a vote of thanks to all these speakers, Mrs. Youmans, and Messrs. Knowlton, Carswell and Gibson, for the valuable aid rendered in the campaign; seconded by Rev Mr. Torrence.

Rev. Mr. Roberts, seconded by Rev. Mr. Mulhern, moved a vote of thanks to the choir,

Col. Haultain moved a vote of thanks to the ministers, who so kindly aided in the noble work. This was seconded by Mr. Dumble.

Mr. Silverwood of Woodville, gave a few words of cheer as a native of Peterborough.

Mr. Knowlton proposed a vote of thanks to the EXAMINER and Times newspapers for their valuable aid in the work, coupling the Port Hope Guide, whose proprietor was present: this was seconded by Mrs. Youmans.

Mr. Dumble, seconded by Rev. Mr. Willoughby, moved the thanks of this meeting to the Chairman.

Mr. J. P. Metherall, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, moved a vote of thanks to the Mayor, and afterwards to the chief and special constables, for the faithful discharge of their duty during the vote.

The Misses. Carswell, of Oshawa, daughters of E. Carswell, Esq., who were in town on a visit, sang several pieces and were loudly encored.

The meeting, which was one of the largest ever held in Peterborough, was also one of the pleasantest. The addresses were earnest and eloquent, and that of Mr. Carswell so humorous that all were delighted.

UNMITIGATED SNOBBERY.

(From the Berlin Telegraph.)

SNOBBERY in any shape is always offensive, and no person but a fool or an upstart will make a public display of it for any purpose whatever. Mr. Thomas White, the unfitted individual who edits the Montreal Gazette, is evidently not of this opinion. He would just as soon be a snob as not; in fact he rather likes it; it suits the "high toneduess" of himself and his party; like all would be Somebodies, he thinks snobbishness very genteel and gentlemanly. Mr. White has shown this weakness lately in a manner that does him precious little credit, and that most people, who know the man and his antecedents, will pronounce very disgusting The editor of the Gazette, has, it seems, taken umbrage at the statement of the Premier, Mr. Mackenzie, that for the future he (Mr. McK.) would handle his unscrupulous traducers "without gloves." In the following paragraph, which recently appeared in his newspaper, Mr. White no doubt imagines that he administered a severe rebuke to the Premier for daring to assert that Sir John Macdonald and his leading supporters would meet with such treatment as their oft repeated slanders deserved:—

"He (Mr. Mackenzie) must know that to be a stonemason or an ironmonger is one thing, and to be the Premier of Canada is another and an altogether different thing; and what would be quite suitable to either of the two former of these callings would not be becoming to the latter. It may be all right for a man to work bare handed handling stones in a quarry, or laying up a stone wall, but a glaved hand generally becomes a Prime Minister better."

No person but a consummate snob or a priggish parvenu would be guilty of penning such a paragraph as this. Thomas White is one of the last men in the world that should do so. There are few men in Canada who could afford do do it, and when Mr. White puts on these aristocratic pretentions in Montreal, where his native obscurity and early career are probably unknown, he conveniently forgets some painfully disagreeable chapters in his own history before he went there. Pray, who is Mr. Thomas White, what is he, or what has he been, that he should presume to sneer at any honest trade or respectable calling? Parodying old Dr. Johnson's couplet on Wolsey, one may ask—

How high Sir Thomas holds his haughty head!
Brought up by tradesmen and by trades-men bred

It is no disgrace to him that he was once a poor, friendless boy with no trade at all, that he learnt a trade and made his bread by it, and that his hands were horny and soiled with a hard and grubbing day's work. Mr. White ought to remember this when he turns up his nose so disdainfully at the honest labour of an honest tradesman or mechanic. He owes what he is to the working class from which he sprung; he needed their help far more than Mr. Mackenzie ever did; and if he had not received it from a hard-working man at a time when people who knew him well have not forgotten, it would not have been in his power to day to pen a gratuitous insult against the Premier of the Dominion. It would be an affront to Mr. Mackenzie to draw any comparisons between a man of his distinguished ability and untarnished reputation, who has served his country honourably, and conferred dignity on any occupation he ever followed, and a man of the stamp Mr. Thomas White who has prostituted his talents to the meanest services, and contemned the class that helped to make him what he is. Mr. Mackenzie is the sole architect of his own success. He has won his way by qualities which always command respect, and, unlike this new fledged Montreal patrician, has never turned his political coat or changed his religious creed from motives which have been very ill-concealed in Mr. Thos. White's crooked career. The fact is, Mr. White is an unmitigated snob—a fair type of those who, having emerged from the humble ranks of life by means oftentimes not over creditable, have not manly backbone in them, who conveniently forget their origin, and assume empty airs and high-toned graces which "one of Natures noblemen," like Mr. Mackenzie, can well afford to despise.

Canadian Industries.

We see that the foundry and machine works in Galt have received an order from Australia for six of the machines they manufacture. A carriage builder in the same town has received orders from Australia for buggies.

Smelting works now—have been opened in the city of Kingston

The Oshawa Furniture Manufacturing Company is employing more men and working extra hours.

Guelph Engine Works have increased the number of their machinists and are working night and day.

The Stanstead boot and shoe factory is flourishing. One hundred cases were shipped on one day last week, the largest shipment they ever made.

The Guelph Patent Barrel Co., with a capital of $50,000, and shares of $50 each is one of the latest additions to our manufacturing industries.

The vale Colliery, Nova Scotia, which has been closed during the summer has re-opened.

Work in the new foundry at Mitchell, Ont., is being pushed forward with energy. A large quantity of the machinery is now set up, and things begin to present an appearance of business.

The St. John's Stone Chinaware Factory will re-commence operations forthwith. The new patent flint-cutter works admirably, and it is now believed the factory can be continued as a sound paying investment.

Messrs. Rogers & Co., Toronto, have supplied a large number of Western millers with their celebrated mill-stones, which have given universal satisfaction.

Messrs. Thos. Brown & Co., Ingersoll, Ont., are putting up a large addition to their foundry and agricultural works.

During the year ending June 30, 1877, there were built in Prince Edward Island 67 vessels, 15,373 tons. There were sold to other countries in the same time 36 vessels, 8,049 tons. At $40 per ton the new shipping is worth $614,220.

Last year England imported $13,000,000 worth of eggs, and even this enormous importation failed to satisfy the requirements of the people of that little island. The Pall Mall Gazette says:—"Canada is establishing an egg trade with us which promises to assume important dimensions. Last week one steamer alone brought to Liverpool from Canada 200 barrels of eggs, and there is every prospect of a continuous stream of eggs setting in from that country." We do not know that it is strictly correct to call the hen a home manufacturer, yet we do not see why she should not be elevated to that rank, for she turns out her finished product in quantities sufficiently large to make an important item in our table of exports.

Friendship Temples.—The election of Officers for Friendship Temple will take place to-night in the Good Templar's Hall. A full attendance is requested.

Personal.—Mr. H. M. Cottingham left for Monte Video, South America, last week. We wish him a quick voyage and a safe return to Peterboro, where he has many warm friends.

When you see a man go into a fruit store for apples, and when being asked what kind he will have, Formoose or Lady's Cheek's, and he prefers the former, it is safe to venture that he is married.

Personal.—We are pleased to note the honorable mention of Mr. W. Elliott, son of T. Elliott, Esq., of this town, in his mathematical examination at Victoria College, Cobourg, where he is about to pursue a course of study.

The Reverend are unhappy this year—first became Canadian barley has lost its bright amber color, which will make the ale darker, and second, because of the growth of the temperance movement. The cut-back for them is at once black and blue.

Henry Rose has now in stock five car loads of Silver Star export oil, the finest brand of refined petroleum made in Canada. Messrs. Englehart & Co., Hamilton are the refiners. (My prices are so low for any quality as the mere inferior brands are sold.) 40

Registration.—We are informed that not one-half of the births in this town have been registered with the town Clerk. It is the intention in future to punish all who fail to comply with the law in regard to vital statistics, and our readers would do well to make a note of it.

The Lumber Trade.—The announcement is made that a heavy advance has been made in the quotation of lumber in the principal depots of the Western States, owing to a shortage in stocks. If the prove correct, the news will be of considerable importance to the lumbermen of Ontario.

Peterborough Enterprise.—Mr. Wm. English shipped, last Thursday, for the Paris Exhibition of 1878, two of his superior canoes. One is made of Butternut, oiled and varnished, and is a beauty. The other is of Bass-wood. They are gems of workmanship, and will no doubt carry off prizes in Europe.

Superior Buggies.—Mr. T. Fitzgerald showed us during the past week two new buggies of a superior quality, that were beauties, well finished with the best of everything. Mr. F. says they were built for the Central Exhibition at Lindsay, and owing to the paint not being dried, could not be sent in time to be shown.

Public Health.—The Sanitary Journal is the name of a very useful monthly, edited by Dr. Plater, and published in Toronto. The most important article in the current number is that on the "Economical aspect of public sanitation and the probable advantage of Provincial boards of health"—a matter of local as well as general interest.

Query.—The following query was propounded by a gentleman at the meeting on Tuesday night: "What is the difference between Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Dodds on leaving Peterborough?" Mr. Knowlton says he will retain "green memories" of the mature people of Peterborough. Mr. Dodds will retain mature memories of a people he thought "green."

Deserves Praise.—It is worthy of note that Mr. John Cameron, one of our leading grocer and liquor dealers, of the Town, did not vote against the Dunkin By-law. He took no part in opposing it, and hence deserves praise; as it must interfere with his interests as much, if not more than it does with the interest of those who were so violent in their efforts to defeat it.

Boots and Shoes.—I am now offering a large assortment of these goods for men, boys, women and children; purchased from the leading wholesale manufacturers of Montreal, which will be disposed of at very reasonable prices. I would also call attention of farmers to my stock of superior grain bags which I will offer at the lowest possible prices. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 8-in.

A Parallel.—An eastern exchange puts it thus:—Let a farmer sell his wheat out, not more than one bushel to each person, and then try to collect the money, and he will have the experience of an editor in collecting money for his paper. To which the Lindsay Post aptly adds:—Let him do that several years in succession, pay his hands all the time, buy his seed and land, and he will have a better idea of cash and credit.

New Book Store.—Messrs. A. Wilson, lately Clark in Mr. T. Meade's Book Store, and A. Davis, eldest son of the Rev. Mr. Davis, of the Methodist Church, intend opening out about Saturday, an extensive and select stock of Books and Stationery in Cox and Donnelly's new block, Geo. St. Mr. Wilson is well known to be attentive, courteous and obliging, and Mr. Davis will be no less ready to treat his patrons courteously. They invite inspection and patronage.

Result of Marriage Between Cousins.—At the Asylum, in the city of Toronto, last week, an official in the Bellerville Deaf and Dumb Institute, stated that 40 per cent. of the deaf mutes in this Province were the off-spring of marriage between cousins. A statement of this kind coming from an official source can not be ignored. A glance about one's friends where such marriages have taken place will instantly convince them of a distinction, and therefore of this statement.—Campbellford Herald.

New Gallery.—Mr. Little has now completed the important change in his Gallery and is prepared to turn out photos in a superior manner than heretofore. The Gallery and adjoining rooms are fitted up in first-class style. Perfect arrangements for light and effect have been secured. Parties desiring a perfect picture of themselves and friends can do so by paying a visit to Mr. Little's studio. The entrance to the gallery is the stairway between Mr. Hyman's hat store and Davidson's book store.

The Portnightly.—The October number of the Portnightly Review, of which Bedford Bros., Toronto are the Canadian publishers, contains the following papers: "New Reform Bill," by Robert Lowe; "Walter Bagehot," by R. H. Hutton; "St. Beuve's New Volumes," by the author of, "Supernatural Religion;" "The Liquidations of 1873-76," by Robert Giffen; "The School at Cheapside," by Walter H. Pater; "Conversations with M. Thiers;" "The Moral and Social Aspects of Health," by J. H. Bridges; "Bismp and Foreign Affairs."

Trades of the Professions.—An esteem contemporary has the following: "It is said that Mr. E. King Dodds receives for each of the meetings that he addresses $75, and that Mr Gibson is only paid $15 by the temperance people, but that in order to keep up the interest in these meetings, and to have some one to strike Mr. Dodds privately gives Gibson $60 a night to appear against him—on condition that he looks alike and wilted whenever he gets off a good one on him. The pay must be the other way. Dodds was afraid of Gibson on Friday evening last and broke up the meeting.

The following are the names of those who were judges at the South Monaghan Show: Judges on Horses and Hogs: George Tully, Peterborough; George Kent, Cold Springs; John Eagleson, Cold Springs. On Cattle, Sheep and Poultry: William Eagleson; Cold Springs: Anthony Garnett, Cavanville; Henry Collins, Peterborough. On Grain, Roots, Fruit, Dairy Produce and Mechanics' Department: James Drummond, Otonabee; William Trueleve, Fraserville; Robert Byers, Bailieboro. On Home Manufactures, Ladies' Work, Fine Arts, &c., Mrs. Trueleve, Mrs. Walter Riddell, Mrs. Alex. Long, Miss Eagleson.

The Poll on the Dunkin By-law closed at 4 o'clock yesterday, as no vote had been entered for over half an hour. The vote stood;

Yeas	534
Nays	414
Majority in favor of By-law	120
The total votes polled	948
Rejected	20
Total presenting themselves	968

There are vague rumors that the Licensed Victuallers intend moving to have the by-law quashed because the voters were admitted in time. The folly of an attempt to quash the by-law in the face of such a majority is very evident. Another contest will only swell the majority.

Elder's Store.—John Elder has much pleasure in calling attention to his advertisement in this issue. By reference to it it will be seen that the Elephant Store has received another large assortment of new goods, that have been purchased at reduced prices. The place to buy dry goods is at the store where good business is being done, the goods always being fresh and fashionable. A fine lot of new tweeds for the tailoring department, cannot help but attract the attention of those who enter the store. No comment is required as to the ability of the cutter, his garments speak for themselves. Those who have not had the pleasure of wearing a suit made up at the Elephant Store, should call and leave their measure at once, the garments made being admired by all.

Stamped Envelopes.—We observe it is officially announced in Toronto that in accordance with the order of the Postmaster-General, letter envelopes bearing an impressed stamp of one cent and of three cents respectively, have been issued and may now be obtained at any of the stamp agents in the town at the following prices: One cent at $1.20 per hundred—13 cents for 10, or 3 cents for 2. Three cent, No. 1, $2.20 per hundred—33 cents for 10, or 7 cents for 2. Three cent, No 2, $2.35 per hundred—34 cents for 10, or 7 cents for 2. The public will gladly hear of the issue of these envelopes as they will prove to be a very great convenience, there being no further necessity of purchasing envelopes and stamps separately and incurring the risk of having the latter rub or drop off the former while in transit through the mails. The price at which they are sold are certainly reasonable, the addition to the actual cost of the stamps only being thirty cents per hundred when taken in quantities.

Under the name and style of a "Canadian National Society" a Canada First movement has been inaugrated in Montreal. Among those who are connected with the Association all creeds and nationalities are said to be represented. There can be no objection to the cultivation of a truly and purely Canadian sentiment. No better means could be adopted of extinguishing the bitter feuds that have been unwisely transplanted hither from the Old Lands, or to promote a feeling of mutual good neighborhood. All this is quite consistent with the soundest loyalty to the Empire and the bonniest fair play to every Canadian whether by birth or adoption. Canada for Canadians is a very good cry, but by "Canadians" must be understood not only those who were to the manor born, but all who are proud to claim Canada either as their native or adopted country. To every movement which can promote Canadian citizenship and British connection we cordially wish all possible success.

Never Speak Ill of a Woman.—The following admonition should be read by young men and not a few old ones:—"Never use a lady's name in an improper place at any improper time, or in mixed company. Never make assertions about her that you think to be untrue, or allusions that she herself would blush to hear. When you meet with men who do not scruple to use a woman's name in a reckless manner, shun them; they are the very worst members of the community—men lost to every sense of honor, every feeling of humanity. Many a good and worthy woman's character has been forever ruined and her heart broken by a lie, manufactured by some villain, and repeated when it should not have been, and in presence of those whose little judgment could not deter them from circulating the foul and braying report. A slander is soon propagated, as if the smallest thing derogatory of a woman's character will fly on the wings of the wind, and magnify as it circulates, until its monstrous weight crushes the poor unconscious victim. Respect the name of woman. Your mothers and sisters are women, and as you you would have their fair names untarnished and their lives unembittered by the slanderous bitter tongue, bend the ill your own words may bring upon the mother, the sister, or the wife of some fellow-creature."

Sensible Advice.—You are asked every day through the columns of newspapers and by your Druggist to use something for your Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint that you know nothing about you get discouraged spending money with but little success. Now to give you satisfactory proof that GREEN'S AUGUSTA FLOWER will cure you of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint with all its effects, such as sour stomach, Sick Headache, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Heart-burn, Waterbrash, Fullness at the pit of the Stomach, Yellow Skin, Coated tongue, Indigestion, swimming of the head, low spirits &c., we ask you to go to J. D. Tully Druggist and get a Sample Bottle of GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.

SOUTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday, October 8th, pursuant to a special call of the Reeve. Present the Reeve, Councillors Waterman, Lightfoot and Rutherford. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. A communication from the directors of the Eye and Ear Infirmary, Toronto, asking the council to petition the Lieutenant Governor and House of Assembly of Ontario for a grant of money to aid in erecting new and suitable buildings for the Infirmary, and also a small grant from this municipality for the same was read and laid on the table. By the Reeve from a special meeting of the ratepayers of S. S. No. 4, requesting this Council to raise by way of loan the sum of eight hundred dollars on or before the first day of November, 1877, for the purpose of meeting the contract for a new brick school house now being completed, and to levy the same by way of assessment on said school section, signed, Edward Kerr, Chairman, John Riddell, Secretary. On motion the latter communication was received and acted on. Mr. Waterman introduced a by-law to raise by way of loan the sum of $800.00 for the erection of a school house in S. S. No. 4. South Monaghan, was read a first, second and third time, passed, signed and sealed. The Reeve and Treasurer were appointed a committee to borrow the said money mentioned in by-law. Mr. Rutherford was authorized to examine Squirrel Bridge, and to do any necessary repair that he should see fit. The Council then adjourned to meet in Centreville, on Monday November 26, 1877.—Com.

Daring Outrage.—News is brought from South Monaghan that a few days since a young lady named Lydia Hutchinson, living near Rice Lake, was going home across the fields after dark from a neighbor's, when she was assaulted by some villain who was in a state of nudity, and attempted to commit an outrage on her person, but she proved too strong for the human fiend. Her cries brought assistance, but the villain did not escape until she had nearly bitten off one of his fingers.

DUNNER COUNCIL.

On motion the passing of a By-law to establish a road on lots 21, 22 & 23 in 4th Con., was laid over to next meeting. On motion the North half 20 in the 3rd Con., was taken from road division No. 46 and added to No. 41. Order for $6.00, granted to George Forbes Sen., as aid. On motion Council adjourned to 13th inst., to meet at Warsaw, and the Clerk was instructed to acquaint the Reeve of said meeting, and also Messrs. Rose, Calder and Reid.

Oct. 13th 1877.

Council met at Warsaw. All the members present. Minutes of last meeting read and signed. Messrs. Crowe and White reported that the whole of the proposed road on Mr. Hamblin's place, except the swamp, could be turnpiked for $65.00. Mr. David Payne opposed the road. On motion the matter was laid over for further consideration. Mrs. Wm. McIntosh and Jacob White appeared on behalf of the Agricultural Society, and Mr. McIntosh waived the Deed of the Town and Agricultural Hall transferred to the Society; when it was moved by Mr. Kidd seconded by Mr. Crowe:—That the Reeve be instructed to take legal advice as to whether the Council can transfer their interest in the Town and Agricultural Hall to the Agricultural Society, and on other points in the deed. Carried. Petitions for Eye and Ear Infirmary, Toronto, read and signed. On motion the Reeve was appointed to attend the coming Land Sales in the interests of the Township. On motion James Hamilton was allowed to commute his statute labor for four years to cut a road. Mr. Kidd was empowered to purchase the balance of the wood at the Old Town Hall from Mrs. Elliot. On motion the Clerk was instructed to advertise the road on lot 11 in 5th Con., as soon as the report is received from Surveyor, that it is the intention of Council at meeting of 5th January next to establish a road in accordance with said report. By-laws passed. One in duplicate to establish a road on lots 21, 22 & 23 in 4th Con One to fix the place for the nomination to appoint Dep. Ext Officers, and to fix the Polling places for Mun. Election of 1878, and one to provide for payment of money. Council adjourned to 5th January next to meet at Old Town Hall.—Com.

THE STURDY ABDUCTION CASE.

Guelph has always been noted for the energy and enterprise of its inhabitants. These are good qualities; but the revelations made in the trial of Sturdy and others for the abduction of Miss Carr, go to show that some of the residents of that town have considerably more enterprize than is good for them.

The particulars of this case have been detailed at sufficient length in our columns, making it unnecessary to summarise them here. The offence was a singular—we are happy to say, a most unusual—one. The abduction of a woman, with intent to marry her, was a not uncommon occurrence years ago among the lower classes in some parts of Great Britain; but in this country, and especially among people occupying respectable positions in society, it has been hitherto unknown. And we certainly trust that the Guelph case will not become a precedent.

The defence did not put in the plea of insanity; but it might have been done with more reason than it has been in many trials for murder. How any man in his sober senses could forcibly take a woman that he loved away from her home, almost shocking her to death to keep her from making an outcry; carry her off to a distant town; nearly starve her, and then violate her person repeatedly in order to gain her love, or, at all events, to consent to marriage, is something difficult to understand. That he loved the young woman seems probable; that he wanted her to marry him is certain; because, after he had starved and abused her, and crushed all life and spirit out of her, they went before a clergyman and were married. But what a hopeful augury for a happy married life! How could a sane man expect to win the love and esteem of any woman by such a course; or expect a married life ushered in under such auspices to be anything but a hell upon earth?

Whether sane or not, however, the conduct of Sturdy was scoundrelly in the extreme; and he well deserves a punishment so severe that for years to come he will be held up as a terrible example and a warning to evil-doers. Nor will much sympathy be felt for his daughter, who allowed herself to be made a willing instrument in his crime. Let us hope this will be the last abduction case we shall have in Canada for many a year.

Guelph, Ont., October 29.—At 4.30 p. m. His Lordship Justice Morrison sentenced the prisoners Sturdy, convicted of abducting and aiding and abetting the abducting of Miss Annie Mary Carr, neice of Sheriff Gow, on the evening of July 26th last. The father was sentenced to ten years in Penitentiary, and the daughter, who had acted as his accomplice throughout, to two years.

In delivering sentence his Lordship, addressing the elder Sturdy, said 14 years imprisonment was the limit for the offence and he saw no mitigating circumstances. The counsel had urged uncontrollable passion and affection as the motive for the crime, but he had ample time to desist before the crime was complete. The abduction had been carried out in a most hearful and brutal manner, notwithstanding her entreaties for mercy. She had been carried to Hamilton on that wretched night, and her person deliberately violated with the view of compelling her to go through a marriage ceremony to cover the principal portion of the crime.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

(From the Port Perry Standard.)

There is a want of "go" about the operations of the promoters of this enterprise in Toronto. The Council were at first very slow in responding to the desire of the Board of Directors, or principal promoters of the scheme, by taking the proceedings to have a vote of the ratepayers on the question of a bonus. This does not say much for the support that will be required to obtain a majority of votes in favour of the by-law. But there are other hostile forces at work, which are known to be powerful, in the management of a popular vote, and as the project is placed at present it would not be safe to bet on Toronto voting the bonus. The citizens are growing more and more reluctant every new demand that is made on them to invest in railway stock: and although they may be properly advised that this road will be of great interest and advancement to the trade of the city, it is feared that a majority of them will not be persuaded to the fact. It is needless to say that the road would possess very great advantages for good, not only in the two ends but to many parts intermediate; and if the money can be raised it will be a good thing in the very commencement as creating a field for a large number of laboring men, and ultimately in the necessary rolling stock that will be required. The idea that that there is organised opposition to the scheme in Toronto has apparently a good foundation, and it it is so in truth there is difficulty ahead of the Board. If Toronto and Ottawa offer the sums that are required the road will be proceeded with; if they do not, or if either of them refuses, it will be retarded. The running of a railway scheme offers an opportunity to an ambitious man now-a-days similar to the conquest of a nation in olden times, and the means are about the same, the victory falling to the side that can bring the greatest number of men into the field. It is fortunate that this railway, unlike the Canada Pacific, is not opposed at the start for the benefit of politicians, so that it need not be hoped that any large sums will drop into the coffers from interested "Promoters" in disguise. It is a fair commercial issue, will it pay? and the answers will be widely different.

BIG PUSH.

Shelter Stumped; Chairman Found Guilty.

The Jury "Recommended Him to Mercy."

Cobourg, Oct. 27.—The Big Push trial was concluded to-day, and occupied the entire day. Only two witnesses were examined, viz., Mr Thompson and Hon J. Simpson. Their testimony was directly contrary to the statement made by Colonel Cubitt.

Mr Thompson said that although some of the conversation mentioned took place during their interview at Mr Simpson's house, yet the material part relating to the bribery of members by the then Opposition, and the payment of large sums by the Ontario Bank for that purpose, he had no recollection of it.

The Judge in his charge to the jury commented on the greatness of the offence charged against Mr. Simpson owing to his position as a Senator and the head of a large moneyed institution, and charged the jury carefully to compare each allegation of the defendant with the evidence therein adducted. He remarked that such serious charges as were made in the articles should be made in a Court of law and not scattered broadcast over the land in a newspaper when, if an opportunity offered, evidence might be given to disprove them. In charges of this kind they might very well apply the same principle and the same consideration as to a person who assailed the body with a deadly weapon; they should judge them by the proof of justification. In the present case the evidence seemed to him to fall absolutely short of proving a justification. The jury returned a verdict of "guilty" on both of the counts: first, that the articles were libellous; and second, that the plea of justification had not been made good. The jury recommended the defendant to mercy. His Lordship announced that sentence would be given on the fourth day of next term.

The Court then adjourned

In the course of his recent lecture at Montreal Sir Francis Hincks has at least, accomplished one very desirable end. He has cleared, and that very effectually, the reputation of a man whose character trading politicians have delighted to dishonour. Politicians have taken, to all appearances, a special pride in maligning the course, now only of the politically inclined son, but also of the statesmanlike father, and no the platform politician has, with a sinister motive, proclaimed the older Blake as the creator of an office for his own especial benefit. It has been reserved for Sir Francis Hincks to proclaim the falsity of this political theory. Alluding to this pet doctrine of certain violent trading politicians he has said:—"I cannot make this allusion to that measure without recording my opinion "that the attacks frequently made against "the late Chancellor Blake, as having "promoted the Chancery Act in order to "provide a place for himself, are most "unjust. Mr. Blake was not a member "of the Administration, and Mr. Baldwin himself with the author of the measure, which was imperatively demanded by the profession and the "country. Mr. Blake, no doubt rendered valuable aid to Mr. Baldwin in "the framing of the bill, which was, "nevertheless, introduced on the responsibility of the Government and Mr. "Baldwin especially, and I know that "it was at Mr. Baldwin's earnest and "pressing solicitations that Mr. Blake, "at the very commencement of what "promised to be a most brilliant political and professional career, consented "to abandon it in order to take a post "which no other man in the profession "could have filled with so much advantage to the public." Sir Francis Hincks' lecture is very valuable, but in no degree more valuable than in that portion which clears the memory of a dead man, and that a much maligned one. No wonder that the son of the libelled judge has felt himself stung to the quick, and has retaliated accordingly. No doubt the generous effort of Sir Francis Hincks will be fully appreciated by those who feel on the one hand the insult and on the other the generous explanation.

Another Post.

The Globe gives timely warning to farmers of the appearance of the past known as the Hessian fly, and advises them to plough up the fall wheat that has been infected. This is said to be the only remedy. The following information with reference to the fly will interest many readers:—"The Hessian fly appears in the mature form for eight to 10 days in September. During that period it is very tender, being killed by the slightest frost, in ordinary years many of them are so disposed of. But this year the mildness of that month allowed the insects every opportunity to perpetuate their kind. Immediately on appearing they pair, and the female proceeds to lay her eggs on the blades of the young fall wheat, which, unless planting has been postponed in dread of a visit from the insects, but then appearing above ground. The larvæ and hatching crawl down to the crown of the wheat, where they imbed themselves and feed upon its juices. When sufficiently mature, and before the time of hard frost, they go into the pupa or flax-seed state, in which they are proof against any degree of cold. In the spring they come out in the perfect form, again attack the fall wheat, and serve the spring wheat in the same manner."

The Fate of the Scandal-Monger.

So Mr. Wilkinson has come to grief at last. That "Big Push" business proved too heavy a load for him to carry, and his notoriety in connection therewith has landed him into the prisoner's dock with nothing but the jury's "recommendation to mercy" between him and a long term of imprisonment. We feel sorry for the unfortunate ex-editor. He was, no doubt the mere tool of greater men, and he is now left to suffer for permitting himself to be made the convenient pipe for distributing their offensive offpourings. The Senator Simpson scandal, or "Big Push" as it was generally known by, has done duty for some time as a trump card in the hands of Tory writers and speakers. When they feel inclined to use it or similar slanders, they may, perchance, reflect upon the fate of their unfortunate scapegoat, and if it should prove a warning to scandal-mongers generally, the lesson taught will be a beneficial one for the country.

The scandalous exhibition made of himself at St. Thomas by Sir John A. Macdonald has called forth an eloquent and indignant letter in the Home Journal. This is an extract:

"When a representative man comes forward either to propound a policy or to justify his public actions, whether he volunteers his services or presents himself on the invitation of his party, it is expected that he will at least not be guilty of overstepping the line of propriety and good manners; that he will exhibit sobriety of act, chasteness of speech, and common respect for public sentiment and feeling. It is at least demanded of him that his appearance shall not be marked by the significant effect of intoxication, the loss of self-control, and gross breeches upon the proprieties of the occasion. But when the chief of a great and intelligent party, upon an occasion when he could have rendered service to the moral improvement and elevation of his country, utters words his friends dare not repeat, and not in a manner his friends dare not describe and cannot justify, it is a cause of saddest lamentation."

TO THE ROMAN CATHOLICS OF ONTARIO.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

No doubt many of you have heard lately of the great John Joseph Hawkins, one of the small fry now following John A. around the country, and as you may not be acquainted with him; I will give you briefly his history: He began life, politically, in 1864, as a Tory, assisting to elect Mr. W. Bysenne, in Brant, in opposition to Hon. R. B. Wood. At the election in 1867, between Mr. Wood was then a member of the John Sandfield Macdonald Government, he then supported him; but when Mr. Wood resigned his seat in the Local House, John Joseph came out as the Tory candidate in opposition to the Hon. A. S. Hardy, Provincial Secretary. At the next election he was one of Mr. Hardy's committee; and, although that gentleman was returned without opposition; John Joseph went to the nomination to speak in his favor, and in answer to a question as to why he had turned, he said he had been in Toronto during the late session, and had heard the Opposition debating, hour after hour, whether the fence round the Parliament Buildings was painted with raw or boiled oil, and his opinion was that a party that could not bring something more manly against the Government than that, the sooner they were wiped out of existence the better. John Joseph was then in the Reform ranks. Soon after a little unpleasantness occured, and a lady got a verdict and $1,500 damages against him, —and because her friends were Reformers. Presto! Off he went to the "party of purity," and there he is now, at least he was a few days ago—at Hamilton. And this is the blatant, political wherligig that would have you support John A. He is worse than "wandering Willie," for the time he has been on the stage. Co-religionists do not be led astray by such a schemer.

PETTIT'S EYE-SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic, Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Glands, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented to the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye, acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness, safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. RHEUMATIC and OLD CHRONIC SORES, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PETTIT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum--or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible--Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before have used, that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIC DOLOUREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive, and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell me they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

CENTENNIAL LAURELS.

A Triple Crown for Wheeler and Wilson's Silent Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines.

"THREE MEDALS & THREE DIPLOMAS"

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines were pronounced by E. H. Knight, G. W. Gregory, Fred Ingest and L. D. F. Foore, Centennial Judges of Sewing Machines at Philadelphia in 1876, to be the best sewing Machine in the market. Not only the Centennial Commissioners pronounce the W & W the best sewing Machine but also Mrs. Jas Stephenson, of Asphodel, Mrs. W. S. Johnson, Wm. McCullagh, J. G. Hinston E. Tennis, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid, Mrs. W. Potter son, Jr., of Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Deacon and Mrs. J. Smith of Ashburnham, and hundreds of others too numerous to mention, pronounce it the best Sewing Machine, and recommend all intending purchasers to call and see the new family W & W, "It is a perfect little Gem."

CAUTION,

I hereby caution all those having the W & W Sewing Machine not to allow any other agent or person interested in any other Sewing Machine to have anything to do with the W & W, as these are a great many agents who pretend to sell and repair all classes of Sewing Machines, they have little or no knowledge of the W & W.

But I would recommend them having the W & W Sewing Machine to call on the proper and only authorized Agent at Peterboro, who is competent to repair, if necessary, the W & W Sewing Machines properly. I am also willing to give instructions free of expense to all W & W customers of the Agency, on all classes of goods from 5 of an inch thick, down to gauze, also lessons on variety work free. All persons interested in the W & W, will be benefited by calling on G. A. Mitchell, who thoroughly and practically understands the Machine.

Please send my late circulars on W & W Machines, before purchasing a Sewing Machine anywhere.

I also take Insurance Risks on first-class buildings at a very low rate, and I am writing for first-class Companies.
